AGREE ON JAIL PENALTIES IN NEW JOBS BILL

F.D.R. Labor Draft Plea Rejected.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—With war production booming and Germany's military force collapsing, a house and senate conference committee turned thumbs down today on the Roosevelt administration's plan to draft labor.

Sen. Thomas.

The conferees ended a week long deadlock by striking the proposed draft from the hodge-podge man power legislation they approved today.

They left in the measure, however, vast if confused power over industry and labor, which they placed in the hands of War Mobilizer Byrnes because of the resentment against War Man Power Chairman McNutt.

If the patchwork procedure recommended by the conferees is approved by the house and senate, Byrnes will have authority to dictate how many workers a firm or a farmer may employ and to freeze workers in their jobs.

Jail Penalty Included.

And employes and employers alike whom Byrnes may accuse of violating his ukases will be subject to a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $10,000 fine.

The senate had refused to provide penalties for employes in its bill, but yielded on this point in the compromise that threw the house's labor draft out the window.

The conference recommendations will go first to the house, where they are expected to be considered Monday or Tuesday. Senate action will follow.

Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of the senate military affairs committee termed the measure "spotty," explaining that Byrnes may do as he likes in choosing the areas, industries, and farms where it is to be applied.

Hits Pool Room Loafer.

Thomas said the bill will enable man power authorities, to whom Byrnes may delegate his powers, to put to work the "pool room loafer," who other senators say represents a class of unwilling persons of no value to war production.

Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the house military affairs committee, author of the May bill that included the labor draft, hailed the compromise as a "work or jail" bill which can be so administered as to control labor rigidly.

The bill was thrown together after the President called for a national service law. The house wrote one version, the senate another.

Johnson Offers Compromise.

Its principles have been vigorously fought in congress on the ground that it would hamper rather than speed the war program.

The plan under which the house and senate bills were harmonized was offered by Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.]. Its critics say it leaves employers at the mercy of burocratic whim, since it provides no equalization between competitors as to how low their working forces shall be cut.

Death-Dealing Rockets Stir British Hate

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—Southern England is no place for a person with imagination. Fortunately, most of the worriers went wacky long ago, and those who are left just go around with fingers perpetually crossed.

The trouble is this: You go walking along a warm, sunny street, minding your own business, and all of a sudden there's the worst noise you ever heard; big buildings fly thru the air in pieces and crash down in the street; there's a great cloud of dust, and many persons who were alive and happy a moment ago are dead.

Death Without Warning.

It's not that this happens every few minutes. Often hours go by and you don't hear a thing. But that's the worst of it; you never know when you may cease to exist.

Hitler's rockets give no warning of their coming. There's no whistle in the sky such as a shell makes, and no roaring snarl such as preceded the flying bomb. There is no such thing as taking shelter, unless you want to spend your entire life below ground, and nobody wants to do that. One minute you're at peace with the world; the next you're at peace with your Maker. It's a wicked weapon.

But Life Goes On.

It is amazing how the British jam buses and stores as tho nothing were likely to happen. Of course, there isn't much they can do, but day after day the rockets break their windows, knock them down, blow off their hats, and kill or maim a censored number of them.

One of the explosions is not a neighborhood affair; you can hear the noise for 10 or 15 miles, and every window-shaking explosion makes you wonder how many persons died.

The British are a warlike people—they've been at war one year in four thruout their history—but they aren't vindictive. Once they get a guy down they're inclined to let him up before they hit him again. But the rockets and flying bombs are changing all that.

Sympathy Dies Quickly.

There was a time, as the result of great allied raids on Germany, when the British were beginning to feel sympathy for their battered enemies. They were even going around saying with a sort of awe, "Those Germans certainly can take it." But no more.

The rockets are embittering the British, and talk now is all for a hard peace—the harder the better.

Canadian K. P. Abandons Pans and Gets Into a Mess

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24. — Pvt. P. Cass of the Canadian artillery hates the sight of pots and pans. Charged today with being absent without leave 147 days, he declared at a court martial that he couldn't stand the thought of any more kitchen police. The court announced that his fate would be made known later.

SHIPS, CARRIER PLANES, B-29s RIP JAP ISLANDS

Task Force Attacks for Sixth Day.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—The 16 inch guns of United States battleships bombarded the Ryukyu Islands Friday and Saturday in the closest surface action of the war to the Japanese mainland, while carrier planes of Vice Adm. Mitscher's Task Force 58 struck coordinating blows.

Vice Adm. Mitscher.

Mitscher's two way strike at the Ryukyus, destroying enemy shipping and smashing airdromes within 300 miles of Japan, was delivered with only a day's interval between it and a four day operation against southern Japan.

Thus for six out of seven days Mitscher's task force was in action, crippling Nippon's home fleet in inland sea hideouts of Japan, cutting deep into the enemy's home based air force, and neutralizing enemy air bases.

Mitscher's force braved bad weather to hit four islands in the Ryukyu area, chief of which was the naval and air base of Okinawa. Others were Minami Daito, which was bombarded by battleships, Kerama and Ie Islands, west of Okinawa. Sunday and Monday his planes pounded southern Japan, then took on the enemy home based air fleet in sky battles raging on thru Tuesday and Wednesday.

Two U. S. Ships Damaged.

Today's bulletin said a heavy toll was taken during the sky fights with enemy planes based on Kyushu, Shikoku, and Honshu Islands.

During the attacks, a destroyer of the task force was seriously damaged and a heavier warship suffered some damage.

Adm. Nimitz said the action was so intense that in one phase alone 50 enemy aircraft were downed at a cost of three American fighters.

Nimitz said the carrier planes "destroyed some enemy shipping and damaged numerous small craft."

[A delayed dispatch from Adm. Mitscher's task force said that pilots reported at least 53 Japanese ships sunk or damaged in attacks on the enemy fleet March 18 and 19.]

B-29 FLEET HITS NAGOYA

21ST U. S. BOMBER COMMAND HDQ., Guam, March 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—Super Fortress bombers in the greatest demolition raid on Japan hit the mammoth Mitsubishi aircraft engine factory near Nagoya shortly after midnight Saturday.

It was estimated unofficially that at least 225 B-29s made the low level attack on the industrial outskirts of Nagoya, which itself has been hit nine times since last mid-December by Super Fort raids. Two of the former attacks, March 12 and 19, were mass incendiary blows.

Pre-raid weather reports indicated that conditions over the target would not permit visual bombing even at low level.

"Very Large Force."

Twentieth air force headquarters at Washington said "a very large task force of Super Fortresses" hit major industrial targets at Nagoya. The announcement said "today's mission was accomplished by precision bombing against specific targets."

The Mitsubishi plant was bombed thru fierce anti-aircraft fire for the fourth time last Feb. 15. It is one of the two biggest factories of its type in Japan. With the Nakajima plant at Musashino, near Tokyo, the Mitsubishi Nagoya factory accounts for around three-fourths of the Japanese air force's combat plane engines.

Victory Scent Fills Air; Yanks Brushing Up on Their Russian

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IN THE U. S. 1ST ARMY BRIDGEHEAD, Germany, March 24.—The prospects for destruction of the German army on the western front and a complete breakthru into the heart of the reich, eventual juncture with the Russians, and a quick end to the war never looked brighter than they do here tonight. As the wits have it, some 1st army soldiers already are brushing up on their Russian.

The flame of optimism has never burned more brightly. There undoubtedly will be severe and bitter battles in the coming days. But the deterioration of the great forces of the enemy facing us has been so extensive that even the doughboys in the foxholes are beginning to sense the smell of victory.

Appreciation of the German army's extremity has led even ultra cautious observers to predict that the destruction of that army as a fighting force in the west is a matter of a few weeks. Even if this view is too rose colored, the opinion prevails that we are upon the threshold of victory since the great water barrier of the Rhine has gone.

Losses Irreplaceable.

The German loss of man power by capture in the last few weeks—more than 200,000—is something which experts believe the enemy cannot replace. And in the Westerwald area where Lt. Gen. Hodges has expanded his bridgehead the Germans apparently have no fixed defenses, only desperate efforts at "community digging" of trenches and log road blocks manned by relatively small forces.

The divisions of the German 15th army are badly depleted. They have been supported by other shredded divisions from the 5th panzer army which was ripped up in the 1st army's drive to the Rhine.

This is the force now facing Hodges. It is a shell behind which, many believe, there are no organized counter-attacking forces capable of withstanding power attacks.

And the enemy's supply and communications systems are believed to be in a deplorable state as a result of the intensive attacks by Maj. Gen. Quesada's 9th tactical air command. In five days of perfect weather fighter-bombers have flown more sorties and done more damage than in any other period since the Normandy beachhead.

Nazis Drain Man Power.

These are some of the reasons for tonight's optimism. There are others.

The Germans have thrown in their convalescent battalions. Battalions of the 1928 class—16 and 17 year old boys — from the panzer training school have been tossed into the hopper. And others, as young or even younger, are said to be forming other battalions in the Germans' last ditch stand.

Hundreds of prisoners have been taken easily for, as several expressed it, "When you crossed the Rhine we decided it was useless to lose our lives for one man." [Meaning Hitler.] "With the Rhine gone, what can we do?"

There is nothing, as one authoritative source said yesterday, to prevent us from going where we want in Germany. Or, as another officer phrased it, "enemy deterioration is such that we can carve him apart east of the Rhine."

NAZIS FORCED TO USE MUTES IN RUHR ARMIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Germany, March 24.—A special battalion of deaf men and mutes was among the Nazi formations opposing the Americans' new bridgehead in the northern Ruhr.

The "sicherung [security] units" were formed by Hitler when the man power shortage necessitated the employment of disabled or incapacitated men previously rejected.

The deaf mutes surrender willingly, stuttering "kamerad" which they have learned to pronounce for the occasion. Even those totally deaf betrayed amazing hearing when summoned, and gave up, tossing away their steel hats, and marching out with their hands locked behind their necks.

Weather Finally Turns Its Favor on Allies

LONDON, March 24 (AP).—The weather finally turned against Hitler in one of the allies' big offensives. Brilliant sunshine favored the allies as they struck across the Rhine into the plain north of the Ruhr. In operations heretofore Hitler has had bad weather as an ally.

A RAG-TAG ARMY SHOWS ITS YEARS

Ages of Captive Nazis Run from 16 to 58.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, Across the Rhine, March 24.—In Trebur, in the area between Darmstad and the Rhine, is plenty of evidence of the fierce counter-attack launched at midnight last night by the Germans and beaten off by Gen. Patton's 3d army during a battle in which more than 300 prisoners were taken.

Hundreds of other prisoners also had been rounded up since the first assault boats slipped across the river at 10 p. m. Thursday. The unbelievable thing about the prisoners is their rag-tag, and bobtail appearance. Among those seen today was one lad who said he was 16—he looked hardly 14—and four oldsters, two of whom were 58 and the others 57.

One of the men who was 58—and who was almost doddering—said he was a cabinet maker and that he had been pulled into the army in January, and used mostly to guard prisoners. One of the 57 year olds had been in the army only one month. He said he was an infantryman.

No Chance to Fire Rifle.

He spoke fair English, and we asked him whether he had ever fired his rifle. He said he hadn't because he had not had a chance. We said: "Would you have fired if you had had a chance?"

"Yes," he said.

He added, however, that he was glad to be out of the whole thing. All the oldsters were veterans of 1914-1918.

German artillery fire within the bridgehead area was not very heavy, altho a number of peeps and trucks were destroyed last night in the town of Leeheim, and were still smoldering as we went thru today. The center of the town was badly smashed.

The German air force seemed uninclined to make any major daylight bid for the bridge over which hundreds of men and machines pour hourly. An early morning raid by six planes did no damage, but cost the enemy two planes which fell to our anti-aircraft fire, according to Lt. Col. George R. Clemens of Vicksburg, Miss., whose one ack-ack battery claims eight of the 15 or 20 enemy planes downed in the bridgehead area by gun crews.

German resistance varies from the fanatical to the lackadaisical. One

U.S. 9th Army Wins 12 Towns; Drives On Duisburg.

WEST FRONT PICTURES.

New pictures illustrating the Rhine crossings by allied armies will be found on pages 4, 5, and 6.

PARIS, March 25 (Sunday)—(AP).—Four allied armies crossed and broke Germany's vaunted Rhine line on a 30 mile front yesterday, plowing five miles into the flaming Ruhr and the north German plain.

Gen. Eisenhower had committed possibly 1,250,000 men to the offensive and at least six of his nine armies now were across the Rhine.

Patton Drives On.

One of these, Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army, with its surprise crossing of the middle Rhine Thursday night, was fanning out rapidly on the mid-German plain that is a natural avenue to Berlin, hammering back feeble counter-attacks. These forces were four miles past the Rhine and 262 miles from Berlin.

Another, Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army, between the 3d and the four armies storming the Ruhr, was spearing southward along the Rhine's east bank after shattering the Wied river line and also was ready now to turn its power northward to pinch off the Ruhr. The 1st was less than 12 miles from the Ruhr. Its bridgehead was 33 miles wide and 11 miles beyond Remagen.

French Reported Across.

The Swiss said yet another army, the French 1st, had crossed the Rhine north of Strasbourg. The United States 7th army was moving into position on the Rhine after splitting the last German forces left west of the river near Karlsruhe, and allied strategists have warned the enemy to expect to meet the new United States 15th army at any time.

Backed by 1,200 guns and 11,000 planes, with British and United States navies manning fleets of landing barges, the long awaited end-the-war offensive swept across the Rhine in the north in the most massive operation since D-day last June 6, ripping the historic Rhine barrier wide open.

Eisenhower Watches.

The British 2d army and parts of the Canadian 1st army struck in concert with the allied 1st air borne army, spilling out on the north German plain within 290 miles of Berlin, and gouging out a bridgehead of more than 15 miles stretching east to Wesel, northwestern gateway to the Ruhr.

The United States 9th army, with Gen. Eisenhower watching, charged 5 miles into the Ruhr just south of Wesel, welded four crossings into a solid 12 mile wide bridgehead, swept up 12 towns and thrust southward within 4 miles of Duisburg, Europe's greatest inland port.

Resistance was light to moderate as the Germans were stunned by the barrage of massed big guns and the pounding of the war planes. Not a German plane challenged the assault.

Naval landing craft such as were used in the Normandy landings poured unending streams of troops, tanks, guns, and material into the breach ripped by the tremendous shock of the assault. Field Marshal Montgomery was pouring power out on to Europe's best tank battlefield, the Westphalian plain.

Drive Two Wedges.

Montgomery's forces, beginning the fateful cross Rhine assault Friday night, charged across the river at three points between Wesel and Rees, 12 miles to the west. At last reports they had driven at least two wedges five miles beyond the Rhine.

They had linked up with the 1st air borne army, which had plummeted down from a 500 mile long sky train possibly 40,000 troops and seized positions four to five miles beyond the Rhine north of Wesel. Such a junction had not been expected for at least another day.

Yanks Cut Highway.

The United States 9th in the first 14 hours of the attack established a bridgehead 12 miles wide and as much as five miles deep, extending from the Lippe canal at Friederichsfeld, just south of Wesel, down the west side of the Ruhr railroad to Dinslaken, thence south to Walsum and beyond to the Rhine.

In smashing into Dinslaken, a Ruhr city of 25,000 population, the 9th severed the Wesel-Duisburg highway. It captured Spellem, three miles south of Wesel, near-by Friederichsfeld Torde, farther south, and Stockum.

With these bridgeheads the allied armies east of the Rhine held rapidly expanding frontages of nearly 70 miles.

All along the front the feel-

Bridgeheads

British and Canadians—Five miles deep, 15 miles wide.
U. S. 9th Army—Five miles deep, 12 miles wide.
U S. 1st Army—11 miles deep, 33 miles wide.
U. S. 3d Army—Four miles deep, 8 miles wide.

Here is the chronology of Gen. Eisenhower's offensive which, since Feb. 8, has destroyed nearly five German armies and inflicted 250,000 casualties west of the Rhine:

Feb. 24—The United States 1st and 9th armies broke across the Roer river.

March 2—Ninth army reached the Rhine at Duesseldorf.

March 5 — First army captured Cologne.

March 16 — Third army broke across the Moselle river south of Coblenz, outflanking the Saarland and Palatinate.

March 17—Third army captured Coblenz.

ing grew that the end of the war in Europe was not far away.

First reports from the front said Montgomery's northern forces had captured 1,500 prisoners and the 9th had taken 700 more.

Field dispatches said the Germans were gathering tanks for an expected counter-blow, but the feeling persisted that with the terrific losses suffered west of the Rhine, this time the enemy could not stop the allied drive.

Pontoons Bridge Stream.

The Rhine had been bridged by pontoons both in the Ruhr and the 3d army's middle Rhine crossings.

German broadcasts said that more allied troops of the air were descending tonight over a broad front north of the Ruhr.

The long rested British 2d army, cut out of action since last September, opened the attack by crossing on the north flank at 8 p. m. last night. An hour later waves began moving across on the south flank.

In the dark of 2 a. m. went the United States 9th army and at 10 a. m. went the allied 1st air borne army leaping into the struggle from a fleet of 1,500 troop planes and trains of gliders 500 miles long in its first invasion of the reich.

Canadians in Drive.

Elements of the Canadian 1st army also were committed to the attack.

The first intimation to Germany's 35 waiting divisions that the decisive hour was at hand came when Montgomery's big guns, wheeled up to the edge of the Rhine, opened up with a barrage which rocked the countryside for miles.

Then, behind a 65 mile smoke screen so impenetrable that even the allies had to use tracer bullets and powerful searchlights to mark a path, the first assault waves began to cross.

They moved in alligators and water buffalos—the seagoing craft common to the Pacific—in tank and infantry landing craft with landing ramps, manned by navy men especially trained on the Maas [Meuse] river in secret for a naval operation never before carried out so far from the sea.

There were LCM's capable of hauling a Sherman tank or 60 men, and LCVP's with the capacity of 35 men or a bulldozer.

Bombers Pound Wesel.

Commandos crossed and crouched on the river's east bank while less than a mile ahead R. A. F. night bombers plastered Wesel. Then they stormed into the flaming ruins, killing crack Nazi parachute troops with grenade and bayonet.

Engineers came right behind the troops and began the construction of pontoon bridges to keep the long lines of waiting troops and the mountains of supplies flowing across the Rhine.

On the north flank, Highlanders linked two landings and surrounded Rees, 12 miles northwest of Wesel, then fought into its streets.

Battle Crack Nazis.

Heavy fighting raged for Bislich, midway between Rees and Wesel, where forces crossing opposite Xanten ran into crack troops of Germany's 8th paratroop division, capturing hundreds of them.

The allies were striking for ideal tank fighting country now that the thaws are past and a blazing spring sun is hardening the ground.

It was a scene of utter desolation—railways wrecked, bridges smashed, and smoke columns marking the funeral pyres of whole towns wiped out in an unprecedented aerial bombardment.

Monty Reports Progress.

Montgomery, reporting good progress, said that the enemy forward positions were not strongly held and that mobile reserves had yet to be met, but it was obvious the Germans would have difficulty getting them into action with the speed required.

Along the roads and the battle line German infantry scattered under a hail of bombs and gunfire. Rocket firing fighters prowled the skies, protecting the gliders and transports and blasting at targets of opportunity.

The transit center of Muenster was sealed off aerially in what pilots said was a land of death, with no sign of road movement.

The flat lands of Prussian Westphalia on the way to Berlin are broken only by three north-south rivers, the Ems, the Weser, and the Elbe.

The British captured the German commander of Wesel and killed Maj. Gen. Deutsch, commander of flak forces in the area.

The Rhine bridgeheads of the American 1st and 3d armies, 75 and 165 air line miles southeast of the new Rhine crossing, were burgeoning steadily, building up American power.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army smashed across the Rhine in the Mainz-Worms area, a front dispatch disclosed and in the first 16 hours carved out a bridgehead four miles deep. At least four towns were seized.

United States navy craft were sped up and used to ferry 3d army troops over the Rhine, just as in the lower Rhine crossing to the north. Streams of men and supplies were pouring into the bridgehead won Thursday night without the loss of a man.

Hurl Back Counter-attacks.

Advance units whipped back Nazi counter-attacks and kept fanning out. Berlin placed the crossings near Oppenheim, 10 miles south of Mainz, and near Worms, about 10 miles farther south.

Some 55 miles downstream was the southern edge of Lt. Gen. Hodges' Remagen bridgehead. These Americans struck forward 4,000 yards—nearly 2½ miles—along the Rhine north of Coblenz against "a mystifying lack of enemy resistance," battlefront dispatches said. They advanced another two miles east of the Wied river and captured Rengsdorf and Kurtscheid.

At the northern end, the Americans sliced the Hennef-Altenkirchen highway two miles southeast of Hennef. A Nazi counter-attack near Hennef was repulsed.

3d Army Seizes 500 Nazis.

Patton's troops smashed three desperate German tank-supported counter-attacks and grabbed 500 prisoners by noon Saturday. Huge stores of German material were captured.

By Nazi account, Patton's troops were only 20 miles southwest of Frankfurt.

The last Germans had been virtually cleared from the west bank of the Rhine, but one stubborn pocket still held out in the Bienwald forest east of Wissembourg on the United States 7th army front.

Speeding the cleanup, the 3d and 7th armored divisions of the 3d army made a new junction southwest of Landau, and the 10th armored cleared Fossenweiler, 16 miles southwest of Neustadt, and advanced eight miles south of Neustadt.

The 36th division of the 7th army struck eastward 12 miles, seizing half a dozen towns, and reaching the Rhine in the area 8 to 10 miles northwest of Karlsruhe. The 14th armored division, meeting only rear-guard opposition, surged ahead four miles and cleared Kandel, five miles from the Rhine.

EXCOMMUNICATE EX-PRIEST, PAL OF MUSSOLINI

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, March 24.—Tonight's Osservatore Romano carries in Latin the decree of the sacred congregation of the holy office excommunicating Don Tullio Calcagno, former priest who, according to reports from the north, has been backed by Benito Mussolini to head a dissident church.

Calcagno, who earlier had been suspended by Giovanni Cazzani, bishop of Cremona, for "grave disobedience to ecclesiastical authority," is understood to have accepted patronage of the arch-Fascist, Roberto Farinacci, dictator of Cremona.

The man upon whom the severest punishment of the church has now fallen has edited Crociata Italica, a weekly in which he is said to have sponsored the Republican Fascist campaign for a "national Italian Catholic church" and attacked Pope Pius XII.

Last week the Fascist radio specifically chided the pontiff for having sided with the allies to the extent of receiving a partisan chaplain, Don Fiazza. Earlier, the authorities in Milan had suppressed Italia, organ of Catholic Action in Lombardy.

WAVE OF STRIKES AND INFLATION HARASS FINLAND

HELSINKI, Finland, March 24 (AP).—Dangerous inflation and spreading strikes have placed Finland today in a critical economic state as the people struggle to discharge their armistice terms and rebuild their war torn nation.

Every hotel dining room and restaurant in the land is closed by a straike of waiters and cooks. Postal and telegraph employes, railway men and civil servants all have petitioned the government for higher wages with implied threats of strikes. All Helsinki bakeries closed five days ago as the employes struck for more pay. The city virtually was without bread today.

The wholesale price index is now at 326, three times the pre-war 1939 level, and the black market is flourishing.

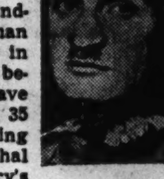
CHURCHILL SEES RHINE CROSSING; BEGS TO GO, TOO

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, with the usual cigar clamped in his teeth, watched the Rhine crossing operations today from a spot overlooking the great river's banks.

Accompanied by Field Marshal Montgomery and Field Marshal Brooke, chief of the imperial general staff, the 70 year old prime minister chafed when officers turned thumbs down on his plea to ride across the river.

The British leader's unexpected visit caught the troops by surprise. Those who saw him cheered.

BELIEVE KESSELRING HAS 35 DIVISIONS ON RHINE FACING MONTY



Gen. Blaskowitz.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, March 24 (AP).—Field Marshal Kesselring, who prisoners say has succeeded Field Marshal Von Rundstedt as German commander in the west, is believed to have elements of 35 divisions facing Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st army group.

They comprise the German 25th army and 1st parachute army, which form army group "H," now believed to be under the command of Field Marshal Johannes Blaskowitz. Marshal Blaskowitz has been succeeded as commander or army group "G" in the south by Gen. Wolfgang Hauser.

The 1st parachute army holds the front east of the Rhine extending from the vicinity of Emmerich to a point opposite Krefeld. The 25th army holds the sector from Emmerich west to the sea, virtually all in Holland. At least 10 divisions facing Montgomery are in the parachute army but their present strength probably is equivalent to no more than four or five American divisions.

NAME TACTICAL AIR WAR'S NINE TOP 'BUSTERS'

Washington, D. C., March 24 [Special].—The 9th tactical air force, whose fighter-bomber pilots have languished in obscurity while aces who shot enemy planes enjoyed the limelight, today nominated its top nine "busters"—specialists who have caused the Nazis more tactical damage than any like number of men.

The nine, including Maj. Frank H. Peppers, Brooklyn, N. Y., who has destroyed 15 bridges, and Capt. Irving I. Ostuw, Passaic, N. J., who has knocked down 75 buildings, were singled out for recognition by Maj. Gen. Vandenberg, commanding the 9th air force.

The seven other champion "busters" are: Gun positions—Capt. Carroll A. Peterson, Grand Rapids, Mich. [since killed in action], 75 silenced; locomotives—Lt. Bruce W. Carr, Union Springs, N. Y., 65 destroyed; railroad cars—Capt. Wilfred B. Crutchfield, Madisonville, Ky., 350 destroyed; railroad tracks — Capt. Kent C. Geyer, Borger, Tex., 80 cuts; tunnels—Capt. Francis P. McIntire, Savannah, Ga., six sealed.

Motor transport — Lt. Henry B. [Buff] Hamilton, Winnetka, Ill., 300 destroyed; tanks and armored vehicles—Lt. William J. Garry, Winona, Minn., 32 destroyed.

50 WAR WRITERS PROTEST RHINE STORY HANDLING

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, March 24 (AP).—Nearly 50 American and British correspondents with the United States 9th army protested tonight against supreme headquarters' handling of the news release of the Rhine crossing offensive which left many of them stranded on an event they risked their lives to cover while correspondents many miles from the scene wrote the story secondhand.

Ninth army correspondents were not notified that censorship on the offensive had been released until 15 minutes after the story had been given to correspondents in Paris and Brussels. Up to the last moment, censors of the 9th army told correspondents that the story of the offensive could not be released until 4 p. m. [10 a. m. Chicago war time].

The field correspondents' protest was forwarded to supreme headquarters and the office of war information. It pointed out that a fundamental principle laid down before the Normandy landings was that spot news would be released by the army in the field to correspondents who accompanied the army.

To add to the confusion, the British 2d army, in an unprecedented "liberal" policy, released the crossing sites and towns taken about midday, while 9th army operations details were withheld for the usual 24 hours. Correspondents were forewarned of the new British policy, however, when a 21st army group staff officer recently made it clear that the British 2d army intended to find a place in the world news spotlight.

LIQUOR IN LOOP STOREROOMS STOLEN.

Systematic thefts of liquor from office storerooms of J. N. Ralston and John Drychel on different floors at 330 Adams st. were investigated by police yesterday. In the last two weeks Ralston reported a case vanished from his storeroom. In the same period 18 bottles were taken from Drychel.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Nearly 20 years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Liberal Trial Offer

To prove that Cystex may be the very medicine you need accept this fair-play trial offer: Get a supply of Cystex from your druggist today. Take it exactly as directed and watch for quick help, a rapid increase in pep, more youthful feeling and a new joy in living. You must be completely satisfied and highly delighted or you simply return the empty package and your money back is guaranteed.

Tear this out. Take it to your druggist. Be sure to get genuine, guaranteed Cystex which is scientifically produced under the direction of a licensed physician, and used by millions throughout the world. Three guaranteed Cystex sizes—35c, 75c, $1.50.

MONTY'S FORCES CROSS RHINE IN SMOKE SHROUD

Witness Tells How Armies Hurdled Stream.

BY WES GALLAGHER.

ON THE RHINE, March 24 (AP).—Everything the allies have, including some weapons still on the secret list, has been thrown into this battle to crush the most powerful German fighting force left in the west, and amazing progress is being made by a combination of British and American skill and courage.

Despite the enormity of the stake, German resistance at first was spotty and prisoners were taken in abnormal numbers in the opening hours of the attack.

Watches Attack.

I followed the doughboys and tommies from their secret assembly areas to the Rhine over moonlit roads and watched the attack develop from a front line regimental command post. Then I crossed the Rhine, and finally flew in a Cub spotter plane to watch thousands of parachutists and glider troops drop into Germany.

The most impressive sight of all, as always, was that of long lines of silent infantry walking across the fields and along the roads. The sight always brings a tightness to one's throat.

Bombers Destroy Wesel.

Among the hundreds of factors contributing to the success of the vast, intricate attack was the icy courage of British Commandos who lay within a mile of Wesel while 300 R. A. F. Lancasters destroyed the town in 15 minutes of night precision bombing, then rushed into the flaming rubble and crushed the garrison of German parachute troopers.

Too, there was the bravery of American transport pilots who flew their cumbersome ships with heavy gliders in tow thru a wall of flak and dropped air borne troops. Some returned in flames. Some did not return.

Smoke Blankets Rhine.

Yesterday afternoon a curtain of smoke blanketed the entire Ruhr and the Rhine from Duesseldorf to Arnhem. Most of it rose from the flaming buildings of the Ruhr and the impact of thousands of American and British bombs. The rest came from chemicals set off to screen allied troop dispositions.

Men and machines lay silent until dusk. But with the darkness the allied front stirred to life.

In the forests there came a rumble of tanks and trucks, and on the roads long convoys sprang forth loaded with every conceivable piece of equipment, including thousands of tons of bridging material and huge landing craft on giant trailers.

Mortars Kick Up Dust.

It seemed impossible that this vast assortment could be untangled and moved to the right place at the right time. But most of it got there.

Near the river dike a barrage from mortars kicked up dust and shells whistled about the command post in a ruined house.

In the cellar the commanding colonel—a short man with a .45 slung on his hip—was just getting his communications in order. It all had to be done by telephone for this division had been moved to the front secretly and could not use the wireless for fear of advertising its presence to the Germans.

"The worst thing about this period," he complained, "is that you have to sit and wait. There is nothing you can do, just sit and wait. You can't stop all this stuff from going on, nor can you help it any until the battle starts."

At the colonel's side was Lt. John F. McGee, Charleston, S. C. At 22 he is one of the youngest regimental operations officers in the business. He used to be a platoon leader and is thankful for his present job, declaring "it's safer" just as a mortar shell takes off the top of the house next door.

Jump-Off Is Staggered.

Another operations officer finds the jump-off time especially fitting as it is the exact hour he was born 32 years ago. He is Capt. Arne Nielsen, Oakland, Cal.

Shortly after dark there is a thunder to the north from the big guns. The British have begun their preliminary barrage, a barrage that is to go on for four hours.

The jump-off was staggered, with the British northern flank launching its attack at 8 p. m., the southern flank at 9 p. m., and then the 9th army to the south at 2 a. m.

From the time those guns opened up the front was a continuous roar, reaching such a crescendo at times that plaster fell from the walls. The concussion of the guns pulled at your clothes.

Outside the command post the infantry marched by, followed by tanks, buffalos and a hundred other kinds of instruments of war. Occasionally a mortar or tank shell hit near-by, but no one paid any attention.

No Excitement at Post.

There is no excitement but an undercurrent of worry always seizes command posts just before a big attack.

"I just hope we get the boats in the water before they spot us," says Operations Officer Maj. Julius W. Singleton, Morgantown, W. Va.

"It is impossible for Germany to defend adequately the vast front that she now has," said Lt. Charles E. Darment, 8120 Kenwood av., Chicago. "With all the artillery and air support we have, it can't be too rough."

Sgt. Chester B. Allen, 3320 Grand blvd., Brookfield, Ill., said: "This attack is finding us ready and able and we think that when we beat him this time the war will be over."

Dozens of young officers come in and out of the command post with a thousand assignments, demonstrating the tremendous complications of modern war and particularly of this attack.

Down on the river, cranes are trying to lift huge United States navy boats off their trailers. The cranes break under the strain and the cumbersome vessels are manhandled off into the water.

Infantry Carries Boats.

Later the infantry waves carried other 1,000 pound assault boats down to the river on their backs so that the first waves could climb aboard and land on the other side fresh.

Motorboat hobbyists, who were recruited from all over the army, were transferred weeks ago to handle the storm craft with their outboard motors. Among them was Pvt. Harold Zerner, 3434 Plainfield av., Chicago.

The Germans tried to shell the boats as they crossed the river, but casualties were surprisingly light for the magnitude of the operations. All up and down the river for miles the scene at this beachhead was repeated.

The navy boats, alligators, and ducks made repeated trips across the river. But the storm boats which carried the first waves were left scattered on the opposite shore, their purpose achieved. With the coming of daylight the Germans had been pushed back out of small arms range of the river in some sectors.

Engineers Appear on Scene.

When this was accomplished the stream of traffic changed to heavy bridging equipment. Thousands of engineers forced their way to the sloping bank with hundreds of pieces of gear.

They had the biggest short term engineering job of the war, the building of enough bridges across one of the largest rivers in Europe to move three full armies.

As the morning advanced there came a new crisis in the battle region along the entire front under a canopy of allied planes.

To watch it one of the best seats was in a Cub plane piloted by Capt. Odell Williamson, Charlotte, N. C.

A slight wind had come up, blowing the smoke away from the river and leaving the left bank of the Rhine in clear view. The Cub had to fly high to keep out of the way of some 1,500 transport craft dropping air borne troops from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m.

The drop was being made in daylight in one of the heaviest flak belts in Europe by slow transports towing gliders.

Shell Flak Positions.

British gunners at 9 o'clock fired shells which burst in the air at all known German flak positions, trying to knock out the personnel. At the same time scores of fighter-bombers hit at German flak positions deeper in the battle zone.

Some flak positions may have been knocked out, but there were plenty left as two streams of transports crossed the river to the north, made the drop, and then swung out to the south.

The Club flew high above the scene at the point where the transports came out. We could see the planes going straight into the flak as tho craft and crews were armor plated. Smoke obscured the drop, but not the planes. In 14 minutes some planes flamed orange from direct hits.

Some exploded in flight. Others fell at the river's edge.

Two at once were seen flaming almost side by side as they streaked for the Rhine.

Two Parachutes Billow Out.

Williamson whipped his Cub about and cut in close to the two flying coffins. There was nothing to do but just sit there and watch helplessly. One plane had its motor on fire.

The other was burning from the wings. Suddenly parachutes—two of them—billowed out. The pilot apparently stayed with his plane to give the crewmen a chance to bail out. Suddenly the plane dived toward the ground. But before it hit it exploded with a smoky, reddish glare.

The first pilot must have seen his companion go down, but he stayed with his ship. He skimmed a row of trees and crash landed in the field. For a moment it looked as if he was safe. But the crash apparently broke open the gas tanks. The entire ship was engulfed in a red glare. No one was seen to get out.

While this was going on a stream of transports plunged across the Rhine like a relentless tide.

M. P. SEEKS CHURCHILL APPROVAL FOR QUICK HANGING OF HITLER

LONDON, March 24 [Reuters].—Adolf Hitler deserves execution without trial, William Davidson, Conservative member of parliament, says. He will ask Prime Minister Churchill to take steps to get an agreement among the allies that no consideration be given to devising legal machinery to try Hitler.

RAG-TAG NAZIS NEVER KNEW WHAT HIT THEM

American tank destroyer was halted when enemy hands from a foxhole threw weapons at it. Then up came a hand with a Panzer-Faust [German bazooka] firing a shot which bent the tank destroyer's gun.

The tank destroyer, adopting the only course open to it, promptly ran directly across the German position, killing both Nazis.

A story of the other extreme is that of seven Germans—the first ones seen after the crossing was made—who knew nothing of it until suddenly the shore in front of them was filled with boats. They not only surrendered without firing a shot but when the Yanks said they were unable to spare the men to row them back, they eagerly volunteered to row themselves.

There are many dead Germans in the field, and along the roads of this tableland which comprises the bridgehead. There were 26 dead along the highway between Geinsheim and Trebur, most of whom never knew what happened.

Mowed Down the Rest.

They were part of two platoons marching down the highway when Americans advancing from the other direction spotted them in the early morning mist, ambushed them, captured the advance unit, and then mowed down the rest. In Trebur itself other dead lie scattered thru the outer edge of the town—luckless ones who weren't among the 300 taken prisoner.

Among the defenders of the town when the Germans came in was a heavy mortar outfit whose officers included Lt. Gordon Goff of Berkeley, Cal. Lt. William S. Clark of Chester, Pa., 2d Lt. S. S. Bayer of Galveston, Tex., and Lt. William T. Free of Vincennes, Ind. According to all four the Germans came toward the town yelling and hurrying on as tho "drunk or schnapped up," giving every one plenty of warning.

Lt. Free ran down, removed a .50 caliber machine gun from his jeep, and set it up in an upstairs window of a house overlooking an orchard. While Pvt. 1st Class Gerald Baumgardner at Gettysburg, Pa., loaded, Lt. Free rested the gun on the window sill and held the butt against his stomach despite the jarring recoil, until the Germans located it by its tracers and put a series of .30 caliber machine gun bullets thru the window just over Free's head, slightly wounding the man beside him and bringing down so much plaster the gun was put out of action.

Grabs a Garand Rifle.

Meanwhile, another member of a mortar unit, according to Lt. Clark, who commands the platoon in question, grabbed an M-1 [Garand] rifle and ran into the night crying: "I'll get those — — —. They killed my brother."

Then, according to Clark and others, the doughboy leaped a fence within easy range of the Germans, poured two clips of the M-1 toward the German machine gun position, ran back for more ammunition, repeated the performance, and then hearing that infantry men at the end of the street were low on ammunition, made two trips with a supply for them until pinned down and slightly wounded.

From an observation post today it was possible to see four or five German self-propelled guns and tanks knocked out in a field northeast of town while American planes and artillery worked over the woods behind it in which there were known to be Germans.

Both mortar crews and Capt. Raymond Bitney of Bloomer, Wis., operations officer for an infantry unit, also involved, said Thunderbolts broke up a second counterattack shortly before dawn, and that when Yankee tanks and self-propeled guns began shooting into the German positions at daylight the Nazis came out in droves.

They Usually Surrender.

The defenders were pleased to learn they had just whipped the so-called "Alarm" battalion which had been given direct orders by Hitler, according to prisoners, to "smash the bridgehead and throw it back across the Rhine." Capt. Q. B. Lamonte of Pittsburgh, Pa., said the Alarm battalions are trained to come in fast, hit hard, raise hell, and then get out — but they usually surrender.

The whole American attitude thruout the bridgehead—among the infantrymen, tankers, and all other branches—is one of quiet confidence. This is easily understood after a tour thru the 3d army's new holdings, since the roads are jammed with men and equipment and lines of prisoners heading back, American planes are overhead, and smoke from burning German towns dots the landscape.

For sheer speed and audacity followed by the utmost exploitation of advantages gained, this must be one of the most exceptional bridgeheads in military history.

We saw a number of civilians in several towns busily bringing in radios, guns, and Nazi flags. Officers who have dealt with these on both sides of the Rhine say those on the eastern bank are noticeably more unfriendly than any previously encountered.

U.S. ENGINEERS THROW BRIDGES OVER RHINE ON HEELS OF TROOPS

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 24 (AP).—The United States army engineers wrote the greatest chapter in their colorful saga today when they set up a ferry service on the Rhine and started a bridge across the historic water barrier while German 88s and mortars hurled fire at them.

The assault went off in such perfect form that as soon as the infantry started fighting its way inland along the east bank, the engineers began moving cranes and landing craft to the river's edge for launching. Bridging material was brought up to the ferry site and sections of bridges began appearing after daylight.

By 9 a. m. equipment was being moved up for bridge construction, altho most of the crossing sites were still under mortar and 88 mm. fire.

NAZIS PREPARE NEW DEFENSES NEAR BOLOGNA

ROME, March 24 (AP).—Patrols reported today that the Germans apparently were constructing new defenses on the central Italian front south of Bologna. Only minor activity by small 8th and 5th army units was reported by allied headquarters.

Scouts said the enemy was digging a new system of trenches and constructing strongly fortified positions, apparently in a further move to block any drive on Bologna, key to German defenses in northern Italy.

The Germans stepped up their artillery action along the battle front and sharp clashes between opposing patrols occurred on the 8th army's Adriatic sector. Some casualties were inflicted on the Germans by American raiding parties near Furcoli on the central front.

STEINWAY has become the chosen

FOLLOWING his American tour in 1873, the great composer-pianist, Anton Rubinstein, wrote glowingly of the Steinway piano . . . "your unrivaled piano-fortes have done full justice to their world-wide reputation, both for excellence and for a capacity for enduring the severest trials."

Today the tradition of Steinway supremacy continues in the present generation of artists. Hofmann, Horowitz, Pennario, Heifetz, Milstein, Serkin, Schnabel and Artur Rubinstein — and many others — have achieved immortal names for themselves at the keyboard of the Steinway Piano.

ARTUR RUBINSTEIN, soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra last Thursday and Friday, will appear again at Orchestra Hall Tuesday afternoon, March 27th.

IKE WARNS NAZIS NOT TO EXECUTE AIR BORNE MEN

Vows Punishment for Guilty Germans.

LONDON, March 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters, told troops of the 21st army group today that the "decisive victory in Europe will be near" once the Rhine river line is pierced and the crust of German resistance broken.

A similar message of confidence in speedy victory was issued by Montgomery while Gen. Eisenhower warned German officers, soldiers, and civilians that the allies would hold them to strictest account and punish them according to their deserts if they became involved in the execution of allied air borne troops.

Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, speaking under the authority of the supreme allied commander, warned Dutch patriot troops to take no action without orders but alerted them to be prepared to coördinate their efforts with the new allied offensive which has carried across the Rhine.

Churchill's Message.

In a message to the British 2d, Canadian 1st, and United States 9th armies, Churchill, who on March 4 predicted that "one strong heave will win the war," said:

"I rejoice to be with the chief of the imperial general staff [Field Marshal Brooke] at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters of the 21st army group during this memorable battle on forcing the Rhine.

"British soldiers, it will long be told how, with our Canadian brothers and valiant United States allies, this superb task was accomplished. Once the river line is pierced and the crust of German resistance is broken, the decisive victory in Europe will be near.

"May God prosper our arms in this noble adventure after our long struggle for king and country, for dear life, and for the freedom of mankind."

German Army Warned.

Declaring that the allies had knowledge of an order issued from Hitler's headquarters on Oct. 18, 1942, and its supplement issued in October, 1944, calling for the execution of allied air borne and parachute troops, Eisenhower said in his message to the German army:

"The development of the battle on German soil may bring you into contact with allied air borne or parachute troops in large or small units. Such units may be landed or dropped deep behind your lines.

"You are solemnly reminded that such troops landed or dropped in uniform behind your lines are not terrorists but soldiers carrying out legitimate military tasks.

"The execution of air borne or parachute troops operating in uniform is entirely contrary to the accepted rules and practices of war.

"All persons—officers, other ranks, or civilians—implicated in the issuing or carrying out of the fuehrer headquarters' orders . . . or any other similar orders subsequently issued or to be issued will be held to strictest account and will be punished according to their deserts. The excuse of having carried out orders received from above will not be considered valid."

Ask Help for Refugees.

A special supreme headquarters message broadcast by the London radio tonight called on Germans residing in rural areas to help refugees now streaming out of the Ruhr and the Frankfurt and Mannheim-Ludwigshafen areas.

Reminding Germans that the "last battle of the war was approaching" the broadcast told people in the country districts to see that refugees from Hitler's war industry were put to work to help provide food for the "first hard winter of peace."

Declaring that "the last round is going very well on both sides of the ring—the overhead," Montgomery told his troops:

"In the west, the enemy has lost the Rhineland, and with it the flower of at least four armies—the parachute army, 5th panzer army, 15th army, and 7th army. The 1st army, farther to the south, is now being added to the list.

Cites Enemy Losses.

"In the Rhineland battles, the enemy has lost about 150,000 prisoners and there are many more to come. His total casualties amount to about 250,000 since the 8th of February.

"In the east the enemy has lost all of Pomerania east of the Odor, an area as large as the Rhineland, and three more German armies have been routed. Russian armies are within about 35 miles of Berlin.

"Overhead, allied air forces are pounding Germany day and night. It will be interesting to see how much longer the Germans can stand it."

He declared that 21st army group troops, having crossed the Rhine, "will crack about in the plains of northern Germany, chasing the enemy from pillar to post."

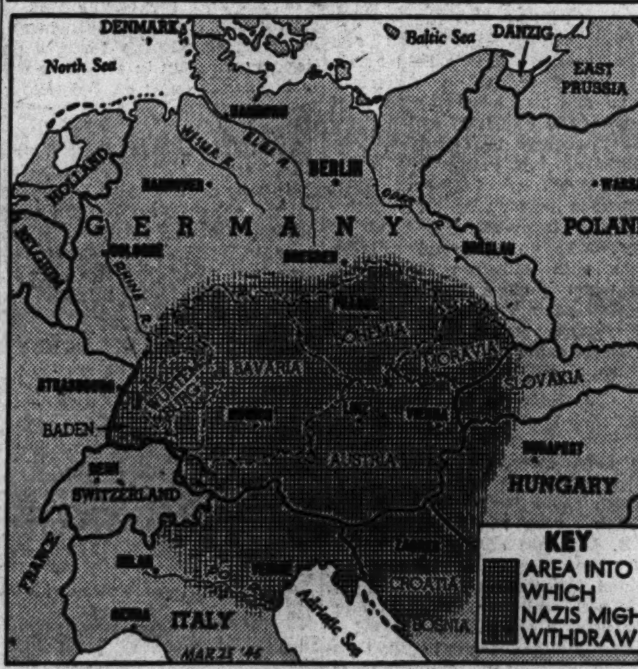
Where Nazis May Fight to Last



Shaded area shows mountainous region of middle Europe, to which, experts say, Nazis may retreat for last ditch fight after allies capture northern Germany, including Berlin.

Already in South

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IN THE U. S. 1ST ARMY RHINE BRIDGEHEAD, Germany, March 24.—Altho the wehrmacht is close to a final crushing defeat in the west in the opinion of almost every one along this front, the possibility exists that all or at least remnants of 30 surviving SS [elite guard] divisions may make a last stand in the mountains of southern Germany.

If these units are capable of withdrawing as an organized force to prepared positions among the mountain crags and were well stocked with ammunition and supplies, they could be a distinct annoyance. But they would not be saving Germany. They would be preserving no German industrial area capable of supporting further resistance. They would only prolong the campaign to defeat the last fanatical Nazi troopers.

Most of the SS divisions already are in southern Germany. Only a few are engaged on the western front. The bulk are defending the Vienna industrial region. Others are being formed by newly raised levies.

Jerusalem Arabs Strike Over Mayoralty Plan

JERUSALEM, Palestine, March 24 (AP).—Arabs staged a general strike in Jerusalem and Haifa today in protest against the recent proposal of John Vereker [Lord Gort] that the mayoralty of Jerusalem be alternately held by a Moslem, a Christian, and a Jew. All shops, offices, and factories in the Arab sections were closed.

WOMAN REBUKES PRINCE AT ROME ATROCITY MASS

ROME, March 24 (AP).—A woman with a baby in her arms denounced Crown Prince Umberto, lieutenant general of the realm, during a solemn mass today commemorating the first anniversary of the Ardeatine caves atrocity. She was taken out of the church.

Sighting Umberto among the officials at Santa Maria degli Angeli church, she shouted, "Get out. We don't want you. Nobody wants you."

She was a member of a group, some of whom were identified as relatives of the Ardeatine victims, who arrived after the church doors were closed. She succeeded in entering but the others remained outside, demonstrating thruout the service.

Work was suspended for five minutes thruout Rome in observation of the execution of more than 300 hostages by the Nazis in the Ardeatine caves in reprisal for the bombing of a Nazi SS. column in Rome.

98 Killed in Accidental Bombing of War Prison

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 24.—It was officially confirmed here tonight that 90 French officers, a soldier, and seven other Frenchmen were killed when allied planes accidentally bombed a prisoner of war camp at Nienburg, Germany, on Feb. 4.

The ministry of prisoners, deportees, and refugees said it had received a report from the international Red Cross stating the bomb fell in the camp, destroying three bunk houses.

VON RICHTHOFEN REPORTED UNDER HITLER ARREST

MADRID, March 24 (AP).—Field Marshal Baron Wolfram von Richthofen, luftwaffe production chief and cousin of the German World War I. ace, has been arrested on Hitler's personal order—despite Goering's protection—because of the failure of a rocket-propeled fighter type, according to a German military source.

Seven members of Von Richthofen's staff also were reported arrested. The arrests are reported to have caused a rift between Goering and Hitler.

The German source here said many of the new planes were sent to air command areas before it was found they not only lacked speed but that some disintegrated in the air.

Von Richthofen formerly was commander of the luftwaffe in northern Italy but quarreled with Field Marshal Kesselring, and late last year took command of luftwaffe production.

There also are rumors of wholesale arrests of technicians in factories charged with producing parts for the planes.

STABBED IN BOWLING ALLEY FIGHT.

James Helsing, 30, of 7815 Drexel av. was knocked unconscious and then stabbed in a fight at the Grove Recreation bowling alleys, 7854 Cottage Grove av., last night. Police started a search for John Childs, Negro, a pin setter. Helsing's condition was reported serious.

NAZIS SMASHED BY GREATEST AIR BLOW IN HISTORY

LONDON, March 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—The mightiest aerial offensive in history, which yesterday saw 10,000 allied planes join the assault across the Rhine, continued unchecked tonight.

The huge armada, which converged on the Rhine crossing area from England and continental air fields laid a protective wall of fire around troops charging toward the heart of the reich.

53 Nazis Shot Down.

At least 53 German planes were shot down by American fighters Saturday. Almost half the kills were scored as the Nazis were run down like rabbits. Twenty enemy planes were blasted out of the sky over one field from which they were trying to escape.

Announced American losses for the day were 26 heavy bombers and 14 fighters or fighter-bombers. The 8th and 9th air forces each lost seven fighters or fighter-bombers.

Twenty of the missing bombers were from a group of 240 Liberators which plowed thru heavy ground fire at tree top level to drop supplies to air borne troops across the Rhine.

The U. S. 8th air force flew about 1,750 bomber and 1,250 fighter sorties on Saturday as Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombed 16 German air fields and dropped supplies immediately after the landings east of the Rhine by the air borne army.

Tonight, R. A. F. Mosquitoes lashed Berlin for the 33d consecutive night. Yesterday, with Nazi defenses thrown into turmoil, a tank works on the southern edge of the capital was smashed by American heavy bombers from Italy, which leaped the Alps in a 1,600 mile round trip, the longest escorted mission ever flown over Europe.

Five Layers of Planes.

From dawn to dusk yesterday one great procession of bombers and fighters swept across the channel to be joined by thousands of others streaming up from bases in Belgium, Germany, Holland, and France.

Each phase of the mammoth operation was run off with split-second timing, with as many as five layers of planes roaring toward their objectives at the same time.

Sixty seconds after a group of transports towing gliders filled with combat troops passed over one Belgian city 200 American fighters dived into the fray.

G. I.s IN HIGH SPIRITS AS PUSH GETS UNDER WAY

Doughboys Play Ball on Eve of Attack.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Germany, March 24.—The initial phase of Field Marshal Montgomery's offensive has been a far easier and far less costly job than the Roer crossings exactly 29 days ago. The G. I.s seemed to sense that they had the Germans on the run and yesterday and all last night I could see the vast difference between this and the eve of the Roer operation. Having torn up Nazi formations and defenses so recently, the doughboys felt their invincible superiority and betrayed their unbounded confidence by playing baseball in assembly areas a couple of miles from the Rhine up to 7:30 last night when only the dusk ended their games.

Prior to the Roer attack the Yanks still smarted under the sudden, bitter, aggressive fighting of the Nazis in the Ardennes where they had felt the weight of their machine guns, mortars, and 88s.

Doughboys Watch Spectacle.

During the evening and up until midnight the G. I.'s sat on curbstones in German villages watching the spectacle of the artillery bombardment and aerial bombing, clearly visible across the flat plain extending on both sides of the river. Thus they listened to the American artillery, heard the whine of their shells whistling overhead, and stared as block busters lifted entire buildings into pulverization, unmindful of the stench of dead horses, cows, and pigs sprawled beside them.

The dry warm weather eliminating any mud, and the normal river with no floodlands, simplified the task of lugging the storm boats, pontoons, and bridging material to the crossing sites and the comparatively unscathed condtions on the east bank made the landing far less complicated than thru the debris and wreckage of the flooded, racing Roer.

Engineers faced a simpler task, too, with the current only 3½ miles per hour—half the speed of the Roer torrent and firm embankments on both sides instead of the slimy, bottomless quagmires that confronted them on the Roer banks.

Watches Take-Off.

As the tense minutes wore on before H-hour I scrambled thru rubbled houses and down rickety stairs to smoky, unventilated basements to visit platoons sweating it out as they awaited the call to carry the assault boats to the river.

Then, almost suddenly, it seemed, I watched the men seat themselves gingerly in the cranky, flat bottomed boats as outboard motors spat and saw them flash their blue blinker lights just a couple of minutes later as they landed on the opposite bank.

I saw engineers fetch back the boats with a few wounded yanks and a number of German prisoners who wasted no time sticking up their hands and yelling: "Nicht, nicht—Kamerad" as doughboys covered them with automatics.

I saw entire units disappear into navy amphibious craft as the doughboys yelled to the crew: "What's the matter sailor? Where's your blues? Where'd you get the G. I. uniforms?" And the sailors, unhappy and self-conscious in the khaki camouflage, kidded back: "No wonder you guys are so screwy with all these little pockets sewed all over your pants and blouse but no place to put a whistle."

Listens For Big Guns.

Toward the eastern bank of the Rhine, 600 yards away, I strained my ears, listening vainly for enemy machine gun fire and to the warning whistle of artillery fire against our beach site—but none materialized.

Then on that far shore I saw the blinkers flash the news that every watcher on our side awaited so eagerly—the word that the Yanks were advancing and that objectives were being taken. Relieved staff officers checked them off, one by one, on their battle maps.

As if to ease his own hypertensity a colonel muttered: "No small arms fire, no artillery, no mines. What's the matter with those people?" You could tell it was a ranking officer speaking. Only enlisted men and field officers say troops, or soldiers, or the enemy. Colonels and generals always refer to military personnel as people—regardless of whether they are friend or foe.

Many from Midwest.

As has become customary whenever a big action was brewing, an abundance of midwestern Yanks was to be found among the hordes of doughboys who sweated it out during the crossing. Among others, the following were encountered:

Pvt. Martin Baer, Milwaukee, Wis., whose sister, Mrs. Nancy Strauss, lives at 839 W. Lakeside av., Chicago; Dan Pjesky, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Erwin Livingston, Peoria, Ill.; Corp. Thomas Martin, 824 W. 62d st., Chicago; Thomas Jones, 3304 Palmer st., Chicago; Sgt. William Peterson, 8037 S. Escanaba av., Chicago; Glenn Uster, 6326 W. Raven st., Chicago; Pvt. Norbert Baber, 2848 Elston av., Chicago; Staff Sgt. William Canady, Hammond, Ind.

Among engineers getting material across the Rhine were Pvt. Fred Stoll, East St. Louis, Ill.; Tech. 5th Grade Arthur Kemp, Newburgh, Ind.; Corp. Donald Kiracofe, Monroeville, Ind.

BRITISH ASKED TO GRANT NEWS FREEDOM TO ALL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—The left wing National Council for Civil Liberties today passed a resolution calling upon the British government to give full facilities to all newspapers to report not only military but political and social developments in liberated countries, subject only to security censorship.

At the same time, the organization called for the abandonment of the government's discrimination against the war office ban on war correspondents, and demanded immediate release of imprisoned Indian leaders opposed to fascism.

Rosenman Finds Errors in Allied French Relief

LONDON, March 24 (AP).—Judge Samuel N. Rosenman, President Roosevelt's representative investigating French relief needs, said today that allied military authorities had made some mistakes in supplying France's civilians last winter. Rosenman, concluding a survey, said he found that the military supplied France "as well as they could." He acknowledged the aid was insufficient.

GERMANY'S FATE AFTER WAR TOLD BY U. S. OFFICIALS

Strict Allied Control Being Planned.

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—Germany's choice now is between unconditional surrender and pulverization, and if they choose pulverization, they will have only themselves to blame for following vicious leadership, a government official said tonight.

This point in allied policy toward Germany was outlined in a radio broadcast by Assistant Secretary of State James C. Dunn, Robert Murphy, political adviser to Gen. Eisenhower, and Assistant Secretary Archibald MacLeish.

"This time," said Murphy, "the Germans will not be able to claim that they were duped into laying down their arms. They are now witnessing the thing they understand best—superior force of arms."

Encourage Trade Unions.

Other points of allied policy toward Germany the speakers outlined were:

1. Murphy, recently returned from Europe, disclosed that the allied military government in Germany "is encouraging the trade unions to organize again."

"The two most important aspects of the long range treatment of Germany," he asserted, "are the reeducation of the Germans and the reëstablishment of the rights of labor."

2. Hitler and other axis leaders will be punished for their war crimes, as well as their henchmen who actually carry out atrocities.

3. Germans will be punished for crimes against their compatriots, including German Jews and anti-Nazis.

4. No important Nazis have escaped to neutral countries yet, so far as the department knows, but it "is not entirely satisfied" with assurances from neutrals.

5. "It will be necessary to keep Germany under control for a great many years," Dunn said, but it remains unclear how long actual military occupation will be needed.

Separate Austria, Germany.

6. Dunn said "Austria would not be combined with Germany in any way, within the forseeable future."

7. The allies will have to supervise reëducation of Germany. "We'll have to find or train Germans to do the main job," Dunn said.

8. It will be necessary to control the whole German economy after military controls taper off.

SPENCER POINTS TO DEMANDS FOR PLANT WORKERS

William H. Spencer, director of the Illinois-Indiana-Wisconsin region of the war man power commission, said the region must be "very frugal" with the labor supply in making referrals to other than essential war industries with high employment priorities.

He disclosed the region has 22 of the 75 stringent group 1 labor market areas in the United States and 18 of the 112 group 2 areas.

Emphasizing that there is a drastic need of more applicants for war work in the region, Spencer again urged workers in unclassified activities in group 1 and 2 areas to volunteer for essential war work at the United States employment service offices.

WITNESS TELLS HOW AIR BORNE ARMY WENT IN

Chutists, Glider Troops Spoiling for Fight.

BY HOWARD COWAN.

[Associated Press Correspondent Representing the Combined American Press.]

WITH U. S. AIR BORNE TROOPS, arch 24 (AP).—A sky sweeping fleet f C-47 transport planes—some laden vith parachute troops, others towing gliders—launched the first aerial invasion of Germany today with a series of daring daylight landings east of the Rhine.

Thousands of battle tested chutists and glider infantry men swarmed over the sunlit plain shortly before noon, a few hours after Field Marshal Montgomery's forces began pouring across the Rhine on the left flank of the western front some 300 air line miles from Berlin.

I am flying in with a glider load of men, some of whom are going into this fight with a score to settle. These were men who had fought the Germans in the Ardennes bulge.

Not a Cloud in Sky.

This outfit is spoiling for a fight. We moved off this morning after a 5 a. m. breakfast of steak, eggs, and cherry pie. The weather is warm and sunny. There is not a cloud in the sky to keep the Thunderbolts, Mustangs, and Typhoons from helping in this show.

Never before have so many troops been rained from the skies on so small an area and in such a brief space of time.

For the first time the C-47s have gone into combat with two gliders instead of one in tow. Most of the transports now have self-sealing gasoline tanks and they won't blow up like giant firecrackers if incendiary bullets strike vulnerable spots.

Col. Frank McNees' 435th carrier group is flying us in and the colonel, who comes from St. Paul-Minneapolis, Minn., is at the controls of the lead ship.

Chicagoan Co-Pilot.

Up there ahead of us 1st Lt. William Clark, Santa Barbara, Cal., piloting the C-47 "Second Front," which has a cartoon of a mamma kangaroo and her young stenciled on the nose. His co-pilot is Lt. James Dumont, 10810 Forest av., Chicago, Ill.; his radio operator, Sgt. Cecil Smith, Sacramento, Cal., and his crew chief, Sgt. Verne McCann, Valparaiso, Ind.

Our glider, a CG-4A, is piloted by Lt. Gene Davies, Richmond, Va., and Lt. James Keisling, Knoxville, Tenn. It is the first combat job for both men.

Seated in the flimsy canvas and wood box around me are 10 other fellows. One of us makes No. 13, but that doesn't bother any one, because that seems to be the standard load for this type of glider.

Among them are Sgt. Erny Briggs, Bradford, Ill.; Tech. 4th Grade R. F. Hawley, 3538 N. Hermitage av., Chicago, and Medic Tech. 4th Grade Vern Joslin, Anamosa, Ia.

Medical Supplies in Trailer.

There are only seven in the glider on our left, but they have a trailer loaded with medical supplies. Those men include Sgt. Edward Harlow, Edinburg, Ind., and Tech. 4th Grade Stanley Benson, 919 W. 34th st., Chicago.

The pilot is Lt. Floyd Hand, Dubois, Pa., and the co-pilot, Lt. Raymond H. Gava, Omaha, Neb.

Several dozen truckloads of us shortly before midnight hoisted ourselves into boxcars.

"The army does things funny," drawled one of the M. P.s in our car. "Mebbe they have cattle in them Pullmans."

Pvt. Samuel Mays, Mountain Grove, Mo., started a dime poker game by the light of a flickering lantern as soon as the cars rattled off into the night.

Rugged Poker Game.

That was a pretty rugged poker game even for old hands like Slim Audirsch of Jonesboro, Ala. Sgt. Thomas Morriy, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pvt. Selby French, 1540 Garfield blvd., Chicago.

All these fellows are M. P.s Their job is to guard command posts and take care of prisoners once the air bornes get under way.

None disagrees with Field Marshal Montgomery's order of the day—particularly these soldiers who a few hours before going into battle sat under starlit skies and watched a movie in which the Andrews sisters sang "My Thoughts Are Ever Winding Home." Not the men who knelt in prayer last night with a Tennessee chaplain who went thru the icy hell of the Ardennes and won the silver star for giving comfort and help when it counted most.

Radios Blare Continuously.

The men spent the rest of the intervening time playing softball, volleyball, checkers, chess, and dominoes. Radios blared continuously with music, news, and announcements warning the men to brush their teeth regularly and to remember not to fraternize with the Germans.

Among the men in this outfit are Pvt. Edward Fitch, 2845 Quinn st., Chicago, and Pvt. John Bullington, adillac, Mich.

Editor Bob Capa, Life magazine; gt. Bud Hutton of Stars and ripes; Bob Krell of Yank, and ouglas Warth of the London Daily xpress jumped in with their parahute troop outfits. Doon Campell of Reuters and I were gliding n. Campbell was in glider No. 39, iloted by Larry Wilt of Bradford, Ill.

NEW TYPE CARRIER

BY DOON CAMPBELL.

[Representing the Combined Allied Press.]

WITH THE 1ST ALLIED AIR BORNE ARMY, March 24 (AP).—The C-46 Commando, giant new troop carrying aircraft, made history over Germany today by tumbling 1st air borne army paratroops from both sides at once.

The new drop technique, used for the first time in the coördinated allied assault east of the Rhine, revolutionizes air borne operations by doubling the fire and fighting power each transport plane can take into battle.

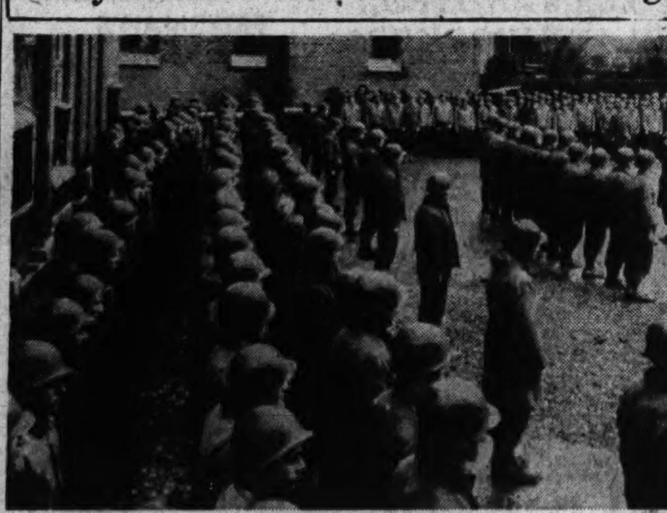
On D-day, in southern France and at Arnhem, 18 paratroops dropped from one door of each C-47 carrier. Today 36 battle-hardened sky men fell from two doors of each C-46.

This American-produced super-transport has a range of 1,800 miles which it flies at more than 250 miles per hour.

Twin engines give it 4,000 horse power. A further development is a four bladed propeller instead of the usual three.

They say the C-46 is a honey to fly. I've seen it take off, cruise and land. It glides effortlessly and smoothly thru the air despite its stumpy design caused by the great accommodation capacity.

Navy Men Who Aided Rhine Crossing



[Associated Press Wirephoto: From U. S. Navy.]

NAVY SAILS THE RHINE; FERRIES THE ARMY OVER

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 24 (AP).—American troops crossed the Rhine under fire in navy landing craft manned by sailors today.

Under an ear splitting bombardment from massed land artillery instead of from a ring of battleships and cruisers, the crossing was like a MacArthur landing in the Pacific.

The first wave ripped across the Rhine at 25 miles an hour in storm boats powered by 55 horsepower outboard motors. Two engineers handled each boat. The second wave came in assault boats that were used in the Roer river crossings a month ago, motor driven this time, not paddled.

Scene Like That at Iwo.

Alligators and Water Buffaloes—just like the ones that stormed ashore on Leyte, Luzon, and Iwo in the Pacific—followed next with their amphibian tracks churning up the Rhine.

Right after the Alligators hit the beach navy manned landing craft started barging in, loaded with men, tanks, jeeps, and bridge supplies.

The navy task force, commanded by Lt. Comdr. Willard R. Patrick of Newark, N. J., had been training with soldiers in the rear areas. Patrick's task force came into the 9th army picture four months ago, but forsook its blue jackets for olive drab while mingling with land troops on the Maas riverin Holland.

"9th Army's Navy."

Known as the "9th army's navy," the sailors practiced the assault landings with the spearhead divisions, and trained the infantry men for the Rhine D-day.

LCMS, which carry a tank or 60 men, were unloaded in December at Antwerp and moved up the Albert canal to the training grounds, where they were pounded against banks of the peaceful Maas in many a mock landing. Also used were LCVPS, which carry a three-quarter ton truck or 30 men.

Much reconnaissance was required to select the route to get the landing craft to the banks of the Rhine, but they were on the right spot at the right time.

Sailors Far From Sea.

Among the sailors fighting so far from the sea are Lt. Clarence B. Allen, Brownstown, Ind.; Lt. [j. g.] Peters Shunt, 1628 Burling st., Chicago; Boatswain's Mate 2/C Joseph Martinkus, 3045 S. Keeley st., Chicago; Seamen Arthur C. Lewis, Patoka, Ind.; J. J. Van Aaten, route 1, Kaukauna, Wis.; Stern E. Brunson, South Haven, Mich.; James Bellas, 11434 Prairie av., Chicago; Mockael Kosemaskey, 2208 W. Cermak road.

Also M. O. M. M. 3-C John Crowley, 8455 S. May st., Chicago; Coxwain Russell Walish, 111 16th st., Two Rivers, Wis.; Seaman 2-C John Sales, Council Bluffs, Ia.; M. O. M. M. 2-C Henry C. Hurt, 726 W. 66th pl., Chicago; Coxwain Harold E. Lawson, Indville, Ind.; C. M. 2-C Lawrence Durnavich, 2d av., Des Moines, Ia.; E. M. 2-C Joseph B. Williams, North Fortville, Ind.; M. O. M. M. 2-C Roy A. Morrow, Moresville, Ind.; Seaman 2-C George Bailey, Chester, Ill., and M. O. M. M. Richard Scott, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Traffic on the other side was directed by Naval Lt. O. Miller of Chicago. Lt. Wilton Wenker, 3048 Gunnison st., Chicago, is in command of the naval service in the 1st army sector.

Trained in England.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, PARIS, March 24 (AP).—American and British naval forces which ferried troops across the Rhine today rehearsed for months in England to perfect their amphibious technique.

It was long apparent that the armies would need ferry service across the Rhine. A number of exhaustive experiments were carried out on rivers having banks and current similar to those of the Rhine.

Instead of operating thru waves and surf to beaches constantly changing with the tide, the crews had to learn to maneuver their craft to and from pinpoint landing spots in strong currents running at right angles to their courses.

The armies needed fast craft sturdy enough to carry tanks, bulldozers, and mobile guns safely. It was finally decided that LCM's [landing craft, medium], which weigh 26 tons, and LCVP's [landing craft, vehicle personnel], which weigh nine tons, were the largest types which could be carried overland.

Have Landing Ramps.

Both craft have bows which lower to form ramps for landing and unloading, making mechanical loading devices unnecessary.

The crews had to learn to launch these heavy craft from muddy river banks and to transport them over hundreds of miles of damaged roads. The 50-foot, all steel LCM on its carrier is 77 feet long, 14 feet wide and 20 feet high. Yet many of them were moved to launching sites over shell-pitted roads, make-shift bridges and thru narrow village streets.

Carries a Bulldozer.

The LCVP is a 36-foot boat manned by a crew of four with a speed of 12 knots. Over smooth water it can carry about 50 soldiers, or such loads as one bulldozer, one 105-millimeter cannon and one 57-millimeter anti-tank gun, two 75-mm Howitzers or 1,000 gallons of gasoline.

The LCM carries a crew of five with a speed of 13½ knots. It can carry any armored vehicle up to the size and weight of a Sherman tank or such bulk loads as 7,500 gallons of gasoline.

United States naval units participating in today's action were under command of Vice Adm. Alan G. Kirk, head of American naval forces in Europe, and directly commanded by Comdr. William J. Whiteside. Senior officer of the British naval units was Capt. P. G. H. James.

Body of Boy, 2, Found on Deerfield Rail Track

The mangled body of a child discovered on the railroad tracks late yesterday by Deerfield police was identified as John Stanley Hermanson, 26 months, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henning H. Hermanson, 1040 Forest av., Deerfield. The family lives within a block of the Chicago, St. Paul, Milwaukee railroad and apparently the child was killed by the thru train which passed at 4:55 p. m. The Hermansons have a daughter, age 6.

PORTER AND $333 VANISH.

Julius Friedlander, 727 Hawthorne av., Glenview, manager of the Dome tavern in the Hotel Sherman, asked the police yesterday to search for a Negro porter who vanished before $333 was found missing from a cash drawer.

Lloyd George, Very Weak, Spends a Restful Night

CRICCIETH, Wales, March 24 [Reuters].—There was no improvement today in the condition of David Lloyed George, former British premier. He was still very weak but spent a restful night.

FRENCH NEWSPAPER MEN ACQUITTED OF THEFT OF GASOLINE

PARIS, March 24 (AP).—A French military tribunal acquitted three French newspaper officials of complicity in thefts of American army gasoline tonight after hearing a defense plea that the fuel was used to distribute newspapers.

Aristide Santinover Blank, general director of the France Soir and a member of the consulative assembly; Georges Benoit Dires, director of the newspaper Franc-Tireur and president of the National Newspaper Distribution Association, and Jean Boch-Michel, administrator of the newspaper Combat, were freed along with 21 other employes of the papers. Two other defendants convicted of trafficking in stolen gasoline were stentenced to prison terms and fined.

When it was shown that the newspaper officials had not dealt in the gasoline for profit, the prosecutor urged leniency toward them, saying the distribution of newspapers was in the national interest.

BOISDEAU TAKES OVER AS HEAD OF VETERANS BODY

Arthur Boisdeau was installed last night as commander in chief of the Allied World War Veterans council at the council's annual dinner in the Polish Army Veterans Memorial home, 1239 N. Wood st. The council is composed of members of the Canadian Legion, Belgian War Veterans, American-Yugoslavian legion, French War Veterans, Italian World War Veterans, American-Czechoslovakian legion, the Polish War Veterans association, and the Greek War Veterans.

Other officers installed included Joseph O. Beere, vice commander in chief; Carleton B. Cunningham, adjutant, and Thomas Crombie, finance officer.

The council's merit service cross was presented to Frank W. Bloom and Frank B. Kepner, former marines; Meyer Levy and Carl A. Gers, former sailors; Anthony P. Witlox, former Belgian soldier; Francis J. Dzioba, former Polish soldier; Ewart G. Ramsden, former British army engineer, and James L. Cihak, former French foreign legionnaire.

WOMAN DIES IN PLUNGE.

Mrs. Clara Mogensen, 83, was killed yesterday in a plunge from a third floor window of her home at 3110 Fullerton av. Her son, William, told police he had completed arrangements to have her committed to the Psychopathic hospital for observation.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER.

The body of Michael Wallscheid, 85, of 2100 Sheffield av., was found in the Chicago river at Fullerton av. yesterday by a bridgetender. A daughter, Miss Catherine Wallscheid, told police her father had told her he was "getting too old and tired of living."

CHICAGO AIRMEN FIRST TO FLY IN YANKS' SUPPLIES

Do Low Level Tricks with Liberators.

BY JAMES SLOAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HDQ., 445TH BOMBARDMENT GROUP, Somewhere in England.—Chicagoland airmen today did tricks with Liberator bombers which never before had been done with such heavy aircraft and poured supplies into the Rhine bridgehead from altitudes of only 150 to 200 feet.

Scores of Chicagolanders tossed supplies out of bomb bays and camera hatches a few minutes after parachute and glider troops had seized the foothold on the east bank of the Rhine.

Ammunition, extra arms, food, medicine, blankets for the air borne army, and even a complete hospital unit were dropped by parachuted canisters and wicker baskets.

First Over Bridgehead.

The 445th group of Liberators, which spent Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday softening up the attack area by assaults on air fields, rail lines, and freight yards in western Germany, was the lead outfit of the 8th air force's parade of supporting planes.

One of the first Liberator crewmen over the bridgehead was Lt. Richard J. Aarvig of 5329 Kimbark av., Chicago, a bombardier in the leading plane of the 445th. Another Chicagolander flew him there—Capt. Kenneth A. Boebius, pilot, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Second Lt. George O. Smith, 5239 Justine st., Chicago, who's going to name his plane "Alline" after his wife, reported lots of artillery explosions visible. It was his 27th mission.

G. Is Wave at Evanstonian.

One Chicagoan whose job as squadron commanding officer kept him from making the mission, but who anxiously counted and photographed noses as the planes swept back in, was Maj. Maurice F. Casey, 8414 Euclid av.

Second Lt. Richard W. Shook, 2326 Forrestview rd., Evanston, Ill., co-pilot of the "Old King Cole," flying his 17th mission, said the aerial army had the situation so well in hand by the time he arrived some of the troops had time to wave at the plane.

Other Chicagoans on the mission included Tech. Sgt. Robert H. Berberian, 6317 N. Washtenaw av., engineer; Sgt. Thomas S. Paone, 1111 Vernon Park pl., waist gunner; Staff Sgt. Walter W. Wickboldt, 1019 N. Hamlin av., waist gunner, and Sgt. Robert E. Sehnert, 5153 Huron st., waist gunner.

See Nothing but Ashes.

Second Lt. Hugh D. Studebaker, 1947 Stanton av., Whiting, Ind., a co-pilot, reported, "There's nothing but ashes left where our boys stormed across the river, which, when we arrived, already was being spanned by a pontoon bridge. We didn't run into much ground fire, met no enemy planes, and we were surprised to see the bridgehead area almost deserted of Germans."

Second Lt. Harry J. Mech of Harvey, Ill., co-pilot of "The Sweetest Rose of Texas," which has flown 97 missions, said, "I got a tremendous kick out of the mission because of its personal angle. This time we really felt like we were giving the ground boys a hand, which is a feeling you seldom get several miles in the air."

"The ground certainly looked pretty when we got over the bridgehead," said Lt. Howard I. Hines of 20th st. and Kilbourn av., Milwaukee. "It was all covered with vari-colored chutes, indicating where our various units had dropped just ahead of us. We were pretty low when we went in and had to 'S' all over one town, missing church steeples and radio towers by fractions of an inch. One of the planes in our formation picked up on its undercarriage what looked like a clothes line, but it must have been a string of German signal flags."

Other Chicagolanders.

The Liberator "Annie McFannie" had two Chicagolanders in her nose. Her pilot was Lt. Max Taylor, Route 2, Plainwell, Mich., while the co-pilot was 2d Lt. William J. Sorgel, 838 W. National av., Milwaukee.

Other Chicagolanders on the mission were:

From Illinois: Tech. Sgt. Charles Craig, Bridgeport, engineer; Staff Sgt. Joseph J. Wishbe, Phoenix, waist gunner; Staff Sgt. Mervin E. Shanafelt, Freeburg, gunner.

Wisconsin: Second Lt. Clarence L. Wagner, Chilton, navigator; Staff Sgt. Milton J. Wicklander, Hudson.

See Nazis Surrender.

A U. S. 8TH AIR FORCE BOMBER BASE, England, March 24 (AP).—Liberator crews returning today from supplying air borne troops across the Rhine reported that stretches of the Rhineland were engulfed in smoke and flames and that many Germans were surrendering.

"Wesel and near-by small towns were all ablaze," said Lt. Col. William H. Strong, Great Bend, Kas.

"Wesel was the worst pile of rubble I ever saw. There were no streets. Everything had collapsed. Smoke stretched for miles around.

"We could see plenty of activity, despite the smoke. Long lines of German prisoners with their hands up were winding back toward the Rhine. The entire east bank of the Rhine is lined with landing craft."

Sgt. Frank B. Collins of 65 Newton st., Somerville, Mass., member of another Liberator crew, said he saw only a few German soldiers who were not prisoners.

"They were so busy surrendering they didn't pay any attention to our planes," he said.

2,000 FRENCH MARCH AT GRENOBLE IN FOOD DISTRIBUTIONPROTEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 24.—New demonstrations against officials held responsible for the breakdown in food distribution were reported this morning from Grenoble and Rouen. Two thousand persons marched thru the streets at Grenoble, and at Rouen housewives with empty market baskets held a public indignation meeting.

In each city a delegation was received by the prefect. At Grenoble the prefect promised to accompany a delegation to the office of Paul Ramadier, food minister, to voice complaints.

Indignation in Paris at the starvation rations has been fanned by the food control authorities with a new move. In addition to seizing food supplies brought from the country by citizens, they have recruited police to search bundles and valises of subway passengers. Adding further to the public's complaints, the food inspectors are making several raids a day on black market stores.

France's Cabinet Votes More Indo-China Rights

PARIS, March 24 (AP).—The French cabinet has voted greater autonomy for French Indo-China within a "French imperial union." Under the new statute, the Indo-Chinese would have their own government, chosen both from native and French residents, under the presidency of the governor-general.

All Work, No Headline Play, That's Lot of U.S. 7th on Rhine

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Germany, March 24.—This is the aftermath on the last great battle west of the Rhine.

The 7th army performance in the last 10 days has by circumstance not been as productive of spectacular headlines as has that of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d army, but there can be no underrating the part the 7th played in the combined offensive which collapsed the Germans' Saar-Moselle triangle.

Tougher Terrain.

The 7th had far greater difficulties of terrain than did Patton's forces. Patton already had gone thru the Siegfried line when he turned on his present drive, several days before the 7th was given the go signal. The 7th had to go thru three of the densest portions of the Siegfried line defenses—below Saarbruecken and Zweibruecken, and in the Wissembourg gap. Those breaches had to be made by the infantry before the tanks could be turned loose, whereas Patton's tanks could roll immediately his show began.

It wasn't the fault of the 7th army that it wasn't thru the Siegfried line long before this mid-March offensive started. Last December, the 7th was within a day or two of having completely broken the Palatinate defenses in the Haardt forest and the Wissembourg corridor when Lt. Gen. Patch ordered a switch from the offensive to the defensive. He had to regroup and spread out his forces to cover a longer line westward as the 3d army was rushed north to attack Field Marshal Von Rundstedt in the Ardennes bulge.

Expected to Cross.

It is also recalled—now that other allied armies have made crossings of the Rhine—that in the opinion of many observers the 7th army had the first chance to cross the river into Germany. That was in late November, when the 7th had burst thru the Saverne gap into the Alsace plain, and the Germans were fleeing in disorder.

The 7th army had expected and was ready to cross—its bridging and river craft material were moving right with it. But the high command changed the plan, and the army was turned at right angles to go into the Palatinate.

GAS PERILS FIRE LIEUTENANT.

Weakened by gas from a leaking pipe, Lt. James McShane of engine company 16, was assisted by other firemen from the basement of the four story flat building at 327 E. 31st st. while fighting a small blaze early yesterday. He was incapacitated only a short time.

COLORED SUPPLY CHUTES STREWN OVER DROP ZONE

Writer Describes Scene Viewed from Air.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, March 24.—This correspondent today was briefly an eyewitness to the air borne operation by the 21st army group. We flew in C-47 tow planes pulling two gliders into the drop zone, where we appeared about an hour after the first paratroop landings. All along the wooded, high ridge, one could see, despite the smoke from burning Wesel and a slight ground haze, enemy mortars and artillery firing. But the Rhine, over the area we crossed, seemed to be well under naval control. What seemed like a squadron of small boats was operating along the river, going northward. We saw similar navy operations to the south.

All along the paratroop drop zone there were colored parachutes on the ground, indicating the paratroopers had received in great abundance their initial batches of equipment.

General Tells Objectives.

Brig. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of staff of the 1st allied air borne army, said here tonight one of the objectives was to gain possession of the wooded high ground from three to five miles east of the Rhine, where the enemy could direct observed artillery fire on both water and bridge crossings between Wesel and Rees. Today's lift of air borne troops and equipment was the heaviest so far ever carried in one day on a single operation, being more than the peak day—the second—in the Holland operation.

More than 3,000 airplanes and gliders were used in carrying troops and equipment behind the enemy lines.

Parks also said our losses, altho still not officially computed, were less than anticipated. They were, however, slightly above those in Holland, which he said were "very small."

Three Hours of Landings.

The planes kept landing paratroops and equipment steadily for three hours. American troops and equipment were flown from 26 airports on the continent, while the British were flown from the United Kingdom. Flying in two columns, the planes roared in on split second schedules, the formations from various fields timed to follow others from their fields to a rendezvous point, from where they continued to fly in closest formation to the drop zone.

Four generals jumped with the paratroops. Their names are on the secret list, but it is permitted to state two of them were "hitchhikers from America," who argued they had been training troops to jump and should be allowed to jump in active operations themselves.

FOOD, CLOTHING FREE FOR EVERY BRITON URGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.— Free food and clothing for every man, woman, and child in Britain, to be issued by a system of coupons, was advocated today by the Independent Labor party.

Specifying only that every one who could work do something of social value, the I. L. P. introduced its "Socialist Plan for Britain," to be submitted at an Easter conference in Blackpool. The party says a minimum standard of living for the whole population should be the corner stone of any sane social policy.

Stating "antiquated notions about money" should be rejected, the organization advocates exemption from taxation of the first $4,000 of income.

Marine Decorated

Lt. Robert A. Thompson is congratulated by wife after receiving medal here yesterday.

Marine Lt. Robert A. Thompson, 28, of Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday received the bronze star medal for occupying two strongly German held islands near Marseille, France, last August, thus helping to open the port to allied shipping. With 37 marines, Lt. Thompson accepted the surrender of 800 Germans on Ratonneau. With a force of only 19 he occupied D'If, where 100 Germans were stationed. These were the only marine amphibious landings in the European theater of war.

The medal was presented in the United states courthouse by Col. Chester L. Fordney, officer in charge of the marine corps' central procurement divisions. Lt. Thompson, a marine since 1937 and an officer since 1942, saw service both in the Pacific and in Europe before he was assigned to the marine recruiting office here.

U.S.PLANE STEALS SHOW IN AFRICA FROM BRITONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—The unscheduled arrival in Capetown, Union of South Africa, of a giant Douglas Skymaster passenger plane slightly disconcerted British officials in South Africa for air transport talks this week.

The security-minded British put an armed guard over the Avro York, one of the planes they expect to enter in the post-war international race for air traffic, while the more sales conscious Americans allowed all comers to clamber over their plane and offered free hops over the city to newspapermen and city officials.

40 Pounds of TNT Found in Creek Near North Av.

A 40 pound box of TNT marked "navy materiel" was found yesterday in Addison creek, three blocks north of North av. and 100 yards east of Wolf rd., by Edward Schopp, 6 Belle av., North Lake. County highway police said they would deliver it to Great Lakes Naval Training station. They said the explosive was more sensitive wet than dry.

HOPE TO BREAK MOVIE STRIKE AT N. Y. CONFERENCE

Hollywood, Cal., March 24 (AP).—Union leaders and producers today looked to conferences in New York next week for possible settlement of the 13 day old motion picture strike.

Richard Walsh, president of the AFL International Alliance of Stage Employes, left at noon for talks Wednesday in New York with William Hutcheson, president of the carpenters' union. The IATSE said it would ask Hutcheson to withdraw carpenters from the walkout.

The AFL conference of studio unions, which is opposing the IATSE for jurisdiction over 77 set decorators, said it was sending James Skelton, local business agent for the carpenters, and Joe Candiano, international vice president, to the Hutcheson talks.

The Screen Actor's guild announced its members balloted, 3,294 to 96, against supporting the walkout. The walkout, in which approximately 14,000 workers are involved, was ordered by the painters' union.

HIMMLER TELLS NAZI OFFICIALS TO SHUT OFFICES

Ordered to Quit When Allies Arrive.

LONDON, March 24 (AP).—The German radio told the home press today that Gestapo Chief Himmler had ordered all civil authorities in evacuated or allied occupied territory to "cease functioning for the time being," another sign of the chaos inside Germany.

Front dispatches have told of thousands of Germans fleeing the invaded areas along the Rhine, and this latest German broadcast said Himmler had established "interim offices" to help the heads of rural districts, mayors, and other local officials to "administer, or if necessary to liquidate existing institutions."

"Their files and other official property will be brought to safety," the broadcast said.

Admit Allied Gains.

German radio commentators meanwhile conceded that allied troops had a sizable foothold across the lower Rhine, said the "bulk" of the United States 1st army was striking eastward from the Remagen bridgehead, and expressed anxiety over the "surprise establishment" by Lt. Gen. Patton of a United States 3d army bridgehead in the south.

"The German command endeavors to delay a decision until the moment when the employment of additional German material and tactical means is advisable," said one broadcast.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius of the Transocean agency said a synchronized operation by the United States 9th and 1st armies may develop soon between Cologne and Duesseldorf, forming the lower part of a pincers movement with the British and Canadian forces farther north in an effort to envelop the Ruhr.

Try to Prevent Link-up.

Berlin said its troops were trying to prevent a link-up between Marshal Montgomery's British and Canadians and the allied parachute and glider troops on the north side of the Ruhr. It claimed that "large parts" of the air borne troops were wiped out, adding:

"But at some points air borne troops succeeded in forming nests of resistance and they are under attack."

Reports from Sweden meanwhile said mutiny had broken out among puppet Hungarian troops in Denmark Friday afternoon and that there had been "lively" street fighting in Copenhagen.

FIRST WOMAN YANK SEIZED BY GERMANS FLEES OVER BORDER

ZURICH, Switzerland, March 24 [Reuters]. — Wearing her uniform, the first American woman to be captured on the western front last night fled from captivity in Germany across the Swiss border

She crossed the line safely to Kreuzlingen, Switzerland, where she is now. She said today that she wanted to return to the front as soon as possible. Her husband is with the American fleet in the Pacific. She was captured at Wallendorf, Luxemburg, last Sept. 26. She had been an interpreter and secretary.

[The German radio said last November that the first American woman to be captured on the west front was Mrs. Gertrude Legender, of New York.]

25 Americans Killed in Air Crash in Egypt

KHARTOUM, Egypt, March 24 [Reuters].—Twenty-five Americans and one British officer were killed when a United States service aircraft crashed at Sheadi, it was learned today. The victims were buried at Khartoum.

HISTORY HAS US BY THROAT, EX-DUCE SAYS

LONDON, March 24 (AP).—A fascist broadcast, apparently emanating from northern Italy, carried a speech last night purporting to be by Benito Mussolini exhorting the Italians to "think of where we were and where we intend to return." The speech was read by an announcer, who said Mussolini had returned to his headquarters. Mussolini was quoted as saying: "History has got us by the throat and confronted us with difficult problems. Five years ago the tricolor was flying at Addis Ababa. Today Negroes stand on the soil of Tuscany. It would be better to die than to bear this. We must convince our enemies there are many Italians who will never submit to treachery."

RUSSIANS SURGE 43 MILES IN BIG DRIVE ON VIENNA

Battle for Berlin Rages, Germans Report.

LONDON, March 25 [Sunday]—(AP).—Russian tanks and infantry, smashing within 40 miles of Austria and 81 miles southeast of Vienna, have surged 43 miles across western Hungary along a 62 mile front in a great new offensive timed with the allied assault in the west, Premier Stalin disclosed last night.

Moscow said 76,000 Germans had been killed or captured recently in Hungary.

The massive break-thru in Hungary, thrusting toward southern Germany's "mountain redoubt," where the Nazis are expected to make their last ditch stand, came as Berlin reported a savage, swaying battle raging in the Nazi capital's outer defenses 31 miles east of the city.

Two Silesian Cities Taken.

The Vienna bound offensive exploded as the enemy said the Red army had built up a 17 mile long, six mile deep bridgehead across the Oder river before Berlin and had hurled new powerful forces into the assault.

At the same time, Moscow announced that Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainian army in Upper Silesia had captured the industrial cities of Neisse and Loebschuetz and were probing the Sudeten mountain defenses leading from Silesia to Brno, Prague, and Hitler's Czecho-slovak arsenal.

Far to the north, the battle for the twin isolated Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia was drawing to a close as Russian forces ground to within three miles of Danzig and less than two miles of Gdynia.

In Hungary, Marshal Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian army captured the great rail city of Veszprem and swept up more than 350 other towns and villages, Marshal Stalin announced.

Smash Nazi Attacks.

Tolbukhin's troops took the offensive after smashing to a standstill counter-attacks by 11 German tank divisions which in the last three months had recaptured some territory west of Budapest taken by the Russians last December.

Routing the Germans, Tolbukhin's troops killed 70,000 and captured more than 6,000, Moscow said. Soviet war bulletins during the last three days have announced the capture or annihilation of 121,000 enemy troops. Some 745 German tanks and 800 guns were destroyed.

The Russians recaptured the great rail center of Szekesferhvar, 32 miles southwest of Budapest, then rolled forward as much as 27 miles beyond their December positions.

They captured Mor, 38 miles southwest of Budapest, and pushed across the Bakony hills to break into the open plains leading to Vienna.

Within 22 Miles of Gyor.

The Germans said that Tolbukhin's forces, which were within 57 miles east of the great rail city of Szo, near the Austro-Hungarian border, were battering at the approaches to Komarom, key Danube city citadel 84 miles east of Vienna.

The Russians also moved to within 22 miles southeast of Gyor, the greatest communication center in western Hungary.

INTER-AMERICAN POST GIVEN TO NEW YORKER, 49

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt today named Wallace K. Harrison, 49, of Huntington, N. Y., director of inter-American affairs. Harrison, an architect, has been acting executive officer of the agency since Nelson A. Rockefeller was named assistant secretary of state. His new post pays $10,000 a year.

Harrison will operate under the direction of the President and in accordance with the foreign policies as defined by the state department and administered thru the assistant secretary of state in charge of inter-American affairs, the office now held by Rockefeller.

Illinoisan Takes Prisoner and Finds It's Catching

U. S. 2D INFANTRY DIVISION IN GERMANY.—Pvt. Clarence L. Tatge of Des Plaines, Ill., was leading a Nazi prisoner along a road with not the vaguest idea of where he was going to take him. Tatge saw a soldier wearing a snow camouflage suit. "Where'll I take this guy?" he yelled. The soldier shrugged, dropped his burp gun which Tatge hadn't noticed and joined the march. The startled Yank had another prisoner to worry about.

German and Jap Graves on West Coast Desecrated

Fresno, Cal., March 24 (AP).—Twenty-four graves of persons with Japanese or German names have been desecrated in the Mountain View cemetery here within the last two weeks and efforts have been made to force the lock of a mausoleum containing the ashes of nearly 300 Japanese, Sheriff George J. Overholt said today.

INTRIGUE TO GET ARMS KING OFF BLACKLIST TOLD

Unfold Strange Story of Axel Wenner-Gren.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—An explosive disclosure of diplomatic, financial, and political intrigue is impending in the case of Axel Leonard Wenner-Gren, mysterious Swedish munitions king, who is fighting American blacklisting from Mexico City, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE learned tonight.

Files of the department of justice and reports of the state department hold a story as fantastic as an Arabian Nights adventure on the activities of the farm boy who became the Rockefeller of Sweden in building and maneuvering to maintain a financial empire valued at hundreds of millions of dollars.

Flitting across the pages of the story are a variety of personages—great, near great, and hangers-on. These include President Roosevelt, Herman Goering, Benito Mussolini, Edward Windsor and his wife, the late Prime Minister Chamberlain, Viceroy Linlithgow of India, Former Secretary of State Hull, former Undersecretary of State Welles, President Camacho of Mexico, President Prado of Peru, former Japanese Premier Hirota, former President Hoover, the late President Quezon of the Philippines, and War Man Power Commissioner McNutt.

Flynn in Picture, Too.

Also in the scenes reportedly working in secret in behalf of Wenner-Gren's drive to get off the blacklist are Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, former Democratic national chairman and political boss of the Bronx; Ben Smith, stock market operator and race track promoter; former State Sen. Jack Hastings of New York, and Theodore Hayes, Flynn's shadow. Flynn is reported by associates to be breaking off his connections with the financial mystery man.

The most startling data in the official files is evidence uncovered in recent weeks that the 67 year old Wenner-Gren, whose career rivals that of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king who committed suicide in 1932, would indicate that he is pro-Nazi, as suspected, despite his protests to the contrary.

Justice department files contain the confession of an associate of the munitions king, supported by a diary giving names, dates, places, and conversations, which alleges that Wenner-Gren took 6 million pounds [24 million dollars] out of Britain, which was part of the loot of Field Marshal Goering, and deposited it in various South American banks against the day when the Nazi leader will flee Germany.

Donation Request Told.

Another major item in the official files is Wenner-Gren's own charge that he was asked to contribute $100,000 to the Democratic national committee in order to get a visa to the United States which would permit him to fight to get his name removed from the list of blocked nationals.

The federal bureau of investigation has had agents investigating this charge with a view to arranging prosecution of anyone guilty of misrepresentation or misuse of the Democratic national committee, which had made no demand on Wenner-Gren.

As far as has been learned, there is no indication that future investigation will bring any change. The Wenner-Gren charge is said to have followed misunderstanding of a facetious remark made by a person who had no connection with the Democratic national committee or the New Deal.

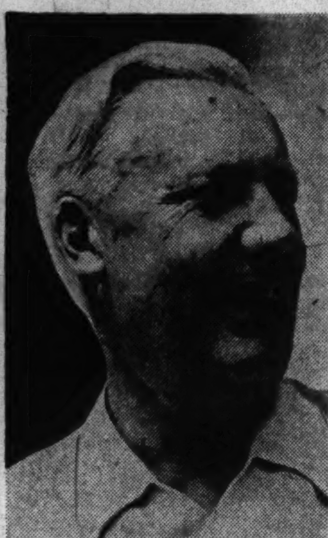
Weeks Spent in Inquiry.

Wenner-Gren, it is said, represents himself as the victim of enemies in the state department and overenthusiastic friends.

Wenner-Gren, who was born in a small Swedish town of middle class parents in 1878, came to this country as a young man. He worked as a mechanic in New Jersey to learn American production methods.

He returned to Sweden to put his learning into operation and got rich making guns, vacuum cleaners, and electric ice boxes. His interests are literally world-wide. He headed the Swedish group which took over the Krupp holdings in Bofors, Sweden, one of the leading arms plants of the world.

Intrigue Center



AXEL WENNER-GREN.

His other principal holdings are Servel and Electrolux, which are electrical appliance corporations. He also has lumber interests, mining companies, holding companies, and various corporations in a highly evolved financial network around the world.

Valued at 400 Millions.

No one in Washington knows the value of this network. Responsible persons here estimate his American holdings alone as high as 400 million dollars and say that accumulated dividends, denied him by the blacklisting, approach 40 million dollars.

Wenner-Gren's wife, who is sharing his exile, is an American. She is the former Marguerite Liggett of Kansas City, Mo.

The munitions king was a guest of the White House in 1936. It is said he tried to influence President Roosevelt on foreign affairs during a dinner. So irked was the President over Wenner-Gren's analysis of the European situation that Wenner-Gren and his wife ate the rest of their meals during their stay in their rooms.

The Wenner-Grens widened their acquaintanceship during a world cruise on their yacht, the Southern Cross. He met Mussolini in Rome, was the guest of Viceroy Linlithgow in India, entertained President Quezon and McNutt, then Philippine high commissioner, met the then Jap Prime Minister Hirota who reportedly spoke to Wenner-Gren so frankly that, on the advice of former President Hoover, Wenner-Gren tried unsuccessfully to see Secretary of State Hull to inform him of Jap designs.

Denies Link to Nazis.

Wenner-Gren has stoutly insisted that he was never linked to the Nazis and that all his actions were motivated by his anxiety for his native land, Sweden; by grave concern for the cause of democracy, of which he professed to be an ardent disciple, and by humanitarian considerations.

He admits he first met Goering at Nuremberg on Sept. 11, 1936. He said Goering made "a better impression than I had expected."

When the European situation became tense in late 1938 and early 1939, and Wenner-Gren's friendship with Goering had ripened, he offered to present Goering's views to then Prime Minister Chamberlain. He says he corresponded with Chamberlain, Goering, and Capt. David Margesson, later British minister of war.

At the outbreak of the war Wenner-Gren was cruising aboard his yacht and rescued 399 persons from the British liner Athenia, which was sunk without warning Sept. 1, 1939.

To Italy with Welles.

In 1940 Wenner-Gren sailed to Italy on the same ship as former Undersecretary of State Welles, who was on a special mission to explore the prospects of peace. He hovered about the Welles party, of which the writer was a member, having been assigned to cover the mission. Also aboard and wooed by Wenner-Gren was Myron Taylor, the President's personal envoy to the Vatican.

At Rome, Goering had a plane waiting for Wenner-Gren and whisked him off to his Karen hall estate for a conference in advance of Welles' visit. Wenner-Gren returned to the United States on the same ship with the diplomat. Once more he tried to pump members of the party for information.

Later the same year Wenner-Gren was in Rio de Janeiro offering Brazilians exploitation of their steel industry by a Swedish-German combine. His movements were followed closely by American observers, who noted a connection between his wining and dining of South Americans aboard his yacht whenever the United States was attempting to make business deals and the collapse of some of these deals.

In 1941 he earned the title of "Rockefeller of Sweden" by a gift of $7,500,000 for a research institution. He also established an aeronautical laboratory at the University of Kentucky and set up the Viking fund, a philanthropic body.

About this time Wenner-Gren and his wife and his yacht turned up at Nassau where a friendship ripened with the Windsors. Gov. Windsor and his wife were brought to the United States aboard his yacht.

Friendship Cools.

This friendship, which flowered rapidly, cooled almost as rapidly and the Wenner-Grens went to Peru and from there to Mexico City, where they have remained since. According to the petition, he was invited to Mexico by President Camacho in order to project development of Mexican resources and to aid in the industrialization of the country.

Previously, he said, he had been invited by the president of Peru on his visit there to study Peruvian development. On that visit he undertook some archeological explorations and reported findings which allegedly were a distinct contribution to education.

Wenner-Gren also met Ben Smith, the Canadian promoter, and reportedly joined with him in such ventures as the Hippodromo, Mexico City's famous race track, and a resort hotel project at Acapulco. He also met former State Sen. Hastings at this time.

Big Program Outlined.

Early in 1942, Hastings announced in Mexico City that Wenner-Gren was about to undertake a 400 million dollar financial program which would include development of paper mills along Swedish lines, extension of Mexican railways, establishment of a revolving fund for industrial development, and creation of a road program to be undertaken until an expected 30 million dollar road fund would come from the United States.

Within a few days Wenner-Gren was placed on the American blacklist along with 1,800 other persons and firms. Wenner-Gren is said to have had knowledge of the action three hours before it was released to the nation by the state department. This leak is still being sought by the department of justice.

Wenner-Gren has blamed Hastings' "ill-advised and inaccurate announcement" for the United States' action, holding that this government evidently did not want him operating on such a wide scale in an integral unit of hemisphere defense. He also blamed personal enmity of George S. Messerschmidt, United States ambassador to Mexico, who, as consul general in Berlin, was aware of the Wenner-Gren-Goering friendship.

An Old Flame Appears.

Here the story of the Swedish industrialist takes a romantic turn. A childhood sweetheart of Wenner-Gren, the mother of David Olson, Louisville, Ky., theater owner, noted the blacklisting and urged her son to aid him for old times sake.

Olson, who had met Wenner-Gren on a visit to Sweden, called upon Warren Whyte Grimes, Washington attorney, to undertake to have the Swedish industrialist removed from the blacklist. Grimes once had law offices with Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley, ambassador to China and former secretary of war, and was considered for the post of head of the federal bureau of investigation which finally went to J. Edward Hoover.

Grimes saw Wenner-Gren in Mexico City and told him he would represent him as long as he was convinced Wenner-Gren was innocent of Nazi connections. Wenner-Gren gave his solemn assurance that at no time had he been involved in any dealings with the enemy.

Grimes instituted proceedings to get a temporary visa to enter the

INTRIGUE TO GET ARMS KING OFF BLACKLIST TOLD

United States so that Wenner-Gren might plead in his own behalf.

Grimes received no money from Wenner-Gren. What fees he has received for his efforts in the latter's behalf came from Olson, who lost interest in the action when his mother died last year.

Meets "Paving Blocks" Flynn.

"Paving Blocks" Flynn, who is now reported attempting to play the role of dove of peace between the Vatican and the Kremlin, entered the picture in 1943. In April of that year Flynn, who has one of the largest politico-legal practices in the country, was introduced to Wenner-Gren by Ben Smith.

Data on this meeting and others between Wenner-Gren and Flynn are contained in reports from FBI operatives in Mexico City.

Wenner-Gren told friends last month that Flynn was active in his behalf. He described his status with Flynn as that of client and attorney, altho Flynn's name does not appear on the alien agent register as prescribed by law.

Wenner-Gren said Flynn had undertaken to smooth the way for the visa with Secretary of State Stettinius when the latter was undersecretary and again after he became secretary. Flynn is now out of the country and cannot be reached for questioning on the case. However, his New York associates expect he will drop relations with Wenner-Gren, if he ever had any, in view of recent developments.

Millions Deposited.

This latest episode in the case arose late in January when an associate of the munitions king decided to tell his story. In this story, Wenner-Gren allegedly withdrew 6 million pounds which Goering had concealed in London, carried it across the ocean in the yacht Southern Cross, and deposited it in various South American capitals so it might be picked up by the Nazi leader should he escape, or go to his heirs.

Immediately after these charges became known to Grimes he withdrew from the case. Grimes acknowledges his withdrawal which is a matter of public record in the department of justice. He declined to discuss other aspects of the case.

Wenner-Gren has told his lawyers that he had been asked to pay a bribe in the form of a $100,000 contribution to the Democratic party but had refused to do so even to get at the millions of dollars of his funds which have been tied up by the blacklisting. Even tho Wenner-Gren is blacklisted, the American, British, and other allied countries are dealing with his firms.

THE TRIBUNE has learned that an American citizen, in Mexico City for his health, had attempted to discourage Wenner-Gren from offering $50,000 to a former politician to undertake some work in his behalf. In an interview the American said such an offer would be nothing more than a bribe as much as if Wenner-Gren offered $100,000 to the Democratic national committee.

Probe Still Going On.

This American's story evidently has not satisfied the department of justice. It is reported the department is still investigating with a view to prosecution.

In Mexico City Wenner-Gren has sought to interview in his behalf every American of standing. Many have been invited to his estate where the old wining and dining formula has been employed. The more cautious have gone no further than an office meeting with him.

A number of Americans have shunned him, being suspicious. Notable among these was the former postmaster general, James A. Farley, who was in Mexico last year in behalf of the Coca-Cola corporation. He was invited to meet Wenner-Gren but purposely dodged him.

FOUND DEAD IN AUTO.

Fred Tichelar, 67, of 1520 N. Springfield av. was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in his automobile at his home. A rubber hose led from the exhaust pipe to a window of the car. He was discharged from the merchant marines last fall after 40 years of service.

WALL ST. RIDES HIGH IN NEW DEAL WIRE RULE PLAN

'Money Changers' Rally Under F. D. R. Banner.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—The administration's scheme to merge all United States overseas communications systems into a single government supervised and privately owned corporation has focused attention on the heavy Wall st. influence in the New Deal.

When President Roosevelt took office on March 4, 1933, he rejoiced that "the money changers have fled from their seats in the temple of our civilization" in declaring war on Wall st. in his first inaugural address.

Since that day many of the high seats in the New Deal have come to be occupied by persons from Wall Street. This was brought sharply to the attention of congress when Navy Secretary Forrestal appeared before a senate interstate commerce subcommittee Monday to urge that cables, telegraph, radio, and press wireless should be included in a mandatory consolidation.

Forrestal came to the New Deal from the New York investment banking house of Dillon, Reed & Co. where he was interested in mergers and consolidations as one means of earning an ample livelihood.

Big Firms Involved.

The proposed communication consolidation has brought a sharp interplay of financial interests. Among those who are bidding for the major role in American international communications are the Radio Corporation of America and International Telephone and Telegraph, which long have had Wall st. affiliations.

In advocating the consolidation as a spokesman for an administration which has publicly opposed and prosecuted alleged monopolies, Forrestal asserted that historical American principles of free enterprise and free competition will not be impaired because communications are the "warp and woof," of international society and therefore are a matter of state rather than private interest.

Forrestal is one of four cabinet members with Wall st. connections. The others are Secretary of State Stettinius, Secretary of War Stimson, and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Headed U. S. Steel.

Stettinius is the son of a late J. P. Morgan partner and came to the New Deal from New York City where he was president of the United States Steel corporation, which the elder Morgan organized in 1901.

Stimson was a member of the Wall st. law firm of Winthrop and Stimson. His undersecretary, Robert P. Patterson, also was a Wall st. lawyer in the firm of Root, Clark, Buckner, and Howland before he was appointed to the federal bench.

Morgenthau is the son of a Wall st. lawyer and investment banker. His father created an investment trust for Morgenthau which is his chief source of income.

Various Wall st. houses and law firms have heavy representation in the administration. The Morgan interests have Henry S. Morgan, son of the late J. P. Morgan, and F. Trubee Davidson, brother of a Morgan partner, high in war department counsels. Artemus Gates, president of the New York Trust company, a Morgan bank, is assistant secretary of the navy for air.

Kuhn, Loeb and Co., New York investment bankers, has a heavy representation in the government. Partners Benjamin J. Buttonweiser, John M. Schiff, and Lewis Straus were given important posts in the navy department and Partner Frederick Warburg a strategic seat in the war department.

The Harriman interests, concentrated in the New York private banking house of Brown Brothers and Harriman, and in the investment banking houses of Harriman, Ripley and Co., are well represented in the administration. Partner W. Averell Harriman is ambassador to Russia and Partner Robert A. Lovett is assistant secretary of war.

Lehmans Represented.

The investment banking firm of Lehman Brothers also has important administration connections. Partner John M. Hancock is serving as an assistant to Bernard M. Baruch, capitalist, who is official adviser to the office of war mobilization, headed by James F. Byrnes, and unofficial adviser to the White House. Former Partner Herbert Lehman is acting director of foreign relief and rehabilitation.

Bonbright & Co., New York investment bankers, is represented by Sidney A. Mitchell, son of the late Sidney Z. Mitchell, founder of Electric Bond and Share corporation. The younger Mitchell is chief of the navy finance section.

Hundreds of lesser Wall st. figures hold various desk jobs in the government. Large advertising firms with important Wall st. connections hold many key New Deal posts.

Scores of men from Wall st. law firms hold important government posts. Davis, Polk, Wardwell, and Klendl, which represents the Morgan interests; Wright, Gordon Zachary, and Parlin, which represents Dillon, Reed and Co., and Cravath, De Gersdorff, Swaine, and Wood, which represents, Kuhn, Loeb and Co. are among the law firms with heavy representation in the New Deal.

Some bankers have already returned to Wall st., including Ferdinand Eberstadt, president of F. Eberstadt and Co. and former war production board vice chairman, and Sidney Weinberg, partner of Goldman, Sachs & Co., and former chief assistant to WPB Chairman Nelson.

FRENCH REPORT GARRISON'S FALL IN INDO-CHINA

PARIS, March 24 (AP).—The French Indo-Chinese garison of Hue, midway along the Indo-China coast, has surrendered after a three day heroic resistance against the Japanese, a French bulletin announced today.

Other French and native guerrillas in attacks on Japanese communications have ruptured the enemy's lines between the northern Indo-Chinese coast and the interior Mekong river valley, inflicting "important destructions," the French said.

U. S. MUST KEEP JAP ISLES, SAYS SERVICE JOURNAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—The unofficial but authoritative Army and Navy Journal today urged that the Japanese mandated islands, captured by the United States, should remain under the American flag.

This is the view of Adm. Nimitz and Adm. Halsey, both of whom recently were in Washington, the publication said.

International trusteeship for the islands was opposed on the ground that Britain, France, the Netherlands, Australia, and New Zealand will never accept trusteeship of islands which American troops helped them regain.

Painful Losses to Take.

The Journal said that conduct of the war in the Pacific necessitated the acquisition of Jap island bases which took time and effort to build as well as painful losses to take.

"Today thanks to the heroic gallantry of our fleets and their air power and the marines and troops we have secured communications that now reach to Iwo Jima, and are in occupation of Manila and strategic points of the Philippines," the journal said. "What is to be the ultimate disposition of the Japanese mandated islands that we spent our blood to conquer, and which are essential for the protection of our west coast and our lines to the Philippines and the far east, is a question to be solved.

"It has been proposed that these islands together with all other territory taken from our enemies, shall be under an international trusteeship to replace the one power mandate the Japanese enjoyed. It is pointed out that if the forces to be employed against an aggressor, which the security council of the peace and security organization would designate, are to be promptly effective, they must have access to bases whether unilaterally or jointly controlled. Doubtless out of this reasoning has come the idea of the international trusteeship. Also to be avoided is any violation of the self denial pledge regarding territorial aggrandizement of the Atlantic Charter.

Protection of U. S. Interests.

"The President's attitude regarding the future of the Micronesian Islands has not yet been revealed, but in view of his convictions on the necessity of bases for our defense, no one doubts he will require a solution which will protect adequately our interests. Undoubtedly, the American thought is that the Pacific islands shall remain under the American flag.

"This is known to be the judgment Admirals Nimitz and Halsey expressed on their last trip to Washington. It is pointed out that Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, France, and the Netherlands never would accept a trusteeship for the islands we helped them to regain—Guadalcanal and Tarawa are two that cost us heavily—and others which they hold under mandate, and upon a number of which we have built war installations to increase their security.

"In the interest of the long range protection of the United States, most of our army and navy and especially our air strategists, feel that the islands in the Pacific we have taken from Japan shall be acknowledged by our allies as American, and therefore be transformed as we wish into bases for our protection. The matter is receiving the consideration of the house naval committee, and no one doubts it will require that we shall have unilateral control of the islands, and that the matter of international trusteeship shall be disregarded."

KOISO CALLS ON 100,000,000 JAP PEOPLE TO FIGHT

San Francisco, March 25 (AP).—Tokyo today announced government orders for formation of a "people's volunteer army" and quoted Premier Koiso: "The time is here for the 100 million people of Japan to man their posts and participate."

Tokyo broadcasts said the question of martial law for all Japan was before the house of peers. The proposal would empower the armed forces to confiscate any or all "land, buildings, and material" and assign any or all citizens to "military works."

As Koiso made his "volunteer" plea, Vice Minister of War Lt. Gen. Kenshiro Shibyama said "martial law will not necessarily be proclaimed together with the application of the emergency measure."

50% OF MARINE IWO CASUALTIES REPORTED TO KIN

Washington, March 24 (AP).—Lt. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the marine corps, said today more than half of the Iwo Jima casualties already have been reported to the next of kin.

He said notification was being made more rapidly than in any previous marine campaign altho there were more marines involved there than in any other single Pacific action. The general said that in early weeks of the drive, casualty reporting units themselves were under almost constant fire.

The latest official announcement of casualties on Iwo was made March 16 when it was reported 15,308 were wounded, 4,189 were killed, and 441 were missing.

2 MILLION BOOKS LOST IN JAPS' MANILA FIRES

MANILA, P. I., March 24 (AP).—More than two million books, including the National library's priceless and irreplaceable 70,000 Filipiniana collection of books and documents, were destroyed during the Japanese burning of Manila, Otley Beyer of the University of the Philippines said today. The professor is saving the remains of the Philippine cultural institutions' libraries. The Filipiniana collection, considered the world's best, was in the basement of the wrecked legislative building, used as a Japanese strongpoint.

MacARTHUR'S AIR FORCE BATTERS FORMOSA BASES

145 Tons of Bombs Hit Island's Fields.

MANILA, March 25 [Sunday] —(AP).—Heavy bombers dropped 145 tons of bombs on airdromes and a naval air base on Formosa Friday, raided Cebu Island in the central Philippines with 116 tons, and destroyed or damaged nine freighters and tankers in the China and Sulu seas.

Gen. MacArthur said the Liberators, "continuing the destruction of the enemy air force on Formosa," hit the Tainan airdrome and the Okayama naval air base. Many planes were put out of action, gun emplacements were silenced, and fires and explosions were observed in hangars, warehouses, and rail yards.

Advance Nine Miles.

On Cebu, the big bombers flew with attack planes and fighter-bombers to attack installations around Cebu City, midway along the east coast. MacArthur said fires and explosions indicated the destruction of stores and ammunition.

Elements of the 11th air borne division advanced nine miles south of Batangas to clear completely the shores of Batangas bay on the Verde Island passage, vital shipping lane into Manila.

Gain in North Luzon.

General advances on the northern Luzon fronts also were reported. MacArthur said the fighting was difficult in the first corps sector, where the 25th and 32d divisions were reducing enemy strongpoints in the Balete pass and Villa Verde corridors.

Patrol bombers damaged a small freighter in the Okina Islands and two others south of Hong Kong. Off Swatow a direct hit was scored on a 10,000 ton tanker, previously damaged, and its complete destruction was certain.

NEW JAP DRIVES GAINING GROUND, CHINESE REPORT

CHUNGKING, China, March 24 (AP).—The Chinese high command announced tonight the loss of Icheng, Han river town 145 miles northwest of Hankow, as the new Japanese offensive in central China gained momentum. Icheng is only 55 miles from Laohokow, a United States 14th air force base.

The Chinese also announced that Jap forces striking southwestward in Honan province on a 90 mile front stretching from Lushan to the Peiping-Hankow railroad town of Chumatien had made further advances, as much as 25 miles in some sectors. This drive is aimed at seizing wheat crops and other resources.

STRONGARMED BY 4 MEN.

Four men strongarmed Frank M. Elwell, 3825 Harrison st., in the rear of 606 Independence blvd., early yesterday and robbed him of his wallet containing $1 and a key chain, he reported to police.

FOUR LUZON G. I.s TAKE A FILIPINO BABY TO HEARTS

Chicago Yank Among the 'Mothers.'

WITH THE 33D DIVISION IN THE PHILIPPINES [By mail].—Lt. Col. Durand Smith, commanding officer of the 108th medical battalion, and a former Chicagoan, noticed one of his non-coms, Corp. Donald H. Huff, walking around half asleep recently.

"What's the matter, Huff?" the colonel asked. "Didn't you get any sleep last night?"

Huff, who hails from Decatur, looked up with reddened eyes. "Not much, sir," he replied. "I was up all night walking the baby."

This answer, coming from an unmarried soldier nearly 10,000 miles from home, surprised the colonel. He decided to investigate, which brought to light the story of Orphan Annie and her four foster fathers.

Found Nearly Dead.

It was during the 33d's push on Baguio that men of Company G of the 136th Infantry found Orphan Annie, an infant Filipino girl, and her aged grandfather lying on the bank of a mountain stream.

Naked, emaciated, and suffering terribly from fever, mosquito, and insect bites, the two were more dead than alive. Later, at a medical collecting station, strengthened by food and care, the grandfather told of the Jap brutalities that had cost the lives of all the members of the Amago family but his and that of his granddaughter.

Even before the baby, Lorenzia, 1, was pronounced out of danger by Capt. Louis De Gaetano, Brooklyn, N. Y., there came a deluge of offers to "mother" Lorenzia.

Chicagoan Is a "Mother."

Finally selected were Sgt. W. Kobett, St. Paul, Minn., Corp. Huff, Sgt. Charles W. Gordon, Champaign, Ill., and Sgt. Leo. R. Heine, 4827 N. Lawndale av., Chicago. Sgt. Heine, who is single, was supply man for a pin ball manufacturer in civilian life; Huff was a barber; Kobett a butcher, and Gordon a restaurant manager.

The "Little Mothers" club was duly organized and its G. I. members entered upon their new duties with the same gravity that they had devoted to the business of Jap killing. Nor were they aided by army regulations. There wasn't anything in the book to cover the situation.

From bamboo the four "mothers" fashioned a crib, and a medicine bottle was turned into a nursing bottle. Triangular wound dressings were found ideal for diapers, and from damaged parachute silk trigger-trained fingers lovingly created baby clothing best described as "serviceable."

G. I.'s Contribute Talcum.

Enough toilet materials and talcum powder to outfit a foundling asylum were donated by the rest of the men in the outfit, who shared a discoverer's interest in the Filipino tot, and from the off-duty roster was made up a "baby walking" detail.

Care for the infant made up in tenderness what it lacked in skill, and little Annie's cries soon turned to coos.

But the inevitable order came to return the baby to civilian hands. Lt. Col. J. M. Arvey, Chicago attorney and civil affairs officer for the 33d, arranged to place the child in a good home and to hospitalize the grandfather.

SPAIN ORDERS DIPLOMATIC AID TO JAPS ENDED

Acts After Protest Over Atrocities in Manila.

MADRID, March 24 (AP).—Spain, backing up her stern protest over the bayoneting of Spanish civilians by Japanese fleeing Manila, announced today that all Spanish diplomatic missions abroad had been ordered to cease representing Japanese interests.

[The Japanese news agency Domei quoted Sadao Iguchi, spokesman of the board of information, in a Tokyo broadcast, as "categorically" denying that Japanese troops had committed atrocities against Spaniards in the Philippines.]

Note Sent to Tokyo.

The government's announcement, which came as the new United States ambassador, Norman Armour, presented his credentials to Generalissimo Franco, said Spain also had dispatched an "energetic demand for satisfaction" to the Tokyo government for the attacks on the Spanish nationals, which it termed "premeditated murder," and for the destruction of Spanish property in the Philippines. A note protesting the attacks was sent to Tokyo Monday.

Thursday night the government announced that 172 Spanish men, women, and children had been bayoneted to death by Japanese troops while American divisions were seizing Manila.

[All the members of the Franciscan order in Manila except two were burned alive by the Japanese, stated a telegram received by the provincial head of the Franciscan order in Madrid from Father Mathias of New York, a Reuters dispatch said. The telegram added that eight Clare nuns were also killed and nine seriously injured, and four convents and churches were destroyed.]

Spain Warned by Germany.

Germany, it was reliably reported, has presented a note to Spain saying that any Madrid action against Japan would be considered by the reich as an unfriendly act.

[Spain's decision to abandon representing Japanese interests created a profound impression in Argentine diplomatic circles, a dispatch from Buenos Aires said. Argentina's military government currently is debating whether to declare war on the axis and any Spanish move in that direction certainly will be taken into consideration. Many Argentine nationalists who have opposed any war declaration long have looked to Madrid for inspiration.]

The ceremony in which Armour presented his credentials to Franco was notably brief. There were no speeches in the 10 minute function. Afterward the new abmassador talked only a few minutes with Franco.

JAP WAR CALLS FOR MAKING NEW ARMS, SAYS KRUG

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—Filling up the supply pipe line to the Pacific theater will demand continued high war production well into the period following German collapse, War Production Board Chairman Krug said today.

Krug agreed with his vice chairman, William L. Batt, who said the army and air forces would have to be "pretty completely reëquipped" for the war against Japan, since it would be "simply not practicable" to reassemble, repair, and transport material from Europe along with the troops—the men will be moved too fast.

This does not contradict the army's claim that it will salvage "as much equipment as possible" for use against the Japanese, Krug stated.

BRITISH BATTLE JAPS TRAPPED NEAR MANDALAY

CALCUTTA, India, March 24 (AP).—Pitched battles between British armor and Japanese troops caught in the Myingyan-Meiktila-Mandalay triangle were reported today as the enemy fought to escape from central Burma. The enemy force was originally estimated at 30,000.

Allied occupation of Meiktila has cut the Japanese escape routes to the south and unless the enemy can break thru there, only narrow trails eastward to Thailand still remain open.

OUR STAKES IN ASIA ARE YOUNG AMERICANS.

The Japanese are pinned against their own sea wall. Their fleet has been beaten. Our carrier planes found what was left of it in the inland sea and inflicted heavy damage. If we haven't done so already, the time is near when we can bomb the Japanese navy out of existence. Our airplanes have made life in the Japanese cities intolerable.

The blockade grows steadily tighter. Japan can no longer count upon drawing supplies by sea from Java, Borneo, Indo-China, and the rest of her southern conquests. Our submarines and planes have taken a heavy toll of her ships plying to Chinese ports, and the time is coming soon, if it is not already here, when our sea and air power will play havoc with the Japanese fishing fleet everywhere, including the waters leased by Russia.

Tokyo is bombed and burns. The imperial premises are hit and Premier Koiso, in his own lights a most unhappy man, apologizes for allowing the imperial timbers to shiver under the imperial eye. What the Japanese thought was impossible and what they think is incredible has happened. They have been defeated and humiliated in a war they were sure they couldn't lose.

Their defeat in the Philippines is conclusive. In Leyte and Luzon they have lost 200,000 killed, which is some measure of reparation for the Bataan death march just as Tokyo under bombs offers expiation for the murdered airmen. Gen. MacArthur has restored the government to President Osmena. The liberation of the Filipinos in all their islands is assured.

The Japanese have been exterminated likewise on the islands they used in their approach to our own coast. Adm. Nimitz now has his headquarters on Guam. The Pacific is an American sea. The enemy has lost control of his own waters and sea lanes. These accomplishments about cover the principal American stake in the war. They were achieved while the United States was employing by far the largest armies in the attack on Germany from the west and also was supplying Russia with the motor transport, planes, and other material necessary for its drives in the east.

What remains to be done in the war against Japan involves almost exclusively the interests of other nations. The principle of responsibility has been recognized in New Guinea. Part of the island is claimed by Australia. Australian forces, therefore, have been given the task of clearing out the remaining Japanese and establishing their own jurisdiction. American sea power seals the island off and makes its recovery possible. The arrangement is fair. It is the only one which takes into account proprietary claims and obligations. It should be applied elsewhere. The United States has no valuable possessions to recover in Asia, no ports, territories, plantations, or cheap labor, no tin, rubber, oil, or other resources or commercial advantages. It is not returning to Asia as a landholder. It has rejected the imperial system.

At Cairo in December, 1943, Mr. Roosevelt joined in a statement which said what he, Mr. Churchill, and Chiang Kai-shek proposed to do to Japan after unconditional surrender. They gave Manchuria, Formosa, and the Pescadores back to China, promised Korea independence "in due course," and said that Japan would be expelled "from all other territory she has taken by violence and greed." The "unrelenting pressure" the three said would be used against Japan has been applied only by the United States.

The British want Burma, Malaya, Singapore, and, apparently, Hong Kong. The French want Indo-China. The Dutch want the Netherlands Indies. The Chinese want their own soil. The Russians, sooner or later, will want Manchuria. That about indicates the field of action in the zones of interest. If the United States holds Japan within its present confines and to its present restricted action the dispossessed property owners seeking recovery should be able to move in for the kill.

America's stake in what has become the Asiatic rather than the Pacific war is the lives of young Americans. They have done a superb job by land, sea, and air in bringing Japan to its present condition. They have fought victoriously from Guadalcanal to Iwo Jima, from the Aleutians to the waters of Australia. From the ice to the jungles they have taken the measure of the enemy. They overcame the almost impossible distances involved. They have neutralized or eliminated Japan's natural advantages and have occupied the positions from which the mortal wounds can be delivered. Japan knows that it has been beaten and by whom. The experience is new. It may cause a radical change in Japanese military thought for years to come.

Some Americans may want to ride white horses in the streets of Tokyo, put Hirohito in a prisoner's cage, destroy the divinity myth, and hunt the Japs down thruout their home islands on the speculation that American lives expended now will save the lives of Americans one, two, or more generations hence. The down payment will be high, and the future return is purely speculative.

There is a more economical way of safeguarding the future, more economical of our greatest assets in the Pacific, the lives of young Americans who have earned safe passage home. It is to keep the island bases which command Japan's good behavior. If they are surrendered into any other hands, no matter whose hands, the peace, regardless of its terms and conditions, becomes an uncertain one for the United States. The Japs are not fools. If they'd known what they were going against there would have been no war. They know now.

THE PEOPLE'S WILL.

Voters of Florida at the last election approved a constitutional amendment upholding what is called the right to work and forbidding any employer to make a closed shop contract with a labor union. The war labor board, in orders directed to several Florida employers who have had closed shop contracts with unions, has ignored the Florida constitution and required the employers to renew the contracts.

The controversy will reach the courts in time. When it does it will pose a very pretty question to the judges, particularly those of New Deal predilections. The whole legal philosophy of New Deal lawyers has been that the courts must not stand in the way of legislative bodies in their effort to work so-called reforms. By this philosophy a New Dealer would seem bound to hold with the citizens of Florida, inasmuch as the constitutional amendment was not merely an expression by the legislature, but such an expression specifically ratified by the people of the state.

But the New Dealers are also committed to widen as greatly as possible the power of organized labor. They will have to choose between favoring a restriction on unions and acknowledging that their high flown contentions that the will of the people must prevail in all instances have been merely so much patter, designed to give a sham philosophical justification for class legislation.

Florida is not the only state in which measures restrictive of labor unions have been adopted recently. There is a general feeling in the country that the power granted labor organizations is dangerous unless restricted by some sort of public regulation. The labor movement, in an increasing number of instances, will find itself defending the status quo. Instead of trying to tear down old barriers, it will be seeking to hold what it has. It will be interesting to see whether organized labor in these circumstances retains its faith, previously expressed in such unbounded terms, in the will of the people.

Labor and most of the soft thinkers who call themselves liberals have often been loud proponents of the initiative and referendum, by which it is contended that the sovereign voters can by-pass a recalcitrant legislature and, by petition and ballot, write their will into the statutes. Experience has shown that the process has many defects. The statute is not subjected to the examination and debate of the legislative process. It is as its proponents want it, without compromise. And it can be put on the statute books by a transitory majority.

It is doubtful whether the Illinois legislature as it now is constituted, with every member extremely sensitive to minority as well as majority opinion in his district, would enact restrictive laws that would seriously damage organized labor. Under initiative and referendum the prospects of such enactment would be considerably greater. A large majority in downstate Illinois, assisted by a sizable minority in Chicago, might in exasperation at abuses of present privileges put laws on the books that would seriously harm, not only labor unions, but, by the violence of their provisions, the economic welfare of the whole state as well.

CHICAGO'S BRIGHTEST HOPE.

Chicago, merely as a marketing and distribution center for the vastly rich farm lands of the middle west, would have been a considerable city, larger presumably than Indianapolis or the Twin Cities or even our rival of 80 years ago, St. Louis. But Chicago as it is, one of the world's metropolitan centers, has been made by transportation.

The city grew not merely because it was a transportation center, but because its transportation favored the growth of tremendous industries serving not only the middle west but the world. The original source of that stimulus is ended. American railroad development may have reached its peak 35 years ago, and in recent years we have torn up more miles of track than we have built in this country. Chicago can hope to hold what it has, but for further development the city must look to other forms of transportation.

Chicago is a potential center of international air commerce. In the Graphic Section today, Frank Sturdy, aviation editor of THE TRIBUNE, tells what those potentialities are. He quotes the heads of leading American air transport companies on their expectations of air traffic from Chicago, not merely to other American cities, but to Moscow, and Buenos Aires, and Shanghai, and Paris.

The airplane has abolished coast lines. The economic advantages that seaports have reaped since men first began to sail the sea, as the handlers and transshippers of the products and passenger traffic of the interior, are gone. No longer is it necessary for passengers from the Mississippi valley to start their trips abroad from New York, San Francisco, or some other coastal city. Chicagoans bound overseas will go out of their way if they fly by way of these seaports.

The extent to which the great circle routes are traveled will depend in very large measure on the terminal facilities made available in Chicago. Our present airport is about as good as any in the United States, but it will be outmoded within five years by the larger planes and air traffic volume expected after the war.

Chicago has five years in which to act; not a very long time in view of the magnitude of the project. If we are not ready in 1950, we run the hazard that the air traffic pattern will be set, and once set it will be difficult or impossible for us to regain traffic that we can have if we act promptly. On air traffic, more than any other single factor, depends the future possibilities of Chicago's growth. If we let this opportunity escape us, those responsible will be guilty of criminal negligence.

HISTORY OF THE PACIFIC

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

We have seen how the American Revolution freed the 13 colonies; how they extended the nation to the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific ocean, and afterward freed the Spanish American countries, and showed Canada the road to self-government. How the American spirit and American institutions have crossed the Pacific will be this evening's study.

Not long after Columbus discovered America, Vasco de Gama turned the Cape of Good Hope and set the precedent for all his successors, Dutch, Spanish, French, Russian, German, and English, in plundering the people of the orient, all unable to protect themselves.

No republican power like the United States arose in the orient to free itself and succor its unfortunate neighbors. Australia and New Zealand, to be sure, have recently obtained much independence, but they have maintained the rapacious attitude of the Europeans toward the unfortunate, which calls to mind that our escutcheon is not without its blots.

In recent years our government has imposed upon Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Alaska tyrannous governments bitterly resented by their populations, who have been crying aloud to the American people for relief.

Puerto Rico, as we know, was taken from Spain by conquest. The Virgin Islands were purchased from Denmark. Alaska was our first step in acquiring noncontiguous territory.

Russian settlements on Alaska were burned by British warships during the Crimean war. In revenge for that war, the Russian navy moved into American ports prepared to attack British commerce if Great Britain interfered in our Civil war. In payment for this Secretary of State Seward bought Alaska from the czar.

Aside from some gold discoveries, it has as yet been of small economic importance. At the outbreak of our war with Japan, it became first a shield protecting Canada and more recently a base for furnishing airplanes to Russia and for bombarding the northern Japanese islands.

In the early days of our Republic, our merchant ships, excluded from so much of the world by the various empires, turned to the North Pacific. There trade consisted chiefly of whaling, which took the whalers all over the Pacific, and of the export of Oregon and California furs to China, with return freights of Chinese goods to the eastern United States.

After the British in the Opium war had seized Hong Kong and forced the opening of the Chinese ports, America by peaceful diplomacy obtained the same concessions and also the good will of the Chinese. Our relations with the other nations of the orient were without schemes of territorial aggrandizement.

In 1839 the same Comdr. Wilkes who was to be so active in freeing and annexing California came to Pago Pago harbor in the Samoan Islands. He established friendly relations with the natives already concerned about European imperialism and recommended to his government that we acquire the harbor and the right to protect the natives from aggression. No action was taken on his suggestion at that time other than to send a consul to the islands.

In 1872 the native chiefs offered this country possession of the harbor of Pago Pago in return for protection against Germany and Great Britain. When the senate refused to ratify the treaty, Samoan chiefs sent a delegation to President Grant asking the United States to "annex these islands." This request was refused, but Secretary of State Fish sent one Steinberger to render a full account of conditions in Samoa. Under his advice the Samoans established a constitution, with a king elected for a period of four years, and an elective legislature. They appointed Steinberger prime minister, a position which he held for many years and until forcibly removed on a British warship.

In 1878, at the request of the Samoans, the United States accepted Pago Pago harbor and in return agreed to employ its good offices to adjust any difference that should arise between Samoa and a foreign power. Said Article V.:

> If, unhappily, any differences should have arisen or shall hereafter arise, between the Samoan government and any other government in amity with the United States, the government of the latter will employ its good offices for the purpose of adjusting those differences upon a satisfactory and solid foundation.

President Cleveland practically extended the Monroe Doctrine to them when he said: "The moral interests of the United States, with respect to the islands of the Pacific, dependent in greater or less degree upon our own American system of commonwealths, would counsel us to look with concern on any movement by which the independence of these splendid nationalities might be extinguished by their passage under the domination of a foreign sovereign."

In spite of this declaration, Germany undertook severe coercive measures against the natives which led the United States to "employ its good offices" with Germany as it had promised to do when accepting Pago Pago harbor. In the conversations which followed, the American commissioners found Bismarck, at that time practically autocrat of Europe, overbearing and irritable. He was apparently using the technique he found successful in Europe and which Hitler was to imitate in years to come. Secretary of State Blaine was not perturbed. He said: "The extent of the chancellor's irritability is not the measure of American rights."

In 1889 the United States, Great Britain, and Germany formed a little league of nations to administer the islands, and when this broke down, the islands were divided between the United States and Germany while England took compensation in the Solomon and Tonga Islands, later to be conquered by the Japanese and retaken by the Americans with great loss.

Historians are puzzled as to why these tiny islands brought three great nations to the brink of war. The answer is found in the fact that Pago Pago is an excellent harbor about half way between China and Cape Horn, the only route between the Atlantic and the Pacific that was not controled by England prior to the opening of the Panama canal.

America's further influence upon the affairs in Pacific will be considered next week.

LET THE PEOPLE PAY.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

By the year 1950, with successive annual increases in the wages of the miners, John L. Lewis will be monarch of all he surveys. His union's treasury will be bulging with money. Of course, he will be making a new contract with the operators. This time there will be a demand for much higher pay and a royalty of 50 cents a ton. What does it matter? says John L. I am like old Commodore Vanderbilt—"The public be damned." What if coal costs $15 a ton? The people pay for it, don't they? It does not matter how high we put up the price, so we get ours.

All this is casting ourselves forward to the year 1950. Prophecy is really a forecast based on what has happened in the past. And in this case prophecy is not difficult.

WHAT MAKES THE HEART BEAT?

OVER 300 years ago William Harvey discovered that blood circulates—that it flows out thru the arteries and returns to the heart via the veins. The pumping organ may be pictured as a four room house, divided in half by a muscular wall. The right partition may be termed the "venous" and the left, the "arterial." The two upstairs rooms [auricles] are the receiving chambers; the two downstairs [ventricles] are the ejecting compartments.

Used up blood from all parts of the body reaches the right auricle thru two large veins. With each contraction, the fluid is emptied into the right ventricle, which propels it to the pulmonary arteries and thence to the lungs. Here it gives up carbon dioxide and absorbs oxygen, thus changing in color from a deep purple to a bright red. The act of breathing pushes it thru the pulmonary veins, into the left auricle. It then drops into the left ventricle, whereupon powerful muscular contractions drive it thru the aorta. This is probably the most vital segment of the entire mechanism, as nutriment is pumped thru the aorta into every artery.

Back flow from one cavity to another is prevented by strategic doors, or valves. On the right side we find the tricuspid and the pulmonary; on the left, the aortic and the mitral. When blood passes from an auricle to a ventricle, the valve opens. With the next beat, it shuts automatically. This prevents oozing back into the auricle.

Embedded thru the entire heart is an elaborate network of tiny nerves which serve to transmit the electrical impulses necessary to contract the cardiac muscle. The switch, or pacemaker, from which this stimulus originates is located at a definite point in the right auricle, whence it travels in wavelike fashion to all the muscle fibers. In health, impulses are dispatched regularly from this central station and, as a result, the organ responds by sending blood into the entire body.

The timing is perfect as all four chambers must synchronize to execute this amazing task. The rate varies with the demand. The normal pulse ranges from 50 to 100 beats per minute, with an average of 72 for the male adult [somewhat higher in the female]. Exercise will bring an increase of 20 points or more but, as a rule, restoration to the resting level may be expected within three minutes. Similar changes may be exhibited during excitement or apprehension. Conversely, during sleep, a drop of at least 15 points will take place.

What is meant by the cardiac cycle? Each beat consists of a contraction [systole] and a period of relaxation [diastole]. The cycle occupies eight-tenths of a second. Approximately three-tenths of this interval is used in pumping blood into the arteries; the remaining five-tenths serves as an intermission, during which the heart "marks time" while the chambers are refilled. It is obvious that the more rapid the rate, the shorter the interludes of repose. Normally, in 24 hours, the structure labors 9 hours and rests 15.

Every pulsation thrusts two or three ounces of vital fluid into the vessels. The force must be so strong that the most remote cells will be fed. Physiologists tell us that the work performed by the heart each minute is great enough to lift a weight of nearly 80 pounds off the ground.

PROTECTORS.

T. L. writes: What is the difference between a serum, an antitoxin, and a vaccine?

REPLY.

They are all used for immunization but differ in the method of manufacture and action of the body. Vaccines contain killed bacteria which retain their power to stimulate the tissues to resist future infection. An antitoxin is devised from the blood of an animal previously infected with the toxins of a particular disease. When this material is administered to a patient, it neutralizes the poisons of that disorder. Serum is the liquid portion of the blood and contains antitoxins against certain ailments which the patient or animal was previously subjected to. For this reason, the words "serum" and "antitoxin" frequently are interchangeable.

RECURRING INFECTION.

Mrs. R. writes: My 11 year old daughter has been troubled with impetigo off and on for a few years, in spite of various types of treatment, including sulfathiazole. Is there any way to prevent these outbreaks?

REPLY.

If the diagnosis is correct, the chances are that re-infection is taking place. Scrupulous cleanliness, not only of the skin but of towels, clothing, and bedding is of vital importance.

FORGET ABOUT IT.

Pvt. J. R. P. writes: I would like to know how to remove a tattoo from my arm.

REPLY.

I'm afraid you can't. The services of an expert will be needed. Some skin specialists use tattoo needles, followed by the application of silver nitrate and tannic acid powder. Others destroy the area by the use of high frequency current. Skin grafting may be resorted to.

DON'T NEGLECT.

J. K. writes: Are duodenal ulcers dangerous?

REPLY.

They may be, especially if rupture, hemorrhage, or obstruction occurs. All victims of peptic ulcer should be under skilled management because these lesions are easily controled in coöperative patients.

THAT OTHERS' SONS MAY LIVE.

Chicago, March 17.—There has been some talk about what to do when the word comes that Germany surrenders.

For many of us, when that time comes, our hearts will be heavy as it only brings home again the realization that our boy is not coming home. Even tho the war is over, we have no homecoming to look forward to. My only son was killed in action, in China, Oct. 29, 1944. Four very good friends of mine are suffering the same experience. We met the other day and when the subject of the end of the war came up, almost in unison we said, "What have we to look forward to?" Many others have lost only sons.

To celebrate the end of the German phase of the war and to cause one minute's delay in getting to the Pacific war areas what the army, navy, coast guard, marine, and air corps need is not fair to them, to their mothers, fathers, and sweethearts, and to our country.

I wish I could tell every worker in every office, factory, and government installation over here how a father who lost his only son feels about the boys who are over there. If one heartbreak could be avoided it would be worth the effort.

TWO GREAT ECONOMISTS.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—President Roosevelt said in May, 1941, "Our national debt is, after all, an internal debt, owed not only by the nation but to the nation. If our children have to pay interest on it they will pay that interest to themselves. A reasonable internal debt will not impoverish our children."

Adam Smith in his book "Wealth of Nations"—Buckle, the great English historian, pronounced it "the most important book ever written"—said: "Great nations are never impoverished by private, tho they sometimes are by public, prodigality and misconduct. When national debts have once been accumulated to a certain degree, there is scarcely, I believe, a single instance of their having been fairly and completely paid. Tho the whole debt were owing to the inhabitants of the country, it would not upon that account be less pernicious."

Questions: Which of these men will future historians and economists acclaim and which is right?

How much is a reasonable internal debt?
R. S. LEIGHTON.

RACKET IN PILLOW SLIPS.

Chicago, March 16.—We have a racket going on among the laundries, dealing with sheets and pillow cases. Every woman I know has "lost" a bundle of sheets and slips at the laundry. Now that I don't send my best pillow slips, they tear holes in those I do send and exchange my good sheets for poor ones. Why don't the proper authorities combat this racket?

Friend of the YANKS

[Advice and assistance on draft and military questions, the problems of dependents of service men and veterans, is given here and by mail if a stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice and assistance are given veterans.]

G. C. C. writes: "It appears that due to a cut back my employer will not request any further deferment. It has been my wish for a long time to enter the Seabees and now I'm told they are closed, too. Isn't there anything left for construction men?"

In the Chicago area, the Seabees need only two more men to completely fill their quota—a stevedore hatch boss and a stevedore winchman. We suggest to you and other men experienced in construction work that the navy indicates their intention of offering a large new program in the near future in which men with experience in waterfront construction work, dredging operations and the like, will have plenty of opportunity for service. As soon as we receive additional information about the number of men wanted and the rates offered we'll try to give details in this space.

M. E. asks: "Will it be possible for men in the army to remain in the countries in which they have been serving after the war or will they have to come home to be discharged?"

The war department says that "provisions have been made that military personnel may be separated overseas under certain conditions, one of which is that the consent of the government of the country in which separation is to occur must be secured, and the laws of that country must be fulfilled."

"STUPIDITY STREET."

Rockford, Ill., March 15.—The way in which our congress and our people, apparently with open eyes, have allowed our enormous resources to be spirited away by the lend-lease program, and now are experiencing a serious food shortage, brings to mind these lines from Hodgson:

"I saw with open eyes
Singing birds sweet
Sold in the shops
For people to eat,
Sold in the shops of Stupidity Street.

I saw in vision
The worm in the wheat,
And in the shops nothing
For people to eat;
Nothing for sale in Stupidity Street."

THE RIGHT OF SELF-DEFENSE.

Houston, Tex., March 17.—Many thousands of free American men and women contributed around $200,000 of their own money last year to enable Sen. O'Daniel of Texas to appeal to voters, in print, and by radio, against New Deal policies that are bankrupting this country and destroying citizens' liberties.

New Dealers in the United States senate and New Deal newspapers over the country are trying to make it appear that this is a crime. They do not charge that a dollar of this money was used buying votes, or otherwise in any way corrupting voters. They say O'Daniel's weekly paper was not a newspaper—that it contained no news, only attacks on the New Deal. I read every number of that paper and it contained more news of New Deal wastefulness, blundering, and general treason to American institutions than even THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The New Deal administration has spent and is spending billions of dollars of the taxpayers' and bond buyers' money spreading its own revolutionary propaganda, and in actually buying votes by placing millions of voters in needless, useless jobs on the federal pay roll. They say this is all right. But when free citizens try to defend themselves from confiscation of their property and their liberties by appealing to voters in print and by radio, they say this is all wrong.

Has self-defense become a crime in this country?
FRANK PUTNAM.

SPANISH TEACHING.

Chicago, March 15.—Carlos Costillo offered some fine ideas in his letter on how to teach Spanish, but how about teaching the Spanish teachers how to teach Spanish? My Spanish teacher last year was absolutely disgusting. Every second word she had to refer to the vocabulary, and every other verb had to be looked up. She marked all my work "F," no matter how many or how few errors it may have had. When I turned in about 15 lines of typewritten work which I had copied from something written by Josi Guerin-Fucilla, the teacher deigned to find 30 mistakes—grammatical errors.

THE LIFE OF LIGHT BULBS.

Park Ridge, Ill., March 11.—When obtaining replacement electric light bulbs the other day, I commented on their short life and was told by the Public Service clerk that electric bulbs are now made to last 700 service hours instead of the 1,000 service hours previously provided.

I am not an engineer, but doesn't this reduced service entail more man power and more material? Is this another one of those inconsistencies planned for us?

THE OVERSEAS TRIBUNE.

PHILIPPINES, March 8.—We here in the Philippines want to thank you for your Overseas edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

WHAT'S DOING AMONG THE SPIRITS.

Chicago, March 14.—In today's TRIBUNE I note that Clarence Darrow's spirit failed to come to an agreed rendezvous. I wish to inform you that under such conditions no spirit cares to waste time to satisfy curiosity seekers.

I may point out that one year ago Darrow wrote a letter to me in black and white under his own personal signature which any one who can read English can read. Those who specialize in tracing characters can easily detect his character.

In this letter he describes his visit among the criminals in spirit whom he defended. Particular mention is made of the electrocution of Hauptmann, the kidnaper.

At will, I could arrange and will do so some future time, for Mr. Darrow to write me another letter describing his experiences in spirit.

I may also tell you Beatrice Houdini and Harry Houdini have written. So have many others, including Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News.
K. B. DOKAS.

LEADING TO FUTURE WAR.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—To deserve his role as champion of peace and freedom, our President should include the abolition of conscription among the measures to be proposed at the coming united nations' conference.

Failure by the allied leaders, thus far, to consider outlawing compulsory military training makes them seem, like the axis criminals, to cherish personal power above human life and liberty. They cannot disprove this charge when, in formulating post-war plans, they refuse even to contemplate the emancipation of all men everywhere from being forced by law to bear arms.

Assuming that our leaders really desire permanent peace, their asinine obstinacy in this matter defies explanation. What are they afraid of? Surely, there would be no popular protests demanding that conscription be retained. For most people in all nations know now that, should war come again, civilized man's extinction would be inevitable. It's time statesmen recognized this.

Once governments renounce their dubious right to conscript, international organization, founded on humane justice, becomes possible. The reason is obvious: Enough men will never be available for waging war, if drafting them is prohibited.

Let our President sponsor this idea at the San Francisco meeting. Let the delegates take appropriate action. A grateful world would then have cause to face the future hopefully.
SAMUEL MICHAELSON.

ROTATION: EUROPE TO ASIA.

Chicago, March 1.—How happy it must have made the mothers and wives of soldiers who have been overseas for two and three years to read that 200,000 to 250,000 soldiers would be released monthly after Germany's defeat. How sad it must have made the same mothers and wives to read that these veterans would be sent to the Pacific instead.

What is the matter with all the companies and battalions that have been in this country for over three years? I know of many single men who are still here. I also know of many who have returned after serving two and three years overseas and are being sent to the Pacific now. What kind of justice is all this? ONE OF THE WIVES.

HE STILL GETS BUTTER, ANYWAY.

COLLEGE DEGREE MAKES NO DIFFERENCE.

Chicago, March 22.—I am and have been for 21 years a draftsman. The company that has employed me put me, last summer, on the weekly pay roll instead of hourly. I was informed that under the wage and hours law only a person having a college degree was privileged to be on a weekly pay roll. I should like to know if this is true.
J. J.

There is no such rule of law. The term "executive capacity" as used in section 13 [a] of the fair labor standards act was redefined by regulations issued Oct. 24, 1940, to include any employe whose primary duty consists of the management of the establishment in which he is employed or a customarily recognized department or subdivision thereof, who has authority to hire or fire or whose recommendations as to hiring or firing are given particular weight, who is compensated on a salary basis at not less than $30 per week, and whose hours of work of the same nature as that performed by nonexempt employes do not exceed 20 per cent of the number of hours worked by nonexempt employes.

CHICAGO MUSIC FESTIVAL WILL BE HELD AUG. 18

16th Tribune Event Will Honor U. S. Fighters.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Dr. F. M. Christiansen.

A composition by Dr. F. Melius Christiansen, famed conductor of St. Olaf's choir in Northfield, Minn., will be sung by an augmented festival chorus at this year's Chicago Music Festival in Soldiers' field Saturday night, Aug. 18. The festival is sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Mr. Christiansen also will be honored at the festival luncheon, to be held the preceding day in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

For the fourth successive year the festival, now in its 16th year, will be dedicated to the men and women serving their country in the uniformed services. Both the army and navy will be invited to participate.

All Seats Reserved.

More than 5,000 men, women, and children are expected to take part in the show in Soldiers' field, and another 85,000 persons are expected to fill the stadium. All seats will be reserved and the admission price again will be $1.25 and 80 cents. Tickets will go on sale about July 1.

Henry Weber, general musical director of the festival, in announcing that one of Dr. Christiansen's compositions will be sung, said the number will be led by Dr. Edgar Nelson, the festival's choral director.

Mr. Weber, musical head of W-G-N, again will present more than 100 musicians in the festival symphony orchestra, and Capt. Howard Stube, director of instrumental participation, is arranging for a stupendous band pageant. Fred Miller will return as field supervisor, and Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, who now resides in California, will come to Chicago about middle July to conduct the vocal contests.

Set Luncheon Details.

Capt. Stube will manage a series of instrumental contests, and Dr. Nelson will have charge of the choral competitions. A contest for men's choruses will be revived.

At the ninth festival luncheon Dr. Christiansen will share guest of honor praises with Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen. Mrs. Clark and her organization have launched many a career for budding talents in the Chicago area. More than 1,600 guests are expected to attend this luncheon.

Preliminary Festivals.

Coöperating with THE TRIBUNE, preliminary festivals will be held prior to the Chicago Music Festival. They will be conducted in Indianapolis, Gary and Michigan City, Ind.; in Urbana and East Moline, Ill., and in Minneapolis, Minn. A new preliminary festival in Evanston also is announced in today's north side Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. These festivals also will hold contests, and the winners will compete in the Chicago finals.

All inquiries concerning festival details should be addressed to Festival Director, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

POPULAR 'FAUST' IS PRESENTED BY THEATER OF AIR

Features Retained in Condensed Version.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Chicago Theater of the Air presented "Faust" in Medinah temple last night and managed, even in the 50 minute condensation which W-G-N and Mutual time schedules made necessary, to retain most of the attractive features which gave the Gounod masterwork its place beside "Aida" and "Carmen" as one of the three most popular operas in the repertoire.

The music which drifts thru the study window of the aged Faust in the first scene, and which flowers in the following episode into an extraordinarily exhilirating musical expresson of youth and eternal spring, was effectively presented by the W-G-N chorus and orchestra.

The mood was continued, if in softened and subtly changed form, by Joseph Laderoute's handling of the exquisite phrase with which Faust, now young and handsome as a result of his pact with the devil, accosts the beautiful Marguerite in the market place.

In the same scene Bruce Foote, as Valentine, Marguerite's older brother, gave a tonally beautiful and finely inflected performance of "Even Bravest Heart," the song in which the departing soldier tells of his sadness and inquietude.

Soon thereafter the music of the garden scene began with Marion Claire and Laderoute exchanging the radiant phrases which generations of opera lovers have found so irresistible. Then the dewy first part of the drama came to an end, and the scene was set for the grim conclusion in which Marguerite is dishonored [altho finally redeemed] and the devil claims the soul of Faust in return for the temporary gift of youth.

Sincerity Features Production.

The performance as a whole, which was conducted by Henry Weber and which enlisted Ruth Slater and Willard Andelin in addition to the musical forces already mentioned, was remarkable for the deep absorption of the singers and instrumentalists in the music with which they were dealing and for the air of passion and sincerity which this absorption engendered.

Phrases were never perfunctory and tone, colorings never merely calculated. Everything seemed to spring from genuine feeling, and the music in consequence developed an unusual power to communicate its rapture to the audiences and to inflame their imagination. The applause seemed to come from the heart.

The dramatic cast was headed by Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, Arnold Robertson, and John Barclay. The production was the work of Jack La Frandre.

The speaker was Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. His talk will be found on the editorial page. At the conclusion of the program Miss Claire crowned Virginia Hampton of 6040 Ellis av., high school Easter seal queen as the result of a contest held in connection with the Easter seal campaign of the Illinois Association for the Crippled.

FRIEND OF YANK DEPARTMENT TO BROADEN SCOPE

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

Expansion of THE TRIBUNE'S Friend of the Yank department and removal to spacious quarters in the loop will be completed within a few days.

In the new quarters, the question and answer department that has been a daily feature of THE TRIBUNE for the last four years and the information bureau, conducted by the Tribune Public Service office, will be combined.

In addition to answering personal questions by mail, the new department will have an adequate staff of trained counselors who will supply information on any subject affecting veterans or their families.

This feature of Tribune service to the public is free. Until decoration and furnishing of the new veterans' service office is completed, personal interviews may be obtained by appointment by telephoning Friend of the Yank at Superior 0100.

Tribune Ready to Serve.

Nearly 50,000 service men and women already have been discharged and returned to Chicago and Cook county. At war's end, hundreds of thousands will come home. As was the case after World War I., THE TRIBUNE will be ready with every possible service.

At the outset of the war, Friend of the Yank department was established by THE TRIBUNE to answer the questions of those who desired to enlist or who expected to be drafted. Since that time, thousands of questions of general interest have been discussed in daily and Sunday columns.

When THE TRIBUNE started publishing an overseas paper for service men 15 months ago, the Friend of the Yank department was extended to that edition and questions on every possible subject affecting military personnel have been answered for those in the field.

Department Has Big Following.

Evidence that this department is widely read by overseas forces is found in the hundreds of letters received weekly from every theater of operation in which there are American fighting men. Many letters also have been received from members of allied armies who saw overseas editions of THE TRIBUNE.

Now, with the trend toward demobilization, THE TRIBUNE again is ready with literature on veterans' rights: Reëmployment, education, rehabilitation, insurance, compensation claims—anything the veteran wants—including personal consultation.

Royal Visitors End Two Day Sojourn as Roosevelt Guests

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 24.—The earl of Athlone, governor general of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, today ended their two day visit to the White House.

The Canadian couple boarded a train for Ottawa in the late afternoon after bidding farewell to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. They had spent two nights in the White House.

Shortly after noon they attended a luncheon given by Acting Secretary of State and Mrs. Grew in Blair house, the historic mansion the government has acquired for entertainment of visitors. Only 16 places were set for the luncheon, which was limited to members of the governor's party, the ambassadors of the two countries and their wives, and military and naval aides.

State Dinner Held.

The highlight of the visitors' stay was the state dinner given in their honor at the White House last night. The Vice President and Mrs. Truman headed the group from the President's official family. The Canadian ambassador and Mrs. L. B. Pearson were the only foreign diplomats present.

Speaker Rayburn of the house was among the dinner guests and those from the cabinet who attended with their wives were Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, Navy Secretary Forrestal, Interior Secretary Ickes, Agriculture Secretary Wickard, and Commerce Secretary Wallace. Labor Secretary Perkins, Acting Secretary of State and Mrs. Grew, and Acting Secretary of War and Mrs. Patterson also were present.

Boettigers Attend.

Others invited to meet the distinguished visitors were the, Ambassador to Canada and Mrs. Atherton, and Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffatt, widow of the former minister to Canada. Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Boettiger, son-in-law and daughter of the chief executive, and Mrs. Roosevelt were the only members of the immediate family present last evening.

SIX CLIMB OUT WINDOW, FLEE TRAINING SCHOOL

Six inmates of the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, escaped last night by climbing out a basement washroom window in Cleveland cottage, which houses older white boys at the institution.

The escape came while the 30 other boys in the cottage were preparing for bed, Richard Eddy, managing officer at the school, said. State highway police and county authorities were notified.

Those who escaped are: Thomas Fanter, 17, of 1611 N. Bell av.; Warren Hardin, 18, of 5754 Carpenter st.; Merle Phelps, 16, rural route 2, Poland, Ind., committed from Chicago; John Squardo, 16, of 6234 Kenwood av.; Harold O'Connor, 16, of 7022 St. Lawrence av.; Richard Ramos, 15, of 5218 Harper av.

Burglaries, auto thefts, and larceny had caused the six to be sent to institution and several had been placed there for a second time because of parole violations.

CHARGED WITH CIGARET THEFT.

Richard C. Himes, 27, of Jamestown, N. Y., a civilian welder in the naval armory in Chicago, was arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing six cartons of cigarets and a quantity of jewelry from the armory. The complaint was signed by Lt. John Hall.

SPEED RELEASE OF WAR DODGERS FROM PRISONS

Violators Given Jobs Or Put in Service.

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—Selective service and the federal bureau of prisons now are speeding release from prison of certain draft violators in order to place them in military service or in useful work.

James V. Bennett, federal prisons director, said in his annual report released today, that the revised procedure works this way:

A draft violator, 18 thru 37 years of age, who has served 60 or more days of his sentence is classified by a special draft board as available for combat military service, as a conscientious objector available for noncombat military service, or as a conscientious objector available for civilian work of "national importance."

Voluntary Induction.

The prisoner then is given an opportunity to apply for voluntary induction or, if a conscientious objector, for release to a civilian public service camp or to special service assignment.

However, whether or not he has applied for induction, he is given an opportunity to receive a pre-induction physical examination. If he is found suitable for military service and is willing to be inducted the special draft board recommends to the attorney general, thru the director of prisons, that he be released for induction.

Considered for Release.

If for physical, mental, or moral reasons he is unfit for military service he is reclassified 4-F and the special draft board then considers him for release other than to the army, provided however that before he took his physical, he had applied for induction or some other type of release.

SCARED ROBBER FLEES; CAUGHT IN EIGHT MINUTES

Within eight minutes after he allegedly tried to rob an Oshkosh [Wis.] gas station attendant, Melvin George Young, 21, of 240 W. 51st st., was captured yesterday at a highway blockade organized by authorities of three counties near Neenah, Wis.

Sheriff Clarence Smith of Winnebago county said Young admitted he had stolen the car in Chicago early yesterday and was headed for Menominee, Mich. Harold Voelker, attendant in the Oshkosh gas station, said Young tried to rob him but was frightened away when a bicyclist rode into the station driveway.

When Young drove off, Voelker notified Winnebago county authorities, who set up the road block. A revolver was found in Young's possession when the car was stopped, the sheriff said.

REPORTS THEFT OF $25.

Althea Haudenschild, 1015 N. Clark st., cashier of the Mutual Auto Parks at 309 W. Randolph st., yesterday reported to police that burglars took $25 from her office Friday night.

OPA DECREE PUTS DECATUR GRAVEL FIRM ON ROCKS

Owner Quits Business After Price Cut.

Decatur, Ill., March 24 [Special].—Roy R. Wilson, president and manager of the Decatur Hydraulic Sand and Gravel company, which has supplied local contractors with concrete mix for the last 40 years, said today he has shut down his business because he is unable to operate profitably under a price ceiling fixed by the office of price administration.

Wilson said that as a result of his withdrawal from business local contractors will be forced to get sand and gravel by truck or railroad and pay from 50 to 90 per cent more than the price he would charge.

The Decatur concern had an annual output of about 500 carloads, but because the entire output was sold locally it was handled by trucks and wagons without drawing upon railroad transportation. Long distance trucking and rail shipments now must be resorted to by local users, he said.

Labor Costs Go Up.

Wilson said he charged $1.25 per cubic yard for his product in 1942. He described the product as a washed mixture of sand and gravel suitable for mixing with cement for the manufacture of concrete. He said that rising labor costs forced him to increase his price to $1.65 in 1943 and to $1.75 in 1944.

Last December, he said, the OPA accused him of violating ceiling prices and ordered him to reduce his price to $1.25. He was fined $2,867.69 for overcharges.

Wilson said he paid the OPA fine and filed a petition with the price division of the OPA at Springfield for permission to resume business at the $1.75 price. He is unable to do business at a lower price, he said. He plans to keep the pits closed unless his petition, which is still pending, is acted upon favorably.

Higher Prices Elsewhere.

Contractors who formerly bought Wilson's product were reported by him to be paying as much as $3.35 a yard for similar product bought elsewhere and shipped in. The price permitted by the OPA in Springfield, he said, is $2.60 per yard and in Bloomington $1.93.

Wilson's statements were confirmed by Robert Perry, a general contractor, who formerly bought his supplies of concrete mix from the Decatur firm.

"Wilson's being out of business this year is a great inconvenience to me and is costing me money," he said. "I paid him $1.75 a yard last year, but this year I am getting my concrete mix trucked in from Illiopolis, 20 miles away and am paying $2.50.

Sues Sister to Account for Estate of Mother

Lt. [j. g.] George W. Nagel, 36, stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training center, filed suit yesterday in Superior court asking that his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Claney, 670 Irving Park rd., be directed to make an accounting of the estate of their mother, Mrs. Ida B. Nagel, who died March 3. The petition said Mrs. Nagel died intestate, possessed of property estimated at $70,000. The suit asked that a receiver be appointed to handle the real estate, and that Mrs. Claney be enjoined from disposing of any of the estate.

4,000 IN UNION PRAISE MOVIES AFTER MIDNIGHT

Toledo, O., March 24 [Special].—Earl Streeter, executive secretary of local 4, Mechanics Educational Society of America, which has 4,000 members employed in Toledo war plants, today said his union instructed him at a mass meeting last night to "commend" Jack O'Connell, theater owner, for keeping his loop theater open after midnight in defiance of the war time curfew.

Streeter said the union took action after speakers at the meeting expressed the view the midnight to 5 a. m. show at O'Connell's theater is contributing to the war effort by providing recreation for late shift war workers. George Pilkiewicz, national representative of MESA from Detroit, attended the meeting and gave a talk praising O'Connell.

Exemption Plea Denied.

O'Connell began his defiance of the curfew last Monday after War Mobilization Director Byrnes had rejected his plea for an exemption. Since then the theater owner refused a request to close from Ralph O. Snyder, area director for the war man power commission, who threatened to apply such coercive enforcement measures as cutting off the theater's power and light.

The midnight show played to an audience of 300 persons this morning with no hint of government interference except a visit from military police who escorted two uniformed soldiers out of the place.

Two other soldiers witnessed this ejection and then bolted from the theater so precipitately that they knocked the hinges off an exit door, O'Connell said. A few minutes later he received a telephone call from these men promising to get in touch with him and pay for damage to the door.

Navy Men in Audience.

Altho several navy men were in the post-midnight audience, no attempt was made by shore police to interfere with them. Navy men volunteered to pass Red Cross collection plates after the showing of a short film appealing for Red Cross funds, and the uniformed sailors thereupon passed thru the audience with the plates.

O'Connell said he has received a request from Loew's, Inc., film distribution agency, asking that films furnished by it not be shown after midnight. This is his only reaction so far, he said, to appeals sent by the WMC yesterday to eight film distributing concerns asking them to cut off his film supply. He rarely uses films from Loews', he said, so will not be affected unless other distributors follow suit.

O'Connell exhibited a letter he received today from John W. Hansen, a Milwaukee physician, offering to get up a pot to provide financial assistance if he has to go to court, and stating, "I admire your spunk and wish you luck."

Medical Care for all Ailments at United Medical Service

IN ADDITION to years of training and experience in the various fields of medicine, physicians of United Medical Service have the support of X-ray, electrocardiograph, clinical laboratory procedures and many other scientific instruments. Consequently their knowledge reaches maximum efficiency in solving the health problems of their many patients. With these modern facilities our physicians can see the heart beat, see its size and shape; they can see and study the condition of the lungs; see the stomach in operation and follow the passage of food from the mouth through the entire gastro-intestinal tract. They can study the kidneys, bladder and the rest of the genito-urinary system; the brain, sinuses, teeth, spine, joints, bones, gall bladder and other formerly inaccessible parts of the body. With these indispensable facilities our doctors can make early diagnoses of beginning heart trouble, tuberculosis, kidney disorders, diabetes, and detect conditions which may lead to cancer, apoplexy, pneumonia, appendicitis and other serious ailments. All persons, and especially those who are finding it difficult to obtain medical care because of the many physicians now serving the armed forces, are invited to use these facilities and services. The fees are moderate and the same to all. Offices are in the Finchley Building, conveniently reached by railroad trains, street cars, busses, elevated and subway trains or automobiles. Information upon request.

Rectal Ailments Diagnosed and Treated
WITHOUT PAIN OR LOSS OF TIME FROM WORK
Rectal disorders are a major disease problem. If they are not corrected in the early stages by proper medical care serious trouble may follow. Piles or hemorrhoids are small blood tumors or varicose veins. As they increase in size, which they will do if neglected, they become extremely painful and very dangerous. A simple hemorrhoid or pile without proper medical care can cause a

Fistula or Rectal Abscess These are dangerous types of rectal disorders. The first symptom is a throbbing pain which grows more intense as the condition develops. This will continue until the abscess breaks of its own accord or is opened by a skilled physician. The latter is the best and safest procedure, for in many cases pus will burrow into surrounding tissue, causing more abscesses and fistula tracts to form. Competent medical attention can prevent this constant menace to health. Examinations made here include the services of a competent and experienced physician as well as urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The examining fee is........ $4.50

Ailments of Older Men In older men such symptoms as fear, nervousness, frequent or painful urination, blood in the urine, discharges, or pain and discomfort of any kind call for a thorough physical check-up. Women's Ailments Women who have such ailments as headache, nervousness, pains in the abdomen, irregular menstruation, frequent or painful urination, need medical attention. Such conditions rarely correct themselves, especially if you are past 40 years of age, when cancer invasion is possible. STRIKE TO CLOSE WARPLANT; HOPE FOR EARLY END

Jumbled Washington Wire Blamed for Shutdown.

Receipt yesterday by the International Association of Machinists [AFL], local No. 8, of a telegram from the war labor board in Washington, D. C., partly clarifying a muddle resulting from a message received Thursday, may bring an early end to a strike which tomorrow will cause complete shut down of the Pettibone-Mulliken corporation, 4710 Division st., a company official said yesterday. The plant produces 155 millimeter and 8 inch howitzer gun carriages.

Leon J. Garrie, industrial relations director, said 1,500 of the company's 1,750 employes went on strike Thursday as a result of misunderstanding caused by the first telegram. Garrie said the workers interpreted the message as a rejection by the WLB of an 8 cent an hour wage increase for night workers, which had been recommended by the board.

Machinists Stay Out.

When the workers comprehended that the telegram had been misleading and that actually the board had deferred action in the case for further consideration, all unions except the machinists returned to work, Garrie said.

James McDonald, business representative of the union, said last night he would appeal to strikers at the meeting at 9 a. m. tomorrow to return to work pending a decision of the war labor board.

He said the second telegram from the WLB was a little clearer but the night shift differential of 8 cents still remained an issue.

Garrie said the absence of the machinists halts production. Other workers have piled up huge stocks of forgings and castings, he said, but without finishing by machinists these parts cannot be shipped out.

Garrie reported that shipments into and out of the plant of raw materials and what finished products remained on hand had been halted by a sympathy move by members of Dan Tobin's International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The official stressed that other unions had expressed their willingness to stay on the job, and that 250 members of the International Moulders and Foundry Workers union [AFL] will remain to tend annealing ovens and furnaces.

Probe Strike Threats.

Capt. George Barnes of the police labor detail yesterday was investigating strike threats of 900 employes of the Cribben and Sexton company, 700 N. Sacramento av., producers of 155 millimeter shells.

Barnes said that the employes, members of the United Stove Workers of America, and affiliate of the Independent Confederated Unions of America, headed by Matthew Smith, British subject and leader of the shutdown of 15 Detroit plants in 1942, plan to halt work tomorrow because of an accumulation of grievances.

A police detail, Barnes said, would be assigned at the plant gates tomorrow to see that employes who wish to enter are not restrained.

The 125th strike in the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, which started Friday when 53 workers in the gear division stopped work, was ended, Frank Valle, recently appointed supervisor of the United Auto Workers' union [CIO], said. The workers, he said, agreed to return to their machines when promised negotiation of their grievances would be opened by the management at once.

Police Enforce Curfew with a Sledge Hammer

Portland, Ore., March 24 (AP).—Police enforced the midnight curfew with a sledge hammer today. A vice squad smashed up furniture and the bar at a night spot cited for the fourth time for violating the curfew. The bartender was charged with illegal liquor sale.

MRS. W. R. KIRK DENIES SHE WAS 'EXTRAVAGANT'

Answers Husband's Divorce Suit.

Mrs. Louisa N. Kirk, 46, filed an answer and counter-claim yesterday in Superior court denying the allegations contained in a divorce suit by her husband, Walter R. Kirk, 71, retired soap manufacturer, of the La Salle hotel.

The counter-claim, which was filed by Attorneys Benjamin B Davis and William C. Boyden, asked that she be awarded separate maintenance and that Kirk be enjoined from disposing of a trust estate of $100,000 and other stocks, bonds, and assets worth another $100,000 held in his name.

Denies Husband's Charges.

In her pleading Mrs. Kirk denied her husband's allegations that he remonstrated with her about her extravagance or that he informed her in 1940 that his capital and income were so seriously depleted that he would have to curtail living expenses. She likewise denied his charge that she refused to move to a cheaper dwelling or refused to live with him as his wife any place which he designated.

Mrs. Kirk, now of the Drake hotel, recited in her pleading that her husband in 1939 bought a coöperative apartment at 1500 Lake Shore dr., where he formerly lived, and spent nearly $10,000 for decorating it. The monthly carrying charge, she said, was $353, but later was reduced to $286. She asserted he always was a wealthy man and at one time was president of the Chicago Opera company and had maintained their living on a $25,000 a year scale.

Obtains $3,625 Judgment.

When her husband left their apartment April 23, 1943, to take a room in the La Salle hotel, the pleading said, she made "repeated efforts to have him return and offered to live with him in the La Salle hotel, but he refused such requests and asked her to get a divorce."

After their separation, the petition said, Mrs. Kirk filed suit in New York to recover money she spent for her support during his absence. She obtained a judgment for $3,625 which is now under appeal by Kirk.

Mrs. Kirk asserted that the $100,000 trust fund was left by his father, the late Milton W. Kirk, and will come to him later. She denied his assertion that she has an annual income of $4,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk were married Dec. 12, 1934, in New York.

NAME GEN. REYNOLDS AS SPEAKER ON ARMY DAY PROGRAM APRIL 6

Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds of the 6th service command will be the speaker on the Army day program at 12:15 p. m. April 6 on the La Salle st. side of the city hall, the Military Order of the World War, sponsors, reported yesterday. Judge Joseph Burke of the Appellate court will be general chairman and Mayor Kelly will be on the program. Music will be provided by the 6th service command army band and veterans' patriotic organizations. The Harrison High school R. O. T. C. championship drill platoon, the Salvation Army, and the Red Cross will participate in the ceremony. The committee said it expects to exhibit some of the army equipment and supplies produced by the Chicago ordnance district.

PROBE ROBBERY, GAMING MOTIVE IN GARY SLAYING

Investigation of the shotgun killing of Lawrence Finerty, 44, brother of Mayor Joseph E. Finerty of Gary, Ind., dwelt yesterday on the possibility that the killer was a robber as well as on the theories that it was the act of enemies made either in politics or in organized gambling.

Deputy Sheriff John Knox said that Finerty habitually carried as much as $5,000 in currency. There was only 16 cents left in his pocket. Knox said he had no information that Finerty had more when the killer overtook him at the garage behind his home in Highland, six miles southwest of Gary, early Friday, but he said the circumstances generally suggested robbery.

Mrs. Finerty, who was with her husband when he was killed, still was too overcome by shock to be questioned yesterday. They had returned from attending a wake in East Chicago, Ind., and were at the garage at 12:55 a. m. when the slayer appeared. Knox said yesterday it had been determined the killer used a sawed-off double barreled shotgun and that two charges of 12 buckshot each had been fired. One hit Finerty in the body and the other in the head. The only traces left by the gunman were prints made by a size 6 or 7 shoe.

REPORT CURFEW 'VIOLATORS' ARE IN COMPLIANCE

All reported violators of the midnight curfew thus far investigated are now complying with the order, Lester Brown, area war man power commission director, said last night.

Fifty-nine of 68 places investigated, he said, were found to be in compliance; eight others were in violation thru misunderstanding, and the remaining violator complied after receiving a warning letter.

Forty-eight other reported violations of a total of 116 made to Police Commissioner Allman and Sheriff Mulcahy are still under investigation.

Local Business Man Retires Because of Lost Hearing

Edward D. Wilk, well-known sales promotional executive, was compelled to retire from an active business career because of a progressive hearing loss, and remained in retirement for some time.

Today, Mr. Wilk finds himself again an active, energetic, driving executive as of former years. Recently in a talk before a group of prominent Chicago business men, Mr. Wilk said in substance: "Through the miracle of modern science I have regained an amazing part of my life that I thought was utterly lost to me, lost to me for so long a time that I had actually forgotten how much it meant to me. You who are listening to me tonight cannot possibly imagine what a tremendous effect on one's whole well-being, on one's very personality, deafness or even a partial hearing loss can mean.

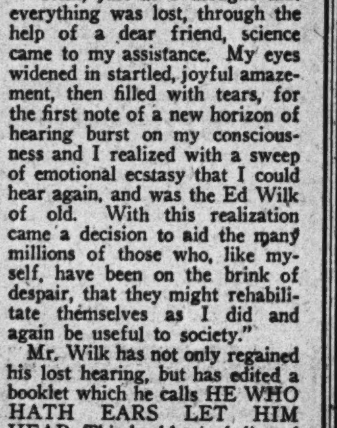
"When I realized fully that I was becoming progressively deaf, I tried everything in a frantic attempt to regain my hearing—all to no avail. People with normal hearing do not realize how easily they can offend the deafened . . . and often are unintentionally cruel, cutting short their conversation. It is then that the deafened individual usually gives up the effort to listen.

"I found myself making embarrassing or ridiculous comments because I misunderstood others, and felt that I was a kill-joy in a group. I had a tendency to back out smiling, nodding, and pretending.

"A blind person makes no pretense at seeing, yet the deaf are always pretending that they hear and usually grumble at people, saying that all people mumble. Poems and music have been written about the blind, but only 'funny' stories have been told about the deaf. I felt that I had no friend to unlock the door of escape from the soundproof cell of silence. In other words, my whole life was changing; I began to lose interest in business, friends, and even my own family.

"Then, just as I thought that everything was lost, through the help of a dear friend, science came to my assistance. My eyes widened in startled, joyful amazement, then filled with tears, for the first note of a new horizon of hearing burst on my consciousness and I realized with a sweep of emotional ecstasy that I could hear again, and was the Ed Wilk of old. With this realization came a decision to aid the many millions of those who, like myself, have been on the brink of despair, that they might rehabilitate themselves as I did and again be useful to society."

Mr. Wilk has not only regained his lost hearing, but has edited a booklet which he calls HE WHO HATH EARS LET HIM HEAR. This booklet is dedicated to the hard-of-hearing and brings them inspiration and hope. It is free; it will be sent in a plain wrapper to any one addressing E. D. Wilk, Suite 1602, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.



EDWARD D. WILK after short retirement again enters business field.

HARRISON HIGH'S CADETS WIN TOP R. O. T. C. HONORS

Units from 29 Schools Vie for Places.

Harrison High school's crack platoon of 30 cadets carried off top honors yesterday in the annual R. O. T. C. drill competition, participated in by a thousand cadets in units from 29 Chicago high schools, in the armory at 1551 N. Kedzie av.

The nine other winning platoons were as follows in the order named: Tilden, Austin, Sullivan, Von Steuben, Senn, Lindblom, Crane, Roosevelt, and Lane.

Trophy Gift of Veterans.

It was presented by Mrs. Harriet L. Duffy as the gift of the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary of Illinois. Appearing with her was Mrs. Meryl Cole of Springfield, department president of the auxiliary.

The impressive drill maneuvers were witnessed by Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding general of the 6th service command, and his staff, and a gathering of cheering students and parents which packed the galleries.

Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools, presented medals to boys in the championship platoon and ribbon bars to those in the next four platoons.

Hail Their Drillmaster.

After the presentation, the Harrison cadets lifted Corp. Donald M. Simpson, their army drillmaster, to their shoulders and carried him across the floor.

Music was provided by cadets of the Schurz High school band.

Army officers ordered a squad of enlisted men to stand by and extra police were summoned to the armory afterward when threats of violence were muttered by groups of Tilden High students outside the armory. The crowds were dispersed without trouble.

Tilden High won first place last year. Judges explained that some of the snappy trick drills executed by the Tilden platoon were outside prescribed drill routine and actually detracted from its score.

St. Jude's Police Branch to Install New Officers

New officers of the police branch of St. Jude's league will be installed at a meeting to be held Tuesday evening at 3208 E. 91st st., with Capt. Michael Ahern of the Rogers Park police district as master of ceremonies. Capt. Michael Spatz of the East side district is the newly elected president.

AT 109 AND 104, 2 BEGIN TO FEEL RATHER ELDERLY

Arped Sabados, who quit work when he was 100, confessed yesterday that he "was getting along in years." Today he is celebrating at his home at 6454 S. Mozart st. what he said is his 109th birthday.

Out at the Holland Home for the Aged Dutch, another centenarian, Peter Van der Pol, admitted that his 104th birthday yesterday found him a little on the "not so young side."

Sabados, who still walks erectly, has his own teeth, does not wear glasses, and speaks seven languages, tells skeptics that he was born March 25, 1936, in a village in Hungary. Van der Pol said he was born March 24, 1841, at Ranese, Zeeland, near the Zuyder Zee, just five years later. Both shared one opinion yesterday: "It's a hard life, being a soldier." Their knowledge was obtained thru actual experience in Europe, where Sabados served in seven different armies during his 44 years as a soldier and Van der Pol wore the uniform of the Netherlands army.

"It's been a long time since I was a soldier," Sabados said, rubbing a saber scar on his cheek. "It was in the army that Napoleon III. sent to Mexico to establish Maximilian as emperor."

Tells of Meeting Lincoln.

Before returning to Europe, he visited the United States in 1865 and at that time met Abraham Lincoln, he said. It was that meeting that decided him to come to this country, become a citizen, and vote the Republican ticket.

Sabados said he took up farming when he came to America and thru the years owned a total of 22 farms, most of them in Ohio. He also sold live stock and during the early 1900s made a fortune. Altho he lost $52,000 in one bank in the depression, he still has no financial worries. In fact, he never worries, which is one reason he has lived so long, he said. Until an accident in August, 1944, he had never been in a hospital. "Keeping away from doctors is another way to live to be 109," he said.

Recalls How He Toiled.

Van der Pol greeted his birthday with a fresh shave, plus a little perfumed toilet water, and a new, blue shirt. His daughter, Mrs. Katie Benzenberg, the only survivor of 13 children, recalled that her father settled on a farm near Lansing, where he worked from sunup to sunset. His only day of rest was Sunday. He retired 18 years ago.

On the wall of his room is a framed message of congratulation from the board of directors of the home. When asked the secret of longevity he pointed to a quotation contained in the framed message: "To God be all glory."

PARK DISTRICT'S FLOWER SHOWS TO OPEN TODAY

Also on exhibit will be a collection of orchids in the palm houses of both conservatories.

3 MEAT SELLERS STRUCK BY OPA'S STIFFEST BLOWS

Year's Suspension Asked in 1 of 2 Moves.

Beatrice, Max, and Albert Alexenburg, operators of the Harper Market, 1455 E. 53d st., were the targets yesterday of what the office of price administration said was the most severe action it has taken against a Chicago food retailer.

The first of two moves against the market was filing of a complaint in Circuit court asking that the store be suspended for at least a year from selling commodities under price control. In it Marion Isbell, OPA area director, alleged overcharges ranging as high as 80 cents per pound on beef tenderloin.

Contempt Plea Up Tuesday.

Secondly, the three operators have been notified to appear before Judge Robert J. Dunne in Circuit court Tuesday when the OPA will petition for an order to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for violation of an injunction issued by Circuit Judge Philip Finnegan last November when the firm paid a consent judgment of $200 on a charge of overceiling sales.

Health department officials, meanwhile, were testing 2,100 pounds of pork cuts to determine whether the meat is good enough for use as dog food or it will be converted into fertilizer. The meat, which has been condemned as unfit for human consumption, was found without government or city inspection stamps in the plant of the Northwestern Packing company, 1001 Milwaukee av., on Friday.

The OPA made public two resolutions adopted by the Chicago Wholesale Fish Dealers' association, promising to help keep prices of fresh water fish from increasing.

Shoe Firm Accused.

In suspension proceedings yesterday the OPA charged Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., 2750 W. 35th st., wholesalers and retailers, with the largest ration inventory shortage in shoes ever charged against a dealer here—42,282 pairs. Hearing was set for April 28.

The Boston Store, State and Madison sts., was charged by OPA with an inventory shortage of 3,156 pairs of shoes and hearing was set for April 30. The Crawford Department Store, Inc., was charged with a 1,000 pair shortage in its store at 2509 Devon av. and 165 pairs in its store at 4024 North av.

$3,403 Judgment Entered.

A consent judgment for $3,403.50 and a permanent injunction were entered in federal court against Altman & Co., 208 S. Market st., charged by OPA with overceiling sales of work clothes and cotton flannel shirts. Similar judgments and injunctions were issued against Acme Products, 222 North Bank dr., and the Gloria Fabrics company, 229 S. Market st., for overceiling fabric sales. The Acme judgment was $498.45 and the Gloria judgment for $321.48.

Jack and Mary White, co-partners in White's Fabric Shop, 331 W. Jackson blvd., were named in a suit, filed in federal court, for unestimated treble damages for alleged overceiling sales.

Four filling station owners charged with passing counterfeit coupons were suspended from selling gasoline by OPA hearing commissioners. B. D. Gilson, 5701 S. Kedzie av., and William Johnson, 11 E. State st., Geneva, were suspended for the duration. Marion Lechowski, 845 Ogden av., was suspended for three months, and Andrew Hanyzewski, 5301 Ogden av., for 14 days.

Lloyd Garrison Named Vice Chairman of WLB

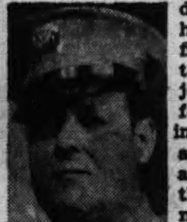
Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—Lloyd K. Garrison was appointed vice chairman of the war labor board today by President Roosevelt. He succeeds George W. Taylor, recently named chairman.

STOCKING THIEF SEIZED.

George Dawson, 38, Negro, a former stockroom employe at Goldblatt Brothers loop store, slipped in thru the employes' entrance yesterday and stuffed 200 pairs of stockings under his coat. Traffic Policeman William Fortune captured him after chasing him to Van Buren st. and Plymouth ct. Dawson admitted the theft.

COP WHO HEARD COUNTRY'S CALL DENIED OLD JOB

Technicality Is Bar as City Needs Police.



William P. Lanagan.

On Dec. 7, 1941, Policeman William P. Lanagan heard the call to duty; yesterday he told of his difficulty in trying to get back his job on the police force after serving three years as a sergeant in the army. In leaving the police department, in which he served 13 years, he failed to observe a technicality of the civil service rules, he admitted, and therefore he has no rights in the matter.

"But the city is hiring policemen without civil service examinations, buying them uniforms and revolvers, and can't get enough," said Lanagan, who is 41, stands 6 feet 1 inch, and weighs 220 pounds. "My discharge says I am in good physical condition and of excellent character."

Withdraws His Pension Money.

Lanagan, who lives at 3140 Clark st., says he is one of several ex-cops who went to war and decided to withdraw their pension money from the city. In his case he was able to take out $1,600; he said he and his family needed the cash at the time and he felt that if he were killed in the war his widow would be protected anyway.

"I had served two army enlistments before joining the police force in 1929 and I was a sergeant for several years. So, on Dec. 8, 1941, I enlisted. I knew the army could use me, for I was a competent drill sergeant. Then I applied for a military furlough but later I resigned outright from the police job to get the pension money.

"I served as a drill sergeant and in the intelligence service and did my best to get overseas, but could not. I had a slight injury and was given a discharge last December.

Arranged to Return $1,600.

"When I came home, I went to the city hall and asked for my old job. The pension board said I would have to put back the $1,600 and I arranged to do it.

"But James Osborne, secretary of the civil service commission, told me I had no rights because I had violated one of his rules. He said I should have written to him within 30 days after my resignation that I wished to withdraw it. I didn't know about any such rule—so I haven't been able to get back, altho I have been trying for fou rmonths."

Walter L. Gregory, president of the civil service commission, said he is looking into the status of Lanagan and other ex-policemen who went to war and is trying to preserve the rights of those who observed all the technicalities.

WAR VETERANS WILL BE GIVEN 2 SHOE STAMPS

Discharged soldiers and sailors hereafter will receive two ration stamps for shoes, instead of one, the office of price administration said yesterday.

OPA set a retail price ceiling of 48 cents per five pound unit of new potatoes from Texas. Texas potatoes have just appeared on the Chicago market.

Vet of 9 Pacific Battles Dies in Aurora Garage

Peter Christensen, 36, of 717 Fulton st., Aurora, who received a medical discharge from the navy in February after taking part in nine major engagements in the Pacific, was found dead in his automobile in a garage near his home yesterday. The motor was running and the garage was filled with fumes. He is survived by his widow, Eleanore, to whom he was married in January.

$50 AND WHISKY STOLEN.

James Georgeopolous reported to police yesterday that thieves stole $50 and 12 bottles of whisky from his tavern at 1310 Jackson blvd.

In the midst of the most active real estate market in 20 years Chicago faces at least five more years of prosperity for property owners, a survey of realtors and builders indicated yesterday. Today's realty market is not a runaway affair, experts said, despite stories of immense profits made in rapid sales and resales. There has been little speculation, all agreed.

Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago real estate board, said this is the most significant and healthy factor in the market. Nearly all the home buying is for occupancy by the buyer as soon as he can get possession, he said. Office building sales are for use by the buying corporations, and factories and stores are being purchased for owner use.

Properties in Strong Hands.

"This 'use buying' means a healthy and sound increase in realty values and at the same time takes properties off the market and places them in strong hands," Downie said.

"With fewer properties to sell and more cash to buy with in the hands of the public we are certain to have a continued upward trend—a steady nonspeculative increase in real estate values and prices—for at least the next five years."

Fred Lorish of Swan-Lorish, Inc., former president of the realty board, said the present market is the most active one Chicago has had in two decades.

Little Speculation in Dwellings.

"There is little or no speculation," he said. "Single family residences, two flat, three flat, and six apartment buildings are the most active and practically all are bought by families who will live in them.

"The larger apartment buildings which change hands are bought for investment and are held by the buyer, not resold. Most of Chicago's big apartment properties are in the hands of investors."

Stewart Matthews, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., said the problem facing realtors in today's lively market is to get anything to sell. However, his firm reported sales during the first two months of 1945 double those of the corresponding months last year.

It's a Sellers' Market.

Henry W. Kennedy, secretary and treasurer of McKey & Poague, Inc., also said listings of property for sale were scarce and that this is a sellers' market.

"We can sell anything that is priced fairly," he said. "There is the biggest demand in 14 years in business property. But this is not a speculative market. Buyers keep their purchases; there is little profit taking."

From the landlords' point of view the most cheering prediction recently made was by Downie who said realtors expected some adjustments in rental ceilings this year commensurate with increased cost of operation.

LOYOLA TO BUILD DENTAL, MEDICAL UNIT AFTER WAR

Preliminary plans for a 1½ million dollar Loyola university medical and dental schools building have been completed, Dr. Robert W. McNulty, dean of the dental school, announced yesterday. This 8 story structure will be the first unit in a 5 million dollar group contemplated for Chicago's west side medical center as part of Loyola's big post-war expansion program.

Shaped like an inverted Y the building will have an approximate floor area of 220,000 square feet. Exterior walls will be of variegated Indiana limestone. Glass will be used extensively in order to provide as much daylight as possible in laboratories, classrooms and other instruction areas.

One arm of the Y will house medical instructional and clinical facilities, and the other similar dental activities. Clinics will be on the first and second floors at the ends of the wings. The main auditorium, entered from the first floor, will seat the entire student body and will have a capacity for more than 1,000 persons. Above the auditorium will be assembly halls for each school. Lounges for faculty and students and a cafeteria are planned.

Among other post-war units proposed for Loyola's west side medical group is a residence hall for medical and dental students. Work will be started on the medical and dental schools building when war restrictions permit.

BUYS WEST SIDE BUILDING.

The building at 3437-47 W. Madison st., containing 33 flats and four stores, was sold by the Prairie State Bank of Oak Park, trustee, to Louis A. Wexler for $65,000. John H. McGeary Jr. was broker.

DOWNIE TO QUIT REALTY BOARD FOR OWN OFFICE

Leonard Downie.

Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board for seven years, yesterday announced that he had resigned to take advantage of the present lively real estate market by opening his own office. He will continue his board duties until his successor is appointed, he told directors. Downie operated on the west coast for 19 years, with realty offices in Seattle, Portland, and San Francisco. He was head of the appraisal department of the Home Owners Loan corporation, in Washington, D. C.

HARDLY A MOVE ON MOVING DAY, SAYS REALTOR

Returns from notices sent out by Swan-Lorish, Inc., to 5,000 families whose leases expire May 1 indicate that not one tenant contemplates moving. This is the first time in the history of the firm, Fred Lorish said yesterday, that such a situation has developed.

"Each spring during the last few years fewer families replied that they intended to move," he said. "Last year the ratio had dropped to one family out of every 100 whose lease expired.

"This year every family of the 5,000 notified replied that it intended to renew its leases and would not move. That means that May 1 moving day undoubtedly will be the quietest in the city's history."

COLD GOT YOU IN BLEARY-EYED MISERY?

Do This Quick for Relief!

If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold... all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach... back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids... and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

MICHIGAN WINS PURDUE RELAYS; FIVE MARKS FALL

Michigan lapped the field to win the distance medley relay with Bob Hume running the anchor mile. His twin brother, Ross, preceded him in the three-quarters of a mile. Michigan's time was 10:22.8.

Michigan also took the two mile relay, which opened the program, and Dick Barnard, running the anchor half mile, lapped the field. Purdue was in front at the end of the first leg but Archie Parsons then took over for the Wolverines who won as they pleased.

Illini Run Fast Mile.

Illinois' four quarter-milers established the best time for the indoor season, a 3:22.8 mile. Bill Buster, who was shut out of the sprint, led off and was followed by Marc Gonzales, Joe Johnson, and Bob Kelley, who holds the western conference 440 yard and half mile championships. Summaries:

Strohs Trail Heils 27 Pins in Title Match

Milwaukee, Wis., March 24 [Special].—The Heil bowling team of Milwaukee tonight led by 27 pins at the end of the first two three-game blocks in its challenge series with the Detroit Stroh Bohemian Beers for the national team match game championship. The Heils' grand total for six games was 5,786 as against 5,759 for the title holders.

After winning this afternoon's block by 76 pins the Heils dropped tonight's block by 49 pins, getting 2,972 as against 3,021 for their rivals. Top man for the Strohs was Capt. Joe Norris, who posted 663 for his series, which included a first game of 258, high for the competition. John Crimmins was next in line for the Strohs with a 624 series. The number one man for the Heils was Rudy Pugel with a 638 set.

The third and fourth blocks in the Milwaukee phase of the series will be bowled on the same Strachota Regent alleys tomorrow at 3 and 8:30 p. m., with the final four blocks to be rolled off in Detroit next week-end.

None of the competing bowlers was particularly accurate this afternoon. Pugel, who with Ned Day once held the national doubles championship, posted the top individual total with a 608 series. Top man for the champions was Bill Kenet with 593.

ZOLLNERS BEAT DAYTON, 78-52, FOR PRO CROWN

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons won the seventh annual Professional basketball tournament for the second year in a row in the Chicago Stadium last night as they easily defeated the Dayton Acmes, 78 to 52, before a crowd of 15,119. Getting away to an 18 to 10 lead in the first period, the Indiana players demonstrated the fast breaking style of play that not only won them the National league championship, but carried them thru three tournament games against Oshkosh, the New York Rens, and the Acmes.

Sparking the Fort Wayne attack was Bud Jeanette, who accounted for 18 of his team's points. The Dayton five found their more experienced opponents too tough on defense to allow them to get set for the pot shots that carried them into the final round of the tournament play.

In the opening game for third place the American Gears of Chicago came from behind to defeat the New York Rens, 64 to 55. For the Gears it was Price Brookfield, whose timely baskets aided in the victory. He made seven baskets and one free throw to lead his team in scoring.

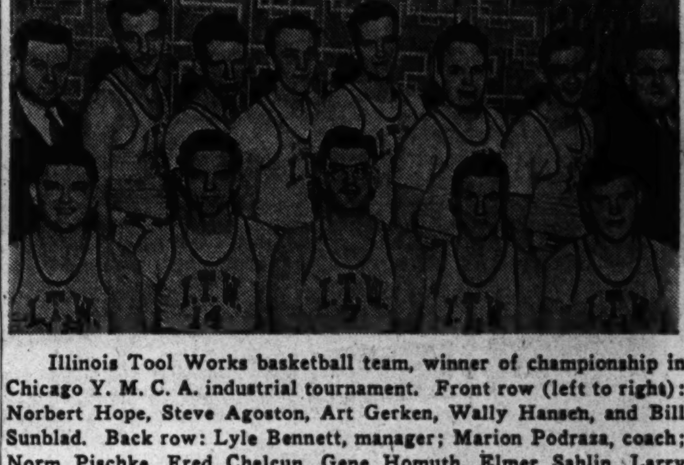
The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

THE Gits Molding and Illinois Tool Works basketball teams, both members of the North Av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. Industrial league, will meet for the fifth time this season Wednesday night in a play-off game for the championship of the second half of their league schedule. If the Gits boys win, it means there'll be another game between the same foes on Thursday, since I. T. W. won the first half title and the schedule calls for a post-season play-off between the first and second half winners.

Illinois Tool has won three of the four games played to date, the single Gits victory being one of the two regular season games in their league. Coach Marion Podraza's I. T. W. outfit won the other regular game, the first half championship play-off contest and the title game in the Chicago Y. M. C. A. tournament at North av. Tuesday.



Illinois Tool Works basketball team, winner of championship in Chicago Y. M. C. A. industrial tournament. Front row (left to right): Norbert Hope, Steve Agoston, Art Gerken, Wally Hansen, and Bill Sunblad. Back row: Lyle Bennett, manager; Marion Podraza, coach; Norm Pischke, Fred Chelcun, Gene Homuth, Elmer Sahlin, Larry Hope, and Jay Tomlin, I. T. W. personnel director.

The last mentioned contest was featured by a thrilling finish with Illinois Tool winning, 50 to 49, after leading by a fairly comfortable margin until near the end. Then the Gits took a momentary lead but could not hold it, tho Jimmy Hoffman, the losers' scoring star, missed a chance to tie it up when he failed on a free throw attempt after playing time ended. Speaking of free throws, Walter Schousen of Gits made 13 in 16 trials, along with three field goals, for a total of 19 points, high in the game.

Final standing of the North Av. league for the second half of the season follow:

Flashtrons in Position to Retain Pin Title.

Tho there still are four rounds of competition left on the season schedule of the Division St. Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league, the boys are just about ready to concede the team title to the Thordarson Flashtrons, champions in 1944 also. The reason is that the Flashtrons now hold a margin of eight games over their closest rivals, the Ekco Products, with 12 more to roll and it does not take much of a mathematician to figure that the leaders would have to hit a terrific slump to lose out now. Les Lesser of Hammond Instrument, with a season average of 182, looks like a repeater for the individual championship.

There's nothing anywhere near that definite about the probable outcome of the Chicago Association of Commerce Industrial league race, tho the Thompson Elevator and Electric now holds a two game lead, quite an advantage in view of the closeness of competition all winter. The margin was collected Thursday when the Thompsons won three games and Railway Express Agency, which had been tied for first, dropped two to Workman Calculators. La Salle Hotel turned in a single game total of 1,071, high for the league this season, and a series of 2,978, second high for the year.

Leaders in all divisions of the meet, prior to this week's session, are listed as follows by Walter Juergensen, tournament secretary:

CLASS A FIVE MEN—Ye Olde Bombers, Chrysler Corp., 2,900; Armour Clover Bloom Butter, 2,763.

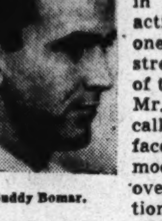
Al Myers and Harold Tetzlaff tied for second with records of 106 and 20, Myers winning a play-off for the runner-up spot. Ralph Otto earned a special award as the player showing the most improvement during the season. An all-star team from the Illinois Bell league will play a team from the Illinois Tool Works, Monday, April 2, at the North Town club.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY ROBERT BEACH.



Buddy Bomar.

LAST night Buddy Bomar and the other members of the Monarch Beer team, captained by Bill Flesch, together with the Prima Beers, their Classic league rivals, competed in Harold Kahl's Detroit Times five man Classic in Detroit. The action opened one of the most strenuous spans of tenpin activity Mr. B. has been called upon to face for many a moon. Let's look over the situation:

Next Saturday and Sunday Buddy will get a 15 game test from one Andy Varipapa of Hempstead, N. Y. It is to be bowled at Matty Faetz', 5961 N. Ridge av., as is all of Bud's local firing. They'll bowl five games Saturday night and five each Sunday afternoon and evening.

The following week-end, April 7-8, the Erie, Pa., hotshots, Lud Olson and Jimmy Allburn, will be here for another crack at Bud and his partner, Flesch, in a nontitle doubles engagement, seasoned with sugar.

Defend National Title in Detroit on April 14, 15.

On Saturday-Sunday, April 14-15, Bud and Bill will travel to Detroit where they will defend their national two man match game title against the challenge of Wally Reppenhagen and Bill Kenet of the Strohs. They'll bowl 21 games there, seven on Saturday night and seven each Sunday afternoon and evening. The following week-end, April 21-22, the Detroiters will be Bud's and Bill's guests at Faetz' place, to complete the title tussle, and most unhospitable hosts they're likely to prove on those drives.

The championship match, incidentally, will be decided on a point basis [not the Petersen system] which will give a team one point for each game won and one point for total pins in each block.

The following week-end, April 28-29, will probably find Bud up at Faetz' practicing to improve his game against the time in late May when he and his family will leave on an extensive tour which will take them to the northwest, Pacific coast, southwest, and parts of Dixie before they return sometime in September. And Bud will bowl at every stop. He'll be bowling exhibitions, giving instructions, renewing old acquaintances and forming new ones, taking part in tournaments and match games, and carrying on doing a deal of business for B. B. C. as well. He'll be busier than a swing shift bee and from the above you may safely glean that, as bees go, he's no drone.

High Scores Are Bowled in Bowling Lanes Ladies League.

CHATTER—Scores of 567 by Sally Ostrowski and Marge Christiansen, a 566 by Carolyn Leuder, and a 561 by Ialeen Riordan topped the weekly performances in the Bowling Lanes Ladies Major league. . . . Vern Anderson is resuming his spot in the Chicago and tenpin sun and is challenging the top bracket boys again. His latest victim was Russ Creamer, captain of the Classic league's Congress Arcades, whom he beat, 2,869 to 2,583. . . . The North End Traveling league starts its fourth round of competition tomorrow night with Keeley Half and Half owning a game lead over Thompson's Restaurant. Tomorrow night Keeleys face Williams at Kaadland and Thompsons meet Gold Crowns at De Luxe. Carl Winterburg's 212 average leads the circuit. . . . The Pabst Blue Ribbon Girls took the lead in the Windy City Ladies Major this week. . . . Mobilgas and Edelweiss are tied for the top spot in the Samuelson Major with 56-31 records. Fritzi Scheffs and Monarch Encore are tied for third at 47-40. Jim McCloskey's 665 led the pack this week.

Mario Restaurant Team to Meet Wisconsin Stars.

Since the first of January the Mario Restaurant team has won 15 straight games in the Bowling Lanes Ladies Major league and now is tied with the Lustre Cremes for second place. Their current team average is 889. Incidentally, the Mario girls will engage in a match with a La Crosse, Wis., all-star women's team. The match will take place in La Crosse and tentative dates have been set for the second week-end in April. . . . The Detroit city tournament broke all national records for a city meet with a 3,016 team turnout. . . . Joe Wilman has won more money in A. B. C. tournaments than any other man. Junie McMahon, recently moved to Chicago from Lodi, N. J., ranks second. . . . Don Love of the Highway Motor Transport team won the Santa Fe Railway league's sweeper with a 638 total. He had a 10 pin handicap. . . . Wylma Gunderson's 548 and Genevieve Nagle's 545 led the feminine half of the scoring in the Sunday Mixed at Schalks. Fred Harvey was back on top of the men's standings with 608, including games of 214 and 234.

CLEVELAND BARONS WIN.

Cleveland, O., March 24 [AP].—Cleveland's Barons defeated the Buffalo Bisons, 5 to 1, in the third game of the American Hockey league's first place play-off series tonight before a season's record crowd of 11,931.

HAKOAHS MEET VIKINGS TODAY IN CUP MATCH

BY OFFSIDE.

The Vikings, Chicagoland soccer champions, will be striving for their 23d consecutive victory when they meet the Hakoah-Centers in Winnemac park stadium, Foster av. and Leavitt st., at 2:30 this afternoon in a second round match in the National Open cup competition.

Another National Open cup second round encounter will pit the Spartas against the Slovaks in Sparta stadium, 21st st. and Kostner av., also at 2:30 p. m.

In all, 10 games are scheduled for today, and the increased soccer activity probably will continue until the opening of the National league season on April 15.

Hakoahs Handicapped.

Their showing of last Sunday, when they let victory over the strong Swedish Americans slip from their grap late in the second 30 minute overtime period of an Illinois state semi-final game, indicates that the Hakoahs may be capable of snapping the Vikings' string of triumphs. But Harry Field, Hakoah manager, has occasion for worry in that Eddie Linderman, one of his better players, emerged from last Sunday's match badly crippled and Max Grunner, who saw little action against the Swedish Americans, also is a doubtful starter.

One Change in Viking Lineup.

The Vikings are to make only one change in the lineup which has brought them so many victories. Eric Johnson, the most recent addition to their roster, suffered a severe hand injury while working at his war job and probably will be on the sidelines for several weeks. His place in the lineup will be filled by either Nels Dalquist or John Potti.

Memorial services for Raymond Caplin, goal keeper who recently died in service, will be held before the game. Carl Helding Anderson, past president of the Chicago Swedish-American club, will speak, and the North Shore American Legion bugle corps will sound taps.

Because of the intense rivalry between the Slovaks and Spartas, a banner crowd is expected to witness the Sparta stadium battle.

It's Official! Crowe to Lead Iowa Eleven

Iowa City, Ia., March 24 [Special].—Clem F. Crowe, former Notre Dame star athlete with coaching experience at three institutions in the last 19 years has been approved officially by the state board of education as the University of Iowa's acting head football coach.

President Virgil M. Hancher in announcing board approval said that Crowe would take over the Iowa position on a two year contract starting April 1. He leaves the Notre Dame coaching staff where he served one season as head basketball coach and line coach in football.

Succeeds Slip Madigan.

In his new position Crowe succeeds Edward P. [Slip] Madigan, acting coach of 1943 and 1944, and fills in for Maj. Edward N. Anderson, on leave of absence to serve in the army medical corps in England since February, 1942.

Crowe, 41 years old, coached from 1932 thru 1942 at Xavier university in Cincinnati, O., until that institution abandoned athletics until after the war. Between 1926 and 1932 he was head football coach and athletic director at St. Vincent's college, Latrobe, Pa.

"I am impressed with Crowe's record as a coach and by his enthusiasm and interest in the Iowa position. It is a big relief to get the Iowa coaching situation settled so we can go ahead with plans for the 1945 season," R. G. [Dad] Schroeder, director of athletics, said.

Plans Spring Training.

He will be empowered to select what assistants he needs to handle the Hawkeye squad. Crowe also plans to work with Coach Lawrence [Pops] Harrison with the Iowa basketball squad.

Crowe will assemble available football material early in April and later will conduct four weeks of summer practice in accordance with Big Ten regulations.

FIVE RECORDS BROKEN IN PURDUE RELAYS

CUBS A'S BEAT B'S, 12-2; CARD 3 GAMES WITH REDS

LEAGUE RIVALS TO OPEN SERIES AT FORT KNOX

Clash April 7 and 8 in Louisville.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 24.—When the thermometer popped up into the 80s here today it loosed much unexpected baseball activity, including an unscheduled seven inning intra-club game in which the A Cubs defeated the B Cubs, 12 to 2, and the announcement that the Cubs will go thru with their originally scheduled exhibition games with the Cincinnati Reds at Fort Knox and Louisville, Ky.

Today's game was decided upon at 1 o'clock when Manager Charles Grimm saw the mercury rise above the 80 mark and observed the magnolia trees in full bloom. The announcement anent reinstatement of the three Kentucky exhibition games followed the arrival here of Maj. Paul Heverly of Fort Knox.

Open Series April 6.

No new Cub secrets were released about the announced intention of the Reds to come here to join up with the Cubs on April 2, remaining here till the departure for Fort Knox. The Reds and Cubs will play before the soldiers on April 6 and in Louisville April 7 and 8. Tho Manager Grimm said he hadn't heard anything official about the plan from the Chicago secrets department, and the hotel manager said he had no request for reservations, it is assumed the Reds will be here as announced.

There has been no announcement here as to just what has happened to allow the reinstatement of the exhibition program. Every one in camp is pleased with the prospect of making the trip and enjoying league competition but there is mystification about the whole reversal. Going into Kentucky formerly required a special dispensation from the agreement between the late Commissioner K. M. Landis and the late ODT chief, Joseph L. Eastman, which prescribed the Ohio and Potomac rivers as southern boundaries for training endeavors.

They'll Play for Soldiers.

Maj. Heverly said there was no circumvention of government agreements in the appearance of the teams at Fort Knox. As special service officer of the vast encampment at Fort Knox he said he has full permission to engage commercial buses to carry the Cubs and Reds from here to the camp and back to Louisville, which is 30 miles north of Fort Knox.

Today's game saw two of the Cubs' big five pitchers, Paul Derringer and Eddie Hanyzewski, oppose each other with all the stuff they could put on the ball. In their three inning stays Derringer yielded three hits and none of the three runs made by the A team during the span was earned.

Secory Hits Two Triples.

Len Merullo made a triple, Don Johnson, a double, and Andy Pafko a single. Paul walked two and struck out two. The nine runs the A team made after Paul went away were at the expense of an attack on Mack Stewart, which included successive triples by Frank Secory.

Hanyzewski pitched against a team which included three soldier lads and yielded four hits and the two runs, one of which was earned.

SENATORS PLAY BRAVES TODAY IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—The capital gets its first taste tomorrow of the brand of baseball that will be served in 1945, in an exhibition between the Boston Braves and Washington Senators. The contest will be played at College park, training camp of the Senators, with proceeds going to the Red Cross.

Both teams will throw their strongest available lineups into the game to support seasoned pitching. Dutch Leonard probably will start for the Senators and John Hutchings for the Braves.

Warren Ely, New Trier's strong man, who broke a nine year old Oak Park relays record by putting the 12 pound shot 53 feet 5⅝ inches. He made this mark in the afternoon preliminaries, and it stood up in last night's finals. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

DYKES HAS NEW WORRIES; SOX IN GOOD CONDITION

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Terre Haute, Ind., March 24.—James Dykes, the White Sox boss, now has a new worry to add to others such as the nonsigning attitude of three of his pitchers, the lack of a first baseman and doubt about other spots in a lineup that he hopes to present as at least a bit on the major league side come April 17.

The new worry is the condition of his men, or boys, after 13 days of muscle stretching in a northern training camp. The weather, as a whole, has been so good that even California should blush, the result of the unexpected series of March sunshines being an excellent state of physical condition for all concerned.

Dykes thinks he may have to grant his squad an off day if the balmy weather continues and this worries him because he doesn't like to reveal himself as a soft hearted task master.

Wants to Carry 10 Pitchers.

Dykes would like to see his unsigned pitchers who are Bill Dietrich, Orval Grove, and Johnny Humphries and he has a double reason for that desire. The three fellows figure in the manager's plans for establishing a bridgehead in the first division and besides he wants to carry 10 moundsmen this season.

At the moment there are present only four pitchers who can be more or less accepted as big leaguers. They are Buck Ross, Thornton Lee, John Johnson who came from the Yankees, and Ed Lopat, the lefty who drilled today for the first time. Lopat won 11 while losing 10 last season. Add this quartet to three holdout moundsmen as well as Joe Haynes who has signed and is on his way, and you have eight. Getting the two others is the problem, especially if you remember that somebody has to take the place of Gordon Maltzberger, the talented rescue artist, now in the army.

Mike Tresh Reports.

Workout today was just about as lengthy as any ever staged by Dykes is his managerial career. The 25 player squad answered the work whistle at 11 a. m. and wasn't excused until three hours later. Given the weather they wanted the athletes didn't mind the lengthy session because Dykes let them hit and hit and hit.

The holdout ranks dwindled to the pitching department when Mike Tresh, the first string catcher, showed up this evening after advising Vice President Harry Grabiner in Chicago that he was on his way from Detroit. Guy Curtright, the Sox fourth outfielder, also checked in tonight.

For tomorrow's camp game Dykes has picked Ross, Johnson, Frank Papish from the Little Rock club, and Al Treichel, from the same place, for the pitching chores.

AMES DEFEATS MUSCATINE TO WIN IOWA TITLE

Des Moines, Ia., March 24 (AP).—Ames' Little Cyclones, the Destiny Kids of 1945 Iowa interscholastic basketball, won the state championship tonight with a 35 to 33 victory over Muscatine's Little Muskies.

Capt. Jim Buck pulled his Little Cyclones from what appeared imminent defeat by tying the score at 33 all with a one hand shot from the side and then broke the tie with a calm free throw with only 45 seconds to play.

Trailing at the end of the first quarter 6 to 10, Sioux City's Central High school team came back to defeat Storm Lake, 32 to 18, for consolation honors. The victory gave Sioux City third place in the title race.

N. Y. U. DEFEATS OHIO IN EASTERN FINALS, 70 TO 65

New York, March 24 (AP).—Overcoming a 10 point lead in the last two minutes to send the game into overtime, New York university tonight won the basketball championship of the eastern division of the N. C. A. A. with a 70 to 65 triumph over Ohio State in Madison Square Garden.

Trailing, 62 to 52, after Ohio State had gained the longest lead enjoyed by either team, the Violets started finding the range with Lanky Adolph Schayes leading the attack. They had cut the margin to six points when the midwesterners lost their chief scorer, Arnold [Stilts] Risen, on personal fouls. He had dropped in 26 points and was a power off the boards.

Ohio Loses Two More.

With Risen's departure, the New Yorkers really started to roll and tied the score at 62 to 62 on Don Forman's set shot with 30 seconds left. Ohio State lost two more of its starters, Jack Dugger and Paul Huston, on fouls in the five minute extra period, but even with them in the game there was no stopping the Violets who scored three quick baskets after the Buckeyes had gone ahead, 65 to 64.

25 Fouls on Each Team.

The game was rough from the start to the finish with 25 fouls being called against each team. Schayes had four on him before the game was three minutes old but he still was around at the end. The Buckeyes cashed in on 19 of their chances from the foul line while New York university made good on 16.

Chicago's Big Guns Set Fast Pace in Golden Gloves Drill

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The big guns took the stage first yesterday as the Chicago Golden Gloves squad hopped into the ring in the Illinois Athletic club gymnasium for the second day of boxing in the local boys' preparation for the 18th annual intercity battle against New York in Chicago Stadium April 4. Whereas the four lighter weight divisions had dominated the opening boxing exercise on Friday, the heavier quartet took full charge yesterday, swinging gloves in single three minute rounds before the smaller fellows came on.

I. A. C. members and their sons who were making their regular Saturday visit to the club were regaled with a pre-view of what Chicago's team hopes to hurl against the New York invaders. Like all Chicagoans, they have been forewarned that this is the year the New York team means it. The easterners not only have a well balanced personnel, as demonstrated in their Madison Square Garden finals on March 14, but are introducing a training method new to them. For the first time in their 18 year history they have gone to a special training camp at Bear Mountain, N. Y. In the past they have confined their preliminary maneuvers to Manhattan.

Coaches Caution Boys.

Head Coach Johnny Behr and his associates, Fred Caserio, Issy Kline, Eddie Nichols, Pop Howard, and Dick Fitzpatrick, yesterday again hammered home the fact that this is one of the strongest New York teams ever to prepare for the Stadium ring. Their emphasis on the strength of the Gotham personnel was such that there wasn't the least suspicion of overconfidence on the part of the Chicago boys.

These 1945 representatives of our town were told to forget the record of 10 Chicago victories and three ties in the last 17 struggles between the two cities. The last time New York came here—that was two years ago—Chicago all but swept the program with a 14 to 2 triumph. Last year, the local squad drove into New York's home grounds at the Garden and handed them a 9 to 7 licking.

Coaches, Fighters Busy.

The coaches informed their charges that this is a very pretty record, but one to be saved for scrapbooks. The main task, one of the toughest intercity problems ever faced by a Chicago squad, is

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Montreal, 4; Toronto, 1.

TORONTO, Ont., March 24 (AP).—Montreal Canadiens, unleashing a three goal second period drive tonight skated back into the Stanley Cup picture with a 4 to 1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs in the third game of their semi-final series. The Leafs lead the eight point series, 4 to 2. A crowd of 15,087 saw the game.

The Canadiens outbatted the Leafs during the first two periods. They piled up a 4 to 0 lead which stood up behind a rocklike defense until midway in the third period when Veteran Bob Davidson finally cracked thru for the Toronto goal with the assistance of Babe Pratt and Lorne Carr.

Elmer Lach Opens Scoring.

Elmer Lach, playing with a swollen ankle, opened the scoring in the first period on a pass from Murphy Chamberlain.

In the second Bob Filion, Dutch Hiller, and Murph Chamberlain blasted pucks past Frank McCool. Filion's goal, climaxing a rink length dash, was the prettiest goal of the night.

Montreal Draws Six Penalties.

Ten penalties were dealt out in the contest, six to Montreal. Play was delayed six minutes in the third period when McCool stopped a hard, high shot by Lach with his forehead. Lineups:

MEXICAN TRACK STEWARDS BAN JOCKEY MEADE

MEXICO CITY, March 24 (AP).—Don Meade, American jockey, today was suspended for the remainder of the meeting by stewards at the Hipodromo de las Americas race track. The meeting has two months to run.

Track officials said Meade had been taken off all his mounts and denied the privileges of the track . . . for reprehensible conduct." No further explanation was made except that the officials said the decision was based on many things and declared that there was no question of racing integrity involved.

Meade, who has ridden many winners since he arrived from Miami, notably in the feature events, appeared before the stewards this morning. He was not available for comment.

Three new records were established and a new champion crowned as more than 700 athletes, representing 42 high schools, participated in the 15th annual Oak Park relays yesterday afternoon and last night. An estimated total of 3,000 attended the sessions.

The new team champion is Oak Park High school, undefeated in track competition this year. The suburban team won eight events and scored 76 3/7 points to succeed New Trier of Winnetka, which finished second with 44 3/7 points.

Two of the new records were established by the Oak Park entrants. The eight lap relay team of Bill Little, Bob Eilert, Joe Angner, and Herb Sauer, turned in a time of 3:04.5, bettering the mark of 3:05.1 likewise established by Oak Park in 1935.

Ely Breaks Shot Record.

The Oak Park freshman four lap relay team of Brian Page, Tony Vesuto, Bill Konrad Mack Bowman, won with a time of 1:28.1, clipping two and eight-tenth seconds from the mark established by the New Trier entry last year.

Third of the meet records to fall was the shot put mark of 53 feet, 4½ inches, established by Bill Faymonville, of New Trier, in 1935. This record was broken by hefty Warren Ely, New Trier football star, at 53 feet 5⅝ inches.

Oak Park had strong teams in the five relay events, sweeping these for 50 of its 76 3-7 points. The champions also scored firsts in the pole vault, and high and low hurdles. It was the 10th title in 15 years for the Villagers.

Schurz of the City league placed fourth in the four lap relay, last event of the evening, to edge out Evanston for third place.

Vault Champion Loses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., March 24.—Five records were broken and one was tied tonight in Purdue's fieldhouse in the third relay carnival conducted by the Boilermakers. Four thousand watched the climax of the midwestern indoor track campaign, in which 20 universities and colleges, along with Great Lakes and Iowa Pre-Flight, were represented by more than 200 athletes.

The program of eight relays and six individual championship events was presented with panoply seldom arranged for the sport and the meet moved with precision. Michigan and Miami university of Oxford, O., retained their team titles. It was a third consecutive sweep of the college division for the Ohioans. Illinois, victor in a record breaking mile relay that ended the games, was second to Michigan's 36½ points with 20, while Purdue nosed out Great Lakes, 16½ to 16. Miami's total of 48 points was the largest in the history of the meet.

Miami Sweeps Relays.

Miami won all four college relays and Harold [Whitey] Fisher, who ran on the sprint medley team, tied the 60 yard low hurdle record in the preliminaries, altho he was defeated in the championship event. Fisher won the 60 yard high hurdle title.

Miami's sprint medley runners set a new meet record. Other marks were established by Great Lakes' sprint medley quartet and by Bob Phelps, Illinois' pole vaulter, and by Ken Weisner of Marquette, winner in the high jump.

Wiesner and Phelps scored the most notable achievements in the individual events. The Marquette veteran, defending his high jump honors, cleared 6 feet 6⅝ inches to break his own meet record and defeat Corp. Dwight Eddleman, of Wright field. Eddleman, onetime Illinois athlete, who defeated Wiesner a week ago in Chicago, jumped 6 feet 5⅜ inches.

Phelps Wins, But Is Injured.

Phelps continued his superlative pole vaulting with a record of 13 feet 7⅞ inches but dislocated his right elbow in his third trial at 13 feet 10 inches. Billy Moore of Western Michigan held the former Purdue record of 13 feet 6 inches but tonight Moore was second at 13 feet.

Fisher won the first heat of the 60 yard low hurdles in the afternoon preliminaries in 6 9-10 seconds, which tied the meet record set last year by Buddy Young of Illinois. This also is recognized as an American record for five hurdles on a dirt track and is shared by Dave Rankin of Purdue; Verne Olsen of Illinois, and Roy Cochran of Indiana, as well as Young.

In the championship low hurdles race this evening Fisher was nosed out by Ray Tharp of Minnesota. Fisher came back later, however, to take the 60 yard high hurdle title.

Bangert Barely Beats Quirk.

The shot put, in which 16 athletes entered, was a duel between Ed Quirk and Bill Bangert of Missouri. Bangert led in the trials with a mark of 51 feet as five qualified for the finals. On his last put in the finals, Quirk took the lead with 51 feet 6½ inches. Bangert followed immediately. On HIS last attempt he won the championship with a put of 52 feet 1¾ inches.

Chuck Beaudry of Marquette won the 60 yard dash in the last few steps from Bill Lund of Case. Bill Buster, Illinois' Western conference indoor champion, was shut out in the field of six. Third place went to Ben Harvey of Purdue. Beaudry's time of 6 3/10 seconds was one-fifth of a concerned with that vital April 4 date in the Stadium.

From the beginning of yesterday's workout to its finish, it was plain that Capt. Behr and his coaching staff had not wasted their time in warning the team of the job it faces. While the captain directed the day's training regimen from the floor, Coaches Kline and Caserio officiated as referee and timekeeper, respectively, for the three minute rounds allotted to each pair of boxers. Kline and Caserio spent one of the busiest afternoons of their Golden Gloves experience as a result.

Baylark, Klemm Set Pace.

Issy had difficulty separating the swinging candidates, and Caserio had to yank the ringside round bell several extra times in order to convince the boys that the three minute session was up.

First to have a go at each other yesterday were Luke Baylark of Chicago, winner of the heavyweight title, and Pvt. Max Klemm of Chanute field, who was awarded the Joe Louis trophy for sportsmanship. Luke and the soldier didn't take time out for more than one 10 second span in the brief round. They ignited a rapid punching tempo which increased as the afternoon went on to the lighter weights, with Jackie Boyd, Chicago's winner of the 1945 flyweight Golden Glove, going at the fastest clip of all against Spider Thomas, the speedy Muncie Negro.

HOCHSTADTER'S PIN MEET LIST CLOSES TONIGHT

Entries for Barney Hochstadter's fifth Original Individual Junior bowling classic are to close at midnight. The tournament, for bowlers with averages not in excess of 185, is to open April 14 at Archer-35th Recreation. The competition is eight games across 16 alleys.

The Hochstadter Junior event is something of a bowling gold rush in that the first prize has been increased from $1,500 to $2,500, and a diamond studded gold medal also is to go to the winner. There are to be 275 other regular awards and approximately 500 squad prizes distributed thru the field from the estimated general prize list of $26,560 based on 2,656 entries, the total achieved last year.

The entry list was reduced by 1,800 about a month ago when Barney voluntarily turned back that number of entries to comply with the travel restrictions but, despite this, indications are that the 2,656 total of 1944 will be exceeded. Entries can be made by writing Archer-35th Recreation, 2055 W. 35th st., or calling YARds 2772. The fee is $10 plus bowling.

Roosevelt Bowl Singles Sweeper Opens Sunday

A two week-end singles sweeper will be run at the Roosevelt bowl, 1138 S. Wabash av., Saturdays and Sundays, March 31-April 1 and April 7-8. The event will be three games on six alleys with a two-thirds handicap on 200 scratch. House prizes will be awarded for high single game each of the four days. Bowlers may participate as often as they wish, but may win only once. Entry fee of $3.50 covers all expenses.

FIVE MARINES JOIN EASTERN GLOVES SQUAD

BY BILL MURTHA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 24.—New York's hopes of defeating Chicago's Golden Glovers for the first time soared today when five beaming marines checked into the eastern training camp at this resort. The marines had not been expected until tomorrow, but managed to get leave in time to arrive for a workout today.

The five additions bring the squad in training here to 27, one short of the full complement. Only Heavyweight Lee Smith is missing and he is expected any time. Two of the marines are champions, Welterweight Laverne Roach and Middleweight Howard Brodt. Another is the lightweight runner-up in the eastern Tournament of Champions, Al Highers.

These Boys Are in Shape.

Highers put on one of the greatest exhibitions in the 19 year history of the New York Golden Gloves before losing to Eddie Murphy of New York in the finals. The eastern coaches also like Joe Rindone who lost in the finals to Light Heavyweight Champion Roland Lastarza and will surely use him in the alternate spot against the westerners in the Stadium on April 4.

Only Harold Anspach, marine middleweight, is not sure of fighting against Chicago. He lost in the New York finals to Howard Brodt, his comrade in arms. If Anspach lives up to the promises of his leatherneck companions, he may be the alternate choice in the 160 pound class. All the marines are stationed at the Cherry Point, N. C., marine air base.

The new arrivals lost nothing in being absent from formal workouts here at Bear Mountain. They've been in training ever since they returned to Cherry Point following the Tournament of Champions on March 14 and they're as far advanced as any other member of the New York squad.

With two more champions in the fold the east now has seven of the eight lads who won titles, their best showing in several years. Only the heavyweight winner was unable to get time off from work to make the trip and his spot is expected to be amply filled by Smith.

Squad Visits West Point.

In the intercity meetings last year, the New Yorkers had only five champions to throw against the Chicagoans and were forced to use two novice lads who had been fighting only a few months. Fortunately one of the novices, Lastarza, now the eastern champion, won his bout and helped to cut down Chicago's 1944 margin to 9-7.

The eastern workout was delayed today so that the boxers could take advantage of the invitation of the West Point Athletic association to visit the academy and watch the Saturday inspection. Many of the young men had never visited the Point and even some of the service men in the party, who should certainly have seen quite enough of drilling for the time being, were impressed with the sight of West Point on a war footing.

Novice Boxer Impressive.

The academy of peace time was a far more leisurely place than is the grim training school for war in 1945. The complement of embryo officers has been greatly increased and they're on an accelerated schedule, but the brilliance and precision of the corps marching has been dimmed not one bit.

The star of today's workout was Angelo Luongo, novice bidder for a lightweight alternate spot. The 16 year old youngster turned in a sizzling session with his foremost rival, Leon Johnson, and caused a hasty revision of plans by the New York coaches.

Luongo hadn't been thought experienced enough to beat out Johnson and had been taken along largely as insurance but his performance this afternoon stamps him as a serious contender for the slot behind Eddie Murphy. The New Yorkers haven't forgotten that other novices have turned in victories against the west and Luongo is one of the classiest youngsters to come up in Golden Gloves in years.

CHICAGO'S 1945 GOLF SCHEDULE LISTS 27 EVENTS

Chicago's 1945 golf schedule, chronologically the most streamlined program this section ever has produced, was announced yesterday thru the Chicago District Golf association, acting for itself and kindred fairway organizations in Chicago.

Outstanding in the list of 27 established competitive events are the Chicago Victory National tournaments, set for June 27-July 1 at a course to be announced later; the Women's Western Amateur at Knollwood, Aug. 20-25; the All-American tournaments at Tam o' Shanter, July 26-29; the city amateur championship at Jackson park the week of Aug. 6, and the Chicago Women's District Golf association tournament at Northmoor, July 16-20.

Fixtures in Chicago.

All of the events listed below have been fixtures in the Chicago golf scheme. Too often, however, the yearly schedules resulted in date conflicts, with the result that entries and press coverage suffered. For the last three years the Locker Room, regular Sunday golf column published in THE TRIBUNE, has advocated a winter meeting of the officials of all local golf groups, with a view to ironing out such time kinks. Larry Rutherford of Medinah, president of the C. D. G. A., called such a meeting early last December in the La Salle hotel.

Schedules for Season.

The result of their schedule planning, in which there is a minimum of date clashes, follows:

JUNE 5—Illinois Seniors' spring tournament at Westmoreland.
JUNE 14-17—C. D. G. A. Illinois state tournament at St. Charles.

AUG. 13-18—Cook County Men's Amateur at Columbus park.
AUG. 20-25—Women's Western Amateur at Knollwood.
AUG. 23—C. D. G. A. Club Relations day at Edgewater.
AUG. 25-26—Illinois Public Links association match play tourney at Mid-City.
AUG. 27—C. D. G. A. caddy championship at Oak Park.
DATE TO BE ANNOUNCED—Illinois Seniors' annual tourney at Exmoor.
AUG. 31—C. D. G. A. State Southpaw tournament at Ridge.
SEPT. 7—C. W. D. G. A. two ball event at Midlothian
SEPT. 9—CHICAGO TRIBUNE-Chicago Park District All-Star amateur tournament at Jackson park.
SEPT. 12—C. D. G. A. Interclub league championship at Glen Oak.

Participating in the December, 1944, meeting, were the Women's Western Golf association, the Chicago Women's District Golf association, the Illinois Women's State Golf association, the Illinois Seniors' Golf association, the Illinois Public Links association, the Chicago Park District, and the Chicago District Golf association. The Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America has agreed to arrange its 1945 schedule to conform with the above to avoid date conflicts.

Toledo loaded the bases in the seventh with on outs, but scored only two runs. First Baseman Ignasiak of Toledo pounded out the first triple of the exhibition series. Gutteridge hit safely in three of his four times at bat. The game went eight innings.

REDS' HURLER QUITS GAME.

Bloomington, Ind., March 24 (AP).—Pitcher Gene Hinrichs, complaining of extreme pain in his back, a condition which caused his discharge from the army, turned in his Cincinnati uniform today and announced his retirement from baseball.

"I can't do justice to myself or the club," he explained.

TIGER SUBS WIN.

Evansville, Ind., March 24 (AP).—A two run sixth inning gave the Yannigans a 2 to 1 victory over the regulars today in the Detroit Tigers' first spring training practice game.

SHORT ON INFIELDERS.

Lafayette, Ind., March 24 (AP).—As the Cleveland Indians rounded out two weeks of spring training, Manager Lou Boudreau today counted 11 pitchers on hand and another en route to camp—but he bemoaned his scarcity of infielders.

As of now, Boudreau's inner defense will consist of himself at short, Al Cihocki at second, Bob Rothel at third, and either Ed Carnett or Fred [Pep] Williams at first.

SIEBERT REPORTS TO A's.

Frederick, Md., March 24 (AP).—Dick Siebert, veteran first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, arrived today with the news that he has been reclassified 4-F by his St. Paul, Minn., draft board. Determined to shed five surplus pounds, he promptly took part in his first outdoor workout.

DODGERS DEFEAT ARMY, 6-5.

West Point, N. Y., March 24 (AP).—Brooklyn defeated the army baseball team, 9 to 5, today in the Dodgers' first exhibition game of the season. Bill Hart's home run in the first inning, with Morris Aderholt aboard, featured the Dodgers' attack.

The veteran Curt Davis, Hal Gregg, and Rookie Vic Lombardi shared the pitching assignment, giving up nine hits.

Ray Hayworth, veteran catcher, and Cy Buker, pitcher from St. Paul, are due to report Monday. Infielder Mike Sandlock will be inducted into the army April 3. Score:

BOB JOHNSON HITS HOMER.

Pleasantville, N. J., March 24 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox pitchers appeared far ahead of the batters today when Bob Johnson's regulars topped Manager Joe Cronin and the Yannigans 3 to 2 in the first intrasquad game of the season, a six innings affair.

Johnson made his team's first tally with a home run in the opening inning. Before the game, Pitcher Jim Wilson, a 19 game winner for Louisville last season, suffered a wrenched knee while taking batting practice.

ROOKIE SHOWS SPEED.

During a scrub game the rookie, up from the Sacramento Pacific Coast league club, hit a pop fly that was misjudged. Before the fly chaser took two steps and regained the ball, Ramsey had rounded second and beat the throw-in to third by yards. He was a sprinter for the University of Florida.

SENATORS WIN, 5 TO 2.

Baltimore, Md., March 24 (AP).—The Washington Senators opened their baseball season today by defeating the Curtis Bay Coast Guard Cutters, 5 to 2. The Cutters failed to solve the pitching of Lewis Aloma and Santiago Ulrich, Cuban born hurlers. The Senators made 10 hits off Floyd Giebell, former Detroit Tiger moundsman, and Bob Peterson.

Jack Chevigny Dies in Action on Iwo Jima

Lt. Jack E. Chevigny, Notre Dame football star of almost two decades ago and later a college and professional gridiron coach, was one of the thousands who died in the invasion of Iwo Jima. It was learned yesterday that Chevigny, liaison officer with the 27th marine division, died on the first day of the Americans' tremendous assault on the Pacific volcanic island.

The news was first learned by Chevigny's sister, Mrs. Joseph Gaffney, wife of an army major in Washington, D. C. He is survived by another sister, Mrs. Tim Galvin, 10 Vine, Hammond, and two brothers, Dr. Henry Chevigny of Los Angeles and Dr. J. J. Chevigny of 654 Johnson, Gary.

LT. JACK CHEVIGNY.

Lived in Hammond.

Chevigny, who won his lieutenancy on June 12, 1943, was unmarried. Before entering the service he had made his home in Hammond with his sister.

Chevigny reached his heights as a right half back on the Notre Dame team of 1928 which Coach Knute Rockne described as the gamest squad he had ever coached. Rockne praised Chevigny as one of the greatest right half backs in Notre Dame history. His strong points were blocking and backing up a line.

Helped to Develop Brill.

The Notre Dame star remained on the campus after his graduation in 1929 as back field coach and was credited with helping develop Marty Brill into a star at that position. Rockne's other aid that season was Heartly [Hunk] Anderson. After Rockne's death in a plane crash in 1931, Chevigny was named junior coach at Notre Dame and Anderson was given the title of senior coach.

Early in 1932, Chevigny resigned at Notre Dame and in July of that year was named head coach of the Chicago Cardinals, replacing Ernie Nevers. He remained with the Cards two seasons and in 1933 was football coach at St. Edward's university in Austin, Tex. His team won the Texas conference football championship.

Chevigny's success at St. Edward's led to his appointment in 1934 as head coach at the University of Texas. There he remained for three years. On Nov. 11, 1936, at a dinner for the Texas football team, he announced that he would not return the following season. He later became a member of the Texas attorney general's staff in Austin. Before entering the service he was in the oil business in Illinois.

Defeated Notre Dame Eleven.

Chevigny brought his Texas team to Notre Dame in 1934, which was Elmer Layden's first season as coach of the Irish. The result was a 7 to 6 victory for the Longhorns.

Chevigny's death is the third recorded among varsity football letter winners at Notre Dame. Ensign Hercules Bereolos, a navy flyer who played guard on the 1940 and 1941 teams, was killed about a year ago. Like Chevigny, his home was in Hammond. Lt. Col. Vince Harrington, guard on the 1924 team, died in England of natural causes.

Ho Hum, Mosconi Defeats Greenleaf Again, 125-116

Willie Mosconi, national pocket billiards champion, made it nine out of 10 blocks yesterday afternoon, defeating Ralph Greenleaf, 125 to 116, in Bensinger's, 131 S. Wabash av. Mosconi had a high run of 63.

LAKE SHORE A. C. WINS 3 EVENTS IN A. A. U. SWIM

The Lake Shore Athletic club dominated the Central A. A. U. swimming meet last night, winning three of the six feature events in the Lawson Y. M. C. A. pool. Lake Shore took firsts in two of the four men's events and in one of the two women's features.

Joe Domerosky won the 100 yard breast stroke race. In the 300 yard medley relay, two of Lake Shore's three teams took the first two places and only a strong finish by the Waukegan Y representatives avoided a clean sweep in this event.

Marilynn Bilquist rounded out the Lake Shore victories, pulling ahead of Teammate Jean Wilson on the final turn to win the women's 100 yard free style.

Marilynne Miller and Kay Dempsey gave the Town club a first and third, respectively, in the women's low board diving event. Lawson, host to the meet, had its lone victory in the men's 100 yard free style, won by Dick Houcek.

Nelson's 137 Leads Golfers in Greensboro

Greensboro, N. C., March 24 (AP).—Byron Nelson, bidding for his second straight Open title and his sixth of the winter golf tour, moved into the lead today at the halfway mark of the $7,500 Greensboro tournament.

The mechanical man of golf fired a 4 under par 67 for a 36 hole total of 137 and a one stroke lead over Johnny Revolta, the first day leader, who added a 70 to his first round 68.

Five thousand fans swarmed over the Starmount Forest Country club course, most of them following Nelson and Revolta. Nelson rewarded them with a near perfect round. He missed two greens, the third where a tricky wind quit suddenly causing him to overshoot, and 15th where he pulled a drive into the woods and had to use a short iron. He had four birdies in a row, starting with nine, sinking putts of 15, 20, 8, and 2 feet.

Craig Wood in Third Place.

Craig Wood batted out a 68 to move into third place at 140 to insure a three way battle in tomorrow's 36 hole finale.

Sam Byrd added a 72 for 142, and Sam Snead carded a 71 for 143 to wind up in sixth and seventh places.

Detroit Entrant Cards 70.

In fourth place with 141s were two little known pros, Orville White of Winston-Salem, N. C., who fired a 69 today and Jim Gauntt of Ardmore, Okla., who had a 70.

Avery Beck, the Raleigh amateur who was in a second place tie at 70 yesterday, needed 75 today and dropped behind Ed Furgol of Detroit, who had 74—70.

NATIONAL A. A. U. TOURNEY WON BY PHILLIPS 66

Denver, Colo., March 24 (AP).—Phillips 66 of Bartlesville, Okla., won its third successive A. A. U. National basketball title tonight by slipping past Denver Ambrose in the final minute to win a gruelling struggle, 47 to 46, before 7,500 fans in City auditorium.

Cessna's Bobcats of Wichita, Kas., outran Twentieth Century Fox of Hollywood, Cal., to win third place, 55 to 48.

JACK LAMOTTA, COSTNER AWAIT STADIUM BOUT

Costner did only loosening up exercises, handlers canceling his scheduled final boxing drill in the belief he is ready for anything his eastern foe has to offer.

Lamotta, however, sparred three rounds, two with Verne Patterson and one with Patsy Spataro. The session with Spataro lasted seven minutes.

Stopped by Robinson.

Costner will be attempting to redeem himself for a knockout suffered at the hands of Ray [Sugar] Robinson last month.

Costner was the underdog against Robinson, but none of the 21,000 spectators, who contributed to a $94,000 gate, thought George could be sent to the canvas for the count in the first round.

It was the first time Costner had been counted out in a six year campaign. He entered the ring against Robinson with a record of 23 straight victories, 22 by knockouts, an achievement which gave fans the idea he might spring an upset against Ray.

Robinson, former New York intercity Golden Gloves champion, has won 53 of his 54 professional starts. His lone defeat was dealt him by Lamotta in Detroit in 1943, Jack further embarrassing the previously invincible Robinson by scoring a no-count knockdown in the eighth round.

Lamotta Is Strong Finisher.

Thus, it is obvious that Costner is facing a difficult assignment tomorrow.

Costner has a chance to beat Lamotta. A lad with the punching power George possesses is liable to beat any opponent near his weight. Since Lamotta is a slow, plodding fighter, Costner must score early if at all. The longer the bout lasts the less chance George may have to win. Jack, who weighs 161 pounds, 14 more than his rival, is a strong, rugged foe who gets better as a battle progresses.

N. Y. EXCHANGE REPORTS PROFIT 2D YEAR IN ROW

New York, March 24 (AP).—The New York Stock exchange today reported 1944 operations of the exchange and its affiliated companies resulted in a consolidated net profit of $673,759 compared with $676,509 in 1943.

Emil Schram, president, said profits of the last two years reflected "normal activity" in the securities business after several years of depression. For six years prior to 1943 the exchange reported annual operating losses ranging from $140,000 in 1937 to $2,229,560 in 1941.

Bolsters Post-War Position.

By maintaining net profit at the 1943 level the exchange was able to strengthen its cash position for the post-war period "and to restore necessary reserves, depleted by the years of attrition and depression," Schram's report said.

Total income for 1944 was $5,465,072 against $5,226,848 in 1943. The largest single item of income, receipts from the charge of 1 per cent on net commissions retained by members and member firms from transactions effected on the exchange, totaled $1,009,155, a decrease of approximately $58,600 from 1943.

Increases U. S. Holdings.

Total expenses were $4,255,921 against $4,012,091 in 1943. Holdings of the exchange and affiliated companies of United States government securities increased from $3,100,850 to $4,754,090.

Schram said deferred repairs and replacement of building equipment will require major post-war expenditures.

ANOTHER "SQUARE PEG"

A week ago a salesman who had long cherished an ambition to capitalize his ability as a writer so declared himself in this newspaper. Today he is launched on a career as a copywriter, if he has taken one of several jobs offered him. All of which proves that business executives still have vision and the necessary *IF to back it up and that at least part of them don't entertain the illusion that all creative genius runs around with scrap books.

I, too, am a "square peg in a round hole," rattling around and doing nothing about it because I have always done too well as a salesman. At heart I am a creator, an inventor, a dreamer of practical dreams and a man who can put his ideas on paper with kindergarten drawings and words. Taking courage from the aforementioned chap's experience I am going on record here and now to the effect that I, also, am looking for a far-sighted and successful employer to be godfather to my ideas and ability. I will listen to reason and stay put. But I am no boy and must state frankly that I know what I want and will not settle for peanuts. Phooey on the vital statistics—I'm offering brains! I'm through rattling around. Interested?

*Intestinal Fortitude.

THE FORGOTTEN MEN HAVE BIG TRANSIT STAKE

36 Million of Junior Bonds Affected.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

What might be called the plight of the forgotten men is a vexing feature of the current attempts to solve the Chicago traction problem.

Judge Igoe.

The forgotten men—and women—are the owners of 36 million dollars of secondary mortgages of the Chicago Surface Lines. On their holdings they were paid interest regularly until the lines were forced into receivership in 1927; they have received nothing since that time.

Outranking these securities are nearly 73 millions of first mortgage bonds which received 5 per cent interest from 1907 to early 1944. The earnings in 1944 were sufficient to pay for that year, but payment has been withheld by court order.

Assets Conserved for Seniors.

The brunt of the cost of receivership and succeeding bankruptcy has been borne by the junior mortgage holders. Earnings were enough thru most of the post-1927 years to have paid junior interest, but the court was obliged to conserve all assets for the benefit of the seniors.

Some of the juniors, regarding themselves as having been the victims of law suits that were none of their making, take a prejudiced view of the proposal of the city of Chicago to buy the surface and L lines and to unify them under a transit district program backed by Gov. Green as well as by Mayor Kelly.

The city has made an offer, contingent on being able to borrow the money, of 75 million dollars for the surface lines and some of the lines' assets; the city estimates that a total of 83 to 85½ millions will be available to distribute among the lines' owners.

Fewer Millions for Juniors.

Experts say there seems no doubt that the seniors, standing on their legal rights, must be paid in full. If they are, and the city carries its scheme out, the juniors will divide not more than 12½ millions and may divide, say their gloomier prophets, less than 10 millions in return for the original 36 millions.

Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court, in charge of the bankruptcy, has said it would be unfair to the juniors to force them to accept the offer with no alternative but to have their investments remain in statu quo. He has warned the city that it must keep alive a 1941 ordinance under which the L and surface lines would be merged under private ownership and city regulation.

Balanced against the city's cash offer, the court or trustees' plan would give the juniors nothing but common stock subordinate to about 80 millions of bonds. Not a pleasant alternative, at best, the juniors say; yet it is known some junior groups are seriously contemplating taking it rather than the city cash.

Uncertainties Are Apparent.

Uncertainties inherent in the transit district plan are a factor these investors do not ignore. If the bill creating the district should be enacted at Springfield, an accompanying franchise ordinance ought not to have rough sledding in the city council. But investment bankers must be convinced that a new company's earning prospects are good enough to pay interest and modernize the whole system. Then the legislation must be validated by the Illinois Supreme court after the voters have approved the district statute and the ordinance by referendum.

Also the federal District court must find that any offer made is fair and in the public interest before submitting it to the owners. This might entail the making of a valuation, usually a long and delicate undertaking. The L owners must approve the offer of 12 millions plus.

With long delays in prospect, despite collaboration of the mayor and governor, the juniors have filed formal complaints asking a better deal for them in relation to the first mortgage people.

HERE'S Q. AND A. DETAIL ON NEW TRACTION PLAN

With Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly coöperating with apparently great good will to solve Chicago's traction problem, it is considered likely that the state legislature soon will pass an act creating a metropolitan transit authority to buy, operate, and improve the surface and elevated lines as a unified, publicly owned company.

The proposed act deals with an intricate pattern of conflicting interests. The questions and answers below outline some of the details of the plan, why it came into being and its chances of success:

Q.—What powers would this authority have? A.—Besides operating it would fix fares, decide on extensions of service and perform the usual functions of a regulating body. It would be tax free, but have no powers to levy taxes.

Optional for Each Village.

Q.—What territory would the authority cover? A.—All of Cook county except some western rural areas; villages and towns might come in or stay out as their people wish.

Q.—Who would run the authority? A.—A board of seven members, four to be appointed by the mayor of Chicago and three by the governor of Illinois. Each would receive $15,000 a year and the chairman more, if the board should so decide.

Q.—On what terms would the city borrow the purchase money? A.—It would sell revenue certificates secured only by earnings of the system; the authority would have to raise fares if earnings should prove too small to operate and pay interest and amortization charges.

Q.—What financial advantage would the projected public ownership have over private ownership? A.—The public corporation would escape some 3½ millions of local taxes now paid by the companies and the interest on the revenue bonds would be income tax free. Other taxpayers would have to make up the 3½ millions.

Predict Ready Sale for Bonds.

Q.—Would the revenue bonds be readily salable? A.—Mayor Kelly and his associates believe they could be sold at a low rate of interest; say, 3 per cent.

Q.—How will improvements be financed in the event the transit authority takes over? A. — The mayor has said that the 30 millions of cash from the surface lines will be spent and that ample funds will be available from earnings to complete a 10 year program of 70 to 100 millions more.

Q.—How would the city grant the transit authority a franchise? A.—Thru an ordinance now being drawn. This, as well as the act creating the authority, are to be submitted to a Chicago referendum on June 4. Suburbs wishing to join the authority must draw their own ordinances and submit them to popular vote for approval. So far the suburbs have been suspicious of the authority setup.

Q.—Are there any alternatives to the transit authority? A.—Several.

1. The plan for unification under private ownership approved by a city ordinance of 1941.

2. The city purchase offer is made under the state's municipal ownership act and may be valid as such if the transit district plan should fail. Possible, but not likely.

3. If these three plans fail, the court may permit the solvent surface lines to reorganize separately and spend the 30 millions.

WORLD FEEDING PLAN UPSET BY PORK SCARCITY

Lend-Lease Loses, Corn Rots in Cribs.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Federal government crop planners eliminated a potential meat tonnage four times as large as the amount of lend-lease purchases during during all of 1944 by failure to provide sufficient price incentive and protection for hog producers, leaders in the Chicago stock yards asserted yesterday.

While corn rots in cribs because farmers did not raise enough hogs to consume it, city people are without meat and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's program to help win the war and write a just peace in Europe with an abundance of food from America is cracking up, they said.

Raise 35 Million Fewer Hogs.

The lend-lease administration has been forced to reduce its purchases drastically during recent weeks, and is not obtaining the meat promised to the liberated countries—all because farmers last year raised 35 million fewer pigs than during 1943. Hogs from the 1944 farrowing are insufficient to meet requirements.

Had production of pork been maintained on the preceding year's level the tonnage would have been increased by more than 6 billion pounds. Last year's lend-lease purchases of all kinds of meat totaled 1,519,216,000 pounds, not including 830,309,000 pounds of lard.

Lend-lease buying last month was cut to 76 per cent from a year earlier and was the smallest for February in three years. The drop from February, 1944, was 97 per cent in beef and veal, 84 per cent in lamb and mutton, 70 per cent in pork, 56 per cent in canned meats, and 88 per cent in lard. Purchases for the month totaled 91,935,000 pounds of meat and lard, compared with 397,379,000 last year and 175,333,000 two years ago.

Lend-Lease Shut Out.

Buyers for the army and navy, who hold priority over all others, are taking almost all of some kinds of meat set aside by packers for government account. Lend-lease almost has been forced out of the beef market, obtaining only 237,000 pounds of beef and veal last month, compared with 9,801,000 a year earlier. Lamb and mutton buying dropped from 5,208,000 pounds in February, 1944, to 794,000 pounds last month. Pork tonnage fell from 174,648,000 pounds to 51,471,000, canned meats from 46,849,000 to 20,301,000, and lard from 160,873,000 to 19,132,000.

During December, January, and February lend-lease obtained 340,431,000 pounds of all meats, compared with 764,804,000 a year earlier. Lard purchases were only 55,156,000 pounds, compared with 453,776,000.

The present contract expires next Saturday. Conference Chairman Ezra Van Horn said there had been no change in the situation and meetings will resume Monday morning.

Asks Alliance of Industries, Army in Peace

The pre-war concept as to the importance of military preparedness must be reversed if the United States is to face the realities and not take another chance on being caught "too late with too little," Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, said yesterday.

"It has been well said time and again that we must win not only the war but the peace," Sloan told stockholders in a letter in advance of his forthcoming annual report. "The winning of the peace might be defined as the development of ways and means to ensure over the years to come our economic, political, and personal freedoms.

War Elimination Sought.

"The elimination of armed conflict is fundamental in such a concept. How successfully that objective can be accomplished we do not know, but we must strive with all our power to that end."

The evolution of war products during the war has involved progress in [1] continuous changes in design to facilitate production, reduce man hours, save materials, and lower costs; [2] continuous advance in technological standards to improve the quality of combat equipment; and [3] development of new military implements, he explained.

"In coöperation with military technicians, outstanding progress has been made and will continue to be made in each of these fields," he asserted, "if we are to win the peace, we must continue to move forward by maintaining for preparedness equally close liaison between the armed services and industry.

Urges Constant Preparedness.

"This calls for unceasing application of the day to day developments of science and industry to the improvement of war material and methods of manufactures, so that American industry shall ever be ready to set in motion quickly, if needed, its vast powers of mass production for war with minimum changes in plant and machinery."

He explained that in modern warfare technical superiority and quality of materials are both essential, but that in general technical superiority will go far in offsetting numerical quantity in almost all classes of equipment. He said General Motors was ready to do its part in support of any constructive and equitable plan to maintain in peace time a high technical standard of defense equipment.

WOOD PULP USE IN CIVILIAN PAPER REDUCED BY WPB

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP). — The WPB today reduced the amount of wood pulp to be used for facial tissues, paper towels, wrapping paper, bags, and other civilian paper items in April, May, and June.

Allotments of pulp to paper and paper board mills must be cut about 82,000 tons from the amount authorized for the first quarter of this year, WPB explained. Reductions were required in nine civilian categories. The largest, 40,000 tons, was in coarse paper such as grocery bag and butcher paper. Next largest curtailment was in book paper.

GOVERNMENT POLICY ON SUGAR ALLOCATION ASSAILED BY BROKER

New York, March 24 (AP).—Lamborn & Co., one of the largest sugar brokerage firms, today said "There is definitely a world shortage of sugar," and criticized government handling of foreign allocations.

In a letter to the trade the firm said in some instances sugar refiners "are operating on only about a 50 per cent basis for United States civilians—the balance for government demands, including export."

"If there are tentative plans as to what amounts are to be allocated to foreign countries, then the people of the United States are entitled to know about them now," it said.

"We should not be kept in the dark as to quantities, destinations and the justification for movements of sugar to foreign destinations. Unless this matter is cleared up satisfactorily, the American people may wake up one day to find that their domestic sugar allowances have been seriously jeopardized."

INFLATION OFFSETS.

Thru most of the years of New Deal monetary policies and especially during the war period of federal deficit financing on a vast scale, investors have studied the problem of obtaining satisfactory "inflation hedges." Doubtless many investments in land and stocks have been made with a view to seeking protection against the possibility of a decline in purchasing power of money and bank deposits. The theory has been that if money buys less, such investments should be worth more dollars.

It should be emphasized there is no certain hedge against inflation. Under certain conditions some forms of tangible property provide a measure of protection. A necessary condition for such protection is that the value and earning power of the property held are free to adjust themselves to changing price levels. This condition does not apply at present to many forms of tangible property.

In market comment, common stocks, if backed by substantial investments in plants, particularly stocks of strong companies possessing extensive natural resources such as ores, petroleum reserves, or timber lands, were often classified as inflation hedges.

In recent years of rising stock prices and higher living costs, the increase in stock values has given many stockholders an offset to the decline in the buying power of their money. But it has been demonstrated that the government's inflationary financial policies are no guarantee against the recurrence of bear markets, and the holding of common stocks involves risks which many persons cannot afford to take.

Another form of hedge often suggested was the purchase of productive real estate. Government price policies since 1941 have permitted farm products to rise much farther than nonfarm goods, thus giving agricultural land special claim to consideration as a hedge. At present advanced prices, neither land nor stocks can provide as much protection as at the former lower prices, and purchase now is accompanied by increased risk.

In cases where government control of prices and rents is strictly applied, it not only tends to combat inflation effects but also to restrict the earning power of property. It thus impairs the usefulness of such property as an inflation hedge. High taxes on income also put obstacles in the way of investors seeking such protection.

The effectiveness of ownership of stocks and realty for this purpose appears to depend in large measure on an increase in income therefrom, after all taxes, sufficient to offset any loss in the dollar's buying power.

STOCKS LOWER ON WAR NEWS; DEALINGS LIGHT

Some Peace Issues Close Firm.

[The stock exchange's annual report is on the preceding page.]

New York, March 24 (AP).—Stocks retreated today, but without disorder, as the big allied push in Germany suggested the collapse of the Nazis may be near. Apprehension regarding industrial transition difficulties brought moderate selling and virtually all groups declined fractions to a point or more.

Selling was exceptionally light until just before the close when offerings expanded. Turnover of 450,000 shares, compared with 400,000 last Saturday, was second smallest since November.

Some Resistance Offered.

Altho scattered issues with favorable peace time prospects offered resistance and made narrow advances, most pivotals finished about at their lows. The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.6 at 59.9, widest drop since Tuesday. On the week the average declined 2 points, largest drop since the week ended July 22, 1944.

Prominent decliners included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware and Hudson, Goodyear, Douglas Aircraft, Grumman Aircraft, Westinghouse Electric, International Telephone, American Smelting, Skelly Oil, Standard Oil [N. J.], United Air Lines, Johns-Manville, and Eastman Kodak. Advancing were Consolidated Edison, Woolworth, Studebaker, and Plymouth Oil.

BOND PRICES DECLINE.

New York, March 24 (AP).—Bond prices declined today on an inactive market in which sales dropped to $3,390,000 from $6,022,000 last Saturday. The rail, industrial, and utility averages declined 0.1 each.

Among corporate issues off fractions to a point were Baltimore and Ohio 2000s, Eastern Illinois incomes, Milwaukee 3½s of 1989, Rock Island 4s of 1934 and 4s of 1988, and Morris and Essex 4½s and 5s. Advancing were Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Hudson and Manhattan refunding 5s, and Illinois Central 5s of 1955.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER.

Prices declined in turnover of 19,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most volume leaders were unchanged. Sinclair Oil dipped ¼.

6,000 WALK OUT IN RUBBER PLANT GUARD INCIDENT

Memphis, Tenn., March 24 (AP).—Six thousand employes of Firestone Tire and Rubber company were idle today, after what a union official termed an unauthorized walkout that stemmed from a guard striking a Negro woman employe.

E. H. Routon, CIO chief, said the stoppage was caused by resentment against the company for ordering transfer of the guard to a production job. Company and union officials said no demands had been presented by the men who left their jobs on the second and third shifts yesterday.

"The union has no jurisdiction over the guard force, as it is not part of the union," Routon said. "The action was taken by the company, and therefore our people have no business engaging in a work stoppage over it."

October Egg Contracts Close 0.75 Cent Lower

Allied Drives Bring Heavy Grain Selling

New allied crossings of the Rhine caused heavy liquidation by recent buyers of grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday and closing trades, except in rye, were near the bottom.

At no time were wheat prices as high as Friday's finish and closing trades were ⅞ to 1⅜ cents a bushel lower. Corn lost ½ to ⅞ and oats, which showed the most weakness, 1 to 1⅝.

Rye dipped nearly 2 cents at one time but rallied on professional buying and short covering. It finished ⅝ to 1⅜ cents lower. Barley lost ⅜ to ⅞ cent.

Stop Loss Orders Uncovered.

Wheat received a little support from mills and from commission houses, but the buying was not aggressive and each decline in prices uncovered more stop loss orders. May wheat has declined 4½ cents from the high of 10 days ago.

Trading in rye again was large and professional traders supported the market on the breaks. However, no purchases were considered to be against additional sales of rye for shipment to Europe. The government will purchase 142,000 sacks of rye flour this week, equal to 325,000 bushels of rye, presumably for shipment to Russia.

Favorable weather and crop reports again had substantial influence and part of the selling of oats was based on news seeding was progressing rapidly in parts of the midwest.

Ignore Food Pinch News.

Continued news reports of an acute food shortage in Europe which implied needs would increase as more territory is freed from the Nazis had little effect as a price making influence. Traders were not impressed by an expanded government flour buying program, under which purchases of soft wheat flour will start tomorrow.

Despite a continued shortage of boxcars to move corn to terminal markets country grain dealers sold 300,000 bushels for deferred shipment. Brokers said some contracts were unfilled that were entered into last December.

Because of the shortage of cars government buying of corn for shipment to England has been stopped for the time being, but little progress had been made in obtaining 50 million bushels for stock pile purposes altho ceiling prices were offered for the grain in farm cribs.

ENGLAND PLANS BIG EXPANSION IN STEEL PLANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 24.—New evidence that British heavy industry was being geared for post-war competition in world markets was disclosed this week in plans to expand and modernize Britain's steel plants at a cost of about 400 million dollars.

Hamar Greenwood, chairman of Dorman, Long & Co., said this was the estimated capital expenditure facing the iron and steel industry on "early projects of development and rehabilitation."

Other British industry preparation for the post-war markets battle appeared in announcement that 19 war factories owned or controled by the government had been allocated to private firms for peace time production.

The government's department of overseas trade also took a hand in the drive to expand British markets in a review of commercial conditions in America which advocated new export lines and better selling organizations for British goods in the United States.

Board Agrees to Surplus Tool Sales by Makers

Washington, D. C., March 24 (AP).—The surplus property board today agreed to permit the sale of surplus government cutting tools by the original manufacturers to prevent the "dumping" of surplus tools on the market after Germany and Japan are defeated by permitting the manufacturers to release the government tools gradually with newly manufactured equipment.

GLENN MARTIN NET PROFIT IS $4.37 A SHARE

Comparison Upset by Renegotiation.

Glenn L. Martin company, large aircraft producer, yesterday reported 1944 net earnings before renegotiation were $4,909,572, or $4.37 a share, compared with $2.68 after renegotiation on a slightly smaller number of shares outstanding in 1943. Profit in 1943 before renegotiation was $12,437,583, or $11.15 a share.

Sales last year declined to $533,400,444 from $598,072,796 in 1943 after renegotiation, said Glenn L. Martin, president. He attributed the decline to voluntary price reductions on army and navy contracts.

Mars Construction Begins.

Contracts on the A-30 attack bomber were terminated in 1944 and production of the Marauder medium bomber was reduced as contracts neared completion, Martin said. Tooling was finished for production of 20 giant Mars transports to be operated by the naval air transport service, and manufacturing stages on the first aircraft were well advanced.

Regarding post-war planning, Martin said the company completed the preliminary design of a short range trunk line transport, the Mercury, described as a 30 to 36 passenger aircraft. A plastics and chemical division and market research department were formed by the company.

Global map showing Chicago as air hub of the world. Lines from Chicago to important world centers are approximations of practical great circle courses and do not in all cases coincide with present routes. which frequently are less direct.

By FRANK STURDY

CHICAGO, the principal city of the nation's richest industrial and agricultural area and the country's rail transportation center, has an opportunity to capitalize on its natural air passenger and air cargo potential to become the leading aviation hub. It can do this by taking advantage of the airplane's indifference to coastal barriers.

Coastal cities both east and west are aware of the threat to their welfare. New York particularly has wasted no time in preparing for competition. It is now pushing to completion a huge airport at Idlewild on Long Island and will fight hard to bind trans-Atlantic air carriers to its seaport.

New York's mayor has already appropriated more than $50,000,000 for Idlewild, and estimates are that the project will run to $80,000,000 or as much as $125,000,000. Mayor La Guardia has said that he intends to make the terminal the best in the world, plainly as bait to persuade trans-Atlantic carriers against by-passing New York, even tho the direct line between principal European cities on the North Atlantic route and Chicago and other big urban centers of the midwest lies to the north.

The present Chicago airport is the best in the country at the moment and will serve, according to the air lines' forecasts, for about five years. Mayor Kelly recently dispelled uncertainty about the post-five-year period with the announcement that he intends to put a $25,000,000 bond issue proposition on the June election schedule to finance a successor super-airport, recognizing that the present one cannot be conveniently and economically enlarged.

After long negotiations the eight lines operating into Chicago have agreed with the city on plans for a new terminal building to accommodate 64 plane movements an hour. It is hoped to get this structure in operation by fall, eliminating the passenger inconvenience that for years has plagued travelers in the present small terminal.

TIME IS RIPE FOR CITY TO INSURE DOMINATING PLACE IN AIR AGE

Governor Green has pledged the state's assistance in financing an expressway to the airport, a high-speed artery using the right of way of the abandoned Illinois-Michigan canal, that will cut the overlong driving time from the loop.

Dormant for some time, the question of selection of a site for the new super-airport is now very much alive, and the Chicago Plan commission is expected to recommend a location to the city council soon. Air line engineers have expressed a preference for the Douglas airport adjacent to the army's Skymaster cargo plane factory in Park Ridge, where it is estimated additional land can be secured to extend runways to 10,000 feet and establish a complete air terminal for $25,000,000.

• • •

Assured of excellent facilities for their operations for the next five years and with action started toward a better terminal to be ready when necessary, the air lines have inducements to provide the fast, direct international flights that will attract a large volume of passengers from Chicago and the wealthy, populous states surrounding Illinois.

Military airports built by the United States in Canada, Greenland, Newfoundland, and Iceland and in our own territory of Alaska approximate true great circles from Chicago to Great Britain and western Europe, as well as the great areas of Russia and Asia heretofore accessible only by time-killing Pacific voyages.

Newfoundland's big airports, or the huge base at Goose bay in Labrador, which has favorable weather, could be utilized, indeed must be available, if the international carriers serving Chicago are to take passengers across the North Atlantic without wasting time in stops at eastern seaports.

American-built military airports in the northwest Canadian provinces form a chain to the interior of Alaska, where the army has an enormous airport at Fairbanks. Siberia, China, and Japan could be reached on this route from Fairbanks either by way of Nome, involving a water crossing of only 65 miles across the Bering straits, or by way of Anchorage and the Aleutian Islands.

This route inside the Pacific coastal mountain ranges, superior from the weather standpoint to the route following the coast line, might be reached from Chicago either by way of Minneapolis-St. Paul and Winnipeg or from Great Falls, Mont., the present American terminus. The Alaskan points were served commercially before the war from Seattle, and these services will probably be expanded.

All these routes, both east and west, have been flown by the army air transport command with military pilots and with notable help from the commercial air lines thruout the war. Some were flown commercially before the war, but the army's crying need for service brought from the air lines a type of transocean flying undreamed of in days of peace, and this from domestic companies unfamiliar with ocean-hopping.

The Canadian bases built by the American army have all been purchased from the United States by Canada, and which ones will be opened to our air lines remains for settlement when the whole question of international post-war flying is negotiated at war's end.

Besides the east and west bases there are three (Continued on page four.)

YOUNG MR. AMERICA!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune.)

Hollywood.

RECENTLY some famous Hollywood stars pushed the war news off the front pages with accounts of their unsavory romantics and knife-and-bottle parties, while solid, high-minded actors went unnoticed.

This is not why I'm telling you some things about Fred MacMurray today. I'm writing about Fred because I think this pleasant, self-effacing young American actor, who stands as high in the good opinion of his employers, his co-workers, and his friends as any man in the industry, is a far more interesting character than the stars who are taking unfair advantage of their fame and money.

Fred MacMurray is the very core of everything that is simple, straightforward, and American. He's as down-to-earth as applesauce or the boy next door. He's the sort of fellow every man and woman wants a son to be. He's even the type a mother-in-law couldn't find fault with. He's got integrity—and try and beat that word when you're groping for a tag to give the measure of a man.

A record of 40 top pictures since 1935, when Fred came into motion pictures from the New York stage, is proof to doubters that you can be all these things and roll up bigger box office than the glamor playboys any day. Less than a year ago Twentieth Century signed Fred MacMurray to a long-term contract. They knew they had secured one of the most valuable star properties this industry ever produced. The clear, fresh baritone which won him a nod from Hollywood when he was playing in "Roberta" on Broadway and his slick way with a saxophone are capitalized in "Where Do We Go from Here," his first for Twentieth. It's a Morrie Ryskind, Kurt Weill, Ira Gershwin technicolor musical and will be released shortly. Fred plays a bewildered 4-F—a fellow who wants to fight but who is turned back into civilian ranks by doctors. It's a zany historical fantasy in which Fred is alternately a soldier in the colonial army, a Hessian spy, a sailor on the deck of the Santa Maria en route to discover America with Columbus, the fellow why buys Manhattan from the Indians for $24, and a soldier in the Civil war—to name a few. Nothing could be farther removed from "Double Indemnity," his last big release in which he won public approval.

On the heels of this singing part Fred, with typical MacMurray versatility, embarked on the role he is now shooting, "Captain Eddie," the story of the famous ex-racing driver, Eddie Rickenbacker. This is the tale of an all-American—a typical product of this democracy, like Fred himself. His third will be "Pardon My Past," which Fred will produce and star in as well. After that he'll do one a year on that lot, but he won't always appear in his own productions.

Fred MacMurray doesn't fuss much about the roles he plays. He'll tell you, "I just take the parts as they come." But that's only part of it; it's that MacMurray fear of talking about himself that keeps him from telling you he is deeply concerned with "the customers" when it comes to making a picture. Other stars refer to the public as "my audience" or "my fans." To Fred they'll always be "the customers," and he's of the firm belief the customer is always right. He'll ruefully admit he's not always right himself.

"I was plenty leary of 'Double Indemnity,'" he'll tell you. "Afraid the customers wouldn't go for such stark, raw stuff. But they've gone for it in a big way, so I must have been wrong."

Any banker, lawyer, doctor, or big or little business man could meet Fred MacMurray on a train and fall right into a talking groove. His temperament, his art, and his income never stand between him and humanity. The very names that build the framework of his biography are down to earth and all-American: Kankakee, Ill., where he was born, and Beaver Dam, Wis., where he grew up; Gilroy, Cal., where he lived for a time, and Carroll college at Waukesha, Wis., where he put the finishing touches on his education.

Like most successful men, Fred helped earn that education. The first prize he won in school was 75 cents for sketching a horse. It gave him such a boost he never rested until he landed at the Art Institute of Chicago. In the years between he worked in a canning factory summer vacations. He won the American Legion award for the highest scholastic and athletic record at college. He bought a sax—played it, too, in the American Legion band. When orchestra jobs were thin Fred was a house-to-house salesman of electrical appliances, a store clerk—anything to keep him and his mother going. In Los Angeles in 1928 he sandpapered the paint off old cars, played in the pit orchestra at Warners' theater.

Fred MacMurray has the reputation of dreading interviewers. "I dread them, Hedda," he told me on the set of "Captain Eddie," "because I know I'm bad copy. I'm just a plain guy. I read the comics every day. I go to a medium-priced tailor on Hollywood boulevard like lots of other guys. Make something colorful out of that! My wife and I and the Ray Millands have lots of fun together just doing the things all the millions of other taxpayers are doing around these United States. Nothing whimsical, nothing fancy. We're interested in our wives, homes, and kids, and in the business we're in."

Fred and Lillian have two children—Susan, 4, and Robert, 1 year, both adopted. They want four more and recently bought the Leland Hayward home in Brentwood to make room for the kids. Maggie Sullavan Hayward built a huge red barn on the place to house her kids in. Now the Haywards will spend most of their time in Connecticut, so the MacMurrays fall heir to this dream place.

"My big extravagance," says Fred, "is fishing tackle and guns. With a name like MacMurray, you know I've got plenty of economics. I don't like to hold forth about my notion of things. Why should my opinions of life, love, death, and taxes be any more interesting than those of any man in the street?"

They tell a story about Fred and an interviewer who asked him: "Mr. MacMurray, you've just finished a picture with Irene Dunne; tell me all about her."

Fred pondered a while, then: "Well, she's very beautiful, and she worries," he replied. "I guess that's all."

But there's plenty going on in that head of his. He's a solid investor. Believes in property, in the land. Owns a ranch near Santa Rosa with purebred stock (purebreds because "it costs as much to feed a poor animal as a good one"). The ranch will make money this year, in addition to being fun. He buys good pictures for his Brentwood home, etchings and canvases he likes to look at and live with; not meaningless things of vast value to serve as publicity items. He'd as soon watch a card game as sit in one. He's prompt as the tax collector and expects others to be the same. His word is better than most written contracts. He buys apartment houses when other fellows take flyers in the stock market. He thinks most of the stuff written about actors is plain bilge. The only compliment I've ever heard Fred give himself is to admit he was a good speller in school. But he hastily qualified it with: "Outside of that I have nothing to brag about."

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: In my estimation Clifton Webb is one of the greatest scene stealers in show business. He completely fascinated me in "Laura." I would appreciate any information you have concerning him. Also, do you think you could find room to print a picture of him? Thank you. Sincerely, R. D.

Clifton Webb

Here's a likeness of your favorite scene stealer. He was awfully good in "Laura," wasn't he? Mr. Webb began his career as a child actor in "Huckleberry Finn." He later danced with the glamorous Mae Murray and had a number of roles in musical comedies. He now has a contract with Fox for one picture a year for five years.

Dear Mae Tinée: Cheers, cheers for Joseph Cotten! We have seen him in "Gaslight" and "Since You Went Away." Can you give us a bit more info about coming pics? How about some vital statistics? MR. AND MRS. J. B.

Mr. Cotten should be happy to read your letter. Here are the vital statistics you request: Born Petersburg, Va., 1905. In stock and on New York stage from 1930 to 1940. He was a member of Orson Welles' Federal Theater productions and the Mercury Theater of the Air. First picture, "Citizen Kane," in 1940. Married.

Dear Miss Tinée: I saw "Rainbow Island" the other day and liked it very much. Would you please tell me who played Ken in the picture? I especially liked him. I'll also add a line to tell you how much I enjoy your column. B. M.

Barry Sullivan played the role to which you refer. Glad you like us both.

"Sure, I'll limit it to 5 minutes"

Busy as Long Distance lines are, most calls go through all right. But there's still a rush on some circuits.

When you're on a crowded line, Long Distance will ask you to help by saying, "Please limit your call to 5 minutes."

Chicago Women Say It's Tops!

Vote 2 to 1 for this amazing soap that cuts grease off dishes in a flash—yet helps hands stay soft, smooth

American Family Flakes actually preferred by twice as many women for dishwashing as any other package soap, new survey reveals says Mrs. G. S. Burtis, 2452 E. 72nd St.—And no wonder! She avoided the roughness caused by harsh granulated soaps when she changed to American Family Flakes. They're milder than any strong granulated soap—and so they are far kinder to hands.

"My hands were smoother in no time at all,"

says Mrs. R. G. Karr, 1528 No. Central.--Yes, actual tests prove no soap in the world cuts grease faster than American Family Flakes.

"Makes more suds faster than any soap I ever used," says Mrs. K. B. Smith, 667 W. Barry.--Not surprising, for today's American Family Flakes actually make more suds faster than any leading strong granulated soap! And they're suds that stand up 'till you're ready to empty the dishpan.

Don't Waste Soap!

It's made of vital war materials. Make your American Family Flakes go as far as you can.

Jet—Aviation's New Miracle!

By STANLEY JOHNSTON

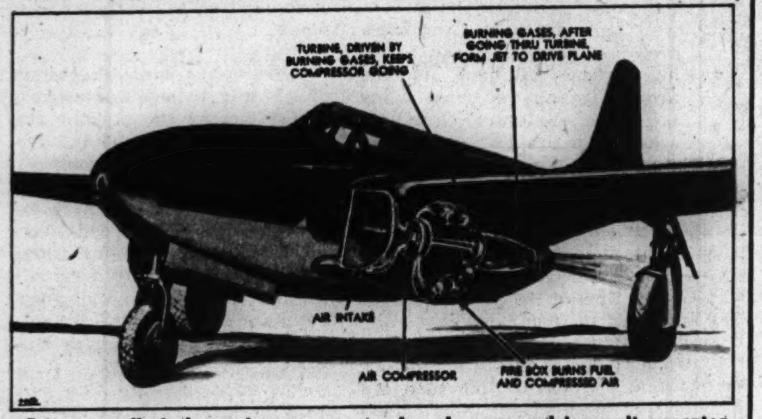
ONE OF the most important aeronautical developments of recent years has been that of jet propulsion, a new power unit which promises to carry us past the present speed limit imposed upon the conventional air screw by aerodynamic conditions.

Already there exist three distinct mechanical devices for manufacturing thrust, while a fourth is in the late stage of development.

The turbo-jet unit, developed in England by Air Commodore Frank Whittle, currently powers some allied interceptor fighters. The pressureless flap-valve unit gives flight to the German V-1 or winged bomb. And the turbo-rocket combination shoots the German V-2 or rocket bomb thru the atmosphere.

These three power units differ from each other mainly in the mechanical procedure employed for mixing and feeding the fuel to the combustion chamber. From there on they are much alike in character and react along parallel lines to the thrust factors generated within the smaller self-propelled projectiles such as the bazooka-fired missiles or similar British, Russian, German, and Japanese projectiles.

The term jet propulsion, so widely in use for these power units, is misleading, for their actual power source is not the result of friction of the gas flow against the atmosphere. Rocket power would be much more to the point, as it is exactly that—a thrust caused by the reaction or recoil within the combustion chamber to the action of the combusting gas moving from the chamber thru the exhaust.



TURBINE, DRIVEN BY BURNING GASES, KEEPS COMPRESSOR GOING BURNING GASES, AFTER GOING THRU TURBINE, FORM JET TO DRIVE PLANE AIR INTAKE
AIR COMPRESSOR
FIRE BOX BURNS FUEL AND COMPRESSED AIR

In the early 17th century Sir Isaac Newton explained the principle involved ("all action has its reaction") in his third law of motion. A small wheel cart on which a spring is compressed between a fixed part of its frame and a movable object may serve as a simple illustration. As soon as the spring is released it thrusts outward, tossing the movable object in one direction, while the cart is shoved in the opposite. Or, to use the perhaps more appropriate example of a firing gun, the moment the combustion of its charge drives the movable piece (bullet) thru the barrel, a "kick" is rendered to the shoulder. In this case the projection of the bullet would be the action and the shoulder kick the reaction.

As the fuel is being consumed within the chamber of rocket power units the gas temperature sharply increases. If the chamber were sealed this heat increase would be expressed in pressure. Having an open exhaust, however, the temperature increase is expressed in a tremendous stepup of velocity. The energy induced by combustion is converted into the exhaust gas flow, but an equal power thrust occurs in the opposite direction, against the combustion chamber head. Thus it is really the recoil that is harnessed to move the missile or plane forward.

In 1940 an Italian Caproni-Campini jet plane performed a successful flight demonstration, with a conventional reciprocating engine driving the compressor. Its speed was poor (130 miles an hour) and its fuel efficiency low, as was manifested by its need to refuel en route from Turin to Rome (330 miles). But there was only little official and scientific belief in the possibilities of jet propulsion even at that time. Earlier Commodore Whittle had experienced this, for altho he was an active member of the R. A. F. when he evolved the jet idea in 1934, he had to procure extended leave from the service to continue with his experiments and was forced to obtain finance from private sources for further analyses and tests.

Whittle's rocket power unit is composed of a tubelike mechanism divided into three main sections. The front end holds a rotary air compressor which continuously feeds air into the combustion chamber at slight compression. As the air passes along, liquid fuel and gasoline are injected and vaporize with the air flow. This highly volatile mass ignites and combusts in the fire chamber, and at increased velocity races to the pressure drop or exhaust nozzle. Between the fire chamber and exhaust a single-impeller type turbine rotor is so arranged that enough of the gas flow can be bled off to rotate its blades. This turbine in turn is linked up to drive the front air compressor fan.

Whittle's unit is completely self-contained, for the power available for the thrust is embodied within the fuel consumed, with the exception of the portion drawn off to drive the turbine, friction losses, and radiation. The rest is translated into horsepower in direct ratio to the efficiency of its application.

According to George H. Bucher, president of Westinghouse, a similar unit has been developed in his company's laboratories. He has stated that his company pioneered the development of the first jet propulsion engine designed in the United States, independent of any designs drawn in foreign countries. This new unit is expected to produce more pounds of thrust for its weight than does any foreign engine. To attain this, extensive research was necessary, especially in the field of metallurgy, before a metal capable of withstanding the terrific working heat of 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit was found and developed.

It is thought that eventually the rocket power unit will completely revolutionize the aircraft industry. At present, however, altho the weight of a rocket-powered unit remains much below that of a conventional engine of equal power, its thermal efficiency (horsepower returned from the work content of fuel consumed) is still so poor that the conventionally powered airplane has a decided commercial advantage.

(Every pound of fuel contains a definite number of thermal units, also referred to as work or heat units. The thermal efficiency of an engine is the proportion of the fuel returned as power. Assuming, therefore, that there are 100 thermal units in one pound of fuel—actually there are 1,600 thermal units in gasoline, ranging up to 2,200 thermal units for crude oil—and the engine burning that fuel has a return of 30 thermal units of work, its thermal efficiency would be 30 per cent.)

• • •

The commercial airplane is able to carry a reasonable pay load because its engine-propeller unit returns a thermal efficiency of 28 per cent plus. Existing information indicates, on the other hand, that the rocket unit has a thermal efficiency of approximately 17 per

FISH SHORTCAKE

By MARY MEADE

FISH SHORTCAKE is a good way to get around the meat famine. Any kind of flaked cooked or canned fish is good in this combination. Salmon is particularly nice. So is the new canned halibut, only recently available to the housewife. Halibut hasn't been canned before because no way had been found to process it without obtaining a fishy flavor and odor. A new process has been developed which turns out snowy white, mild-flavored, almost odorless halibut, an excellent product for any number of salads and creamed dishes.

Salmon or halibut shortcake is a good way to get around no meat. Cheese adds flavor to the sauce.

SALMON OR HALIBUT SHORTCAKE AU GRATIN

(Serves six)

- 3 cups well seasoned white sauce
- 1 cup grated cheese
- 1½ cups flaked cooked or canned salmon or halibut
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup cooked peas
- 1 recipe baking powder biscuits

Add cheese, fish, peas, and lemon juice to white sauce and heat thoroly. Bake biscuit dough in a round cake pan. Split and serve hot fish mixture as filling and topping. Celery may be added to the cream sauce. A sprinkling of minced parsley on top of the shortcake is also attractive.

A simple but palatable and attractive platter for the buffet table consists of well seasoned cottage cheese bordered by tomato and grapefruit and served with a separate dressing. This kind of salad tray is appropriate when baked beans or a meatless loaf of some kind is the main feature of the party.

BUFFET SALAD TRAY

(Serves eight)

- 2 grapefruit
- 4 large red tomatoes
- Crisp lettuce, parsley
- 1 quart creamed cottage cheese
- Salt, paprika, chives

Peel grapefruit like an apple, removing all the white inner skin; cut out sections carefully to preserve their wedge shape. Chill thoroly. Have tomatoes thoroly washed and chilled. Cut tomatoes in halves crosswise, first cutting out core. Place cut side up and cut halves almost in two, leaving them joined by skin at the bottom. Spread open just enough to hold one or two wedges of grapefruit. Arrange on individual lettuce nests around sides of tray. Heap cottage cheese, seasoned with salt and chopped chives, in center of tray. Garnish with border of crisp parsley and sprinkle paprika on top. Serve with French dressing.

PLUM DUFF

(Serves six)

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 cup milk
- 2 cups cooked, drained, pitted prunes

Spread open 4 large prunes on bottom of greased 1 quart mold. Cover with thin layer of batter made by sifting dry ingredients, cutting in shortening, and stirring in milk. Add another layer of prunes, another layer of batter, repeating until all fruit and batter is used. Cover and steam for 1 hour. Serve hot with prune sauce.

Prune Sauce—Mix 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ¾ cup sugar, 2 cups cold prune juice, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar. Cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add 1 tablespoon margarine and a dash of nutmeg.—MRS. MARION ULLMARK, 2729 11th av., Moline, Ill.

Chicago—World Air Hub

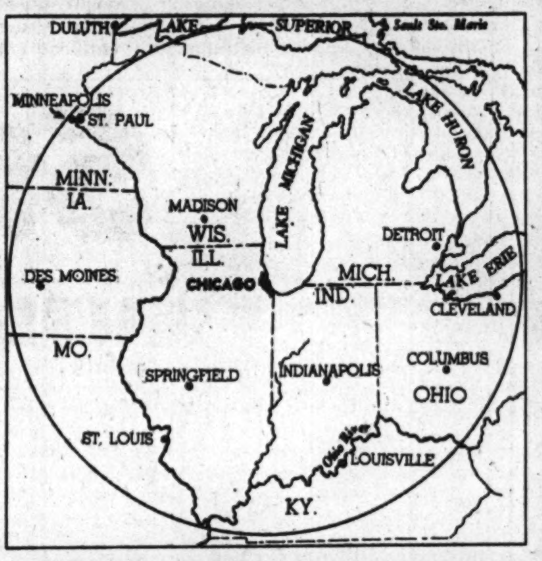
forming a center route thru Canada: The Pas, Manitoba; Churchill, on the southwest shore of Hudson bay; and Coral Harbor, on Southampton Island at the north end of the bay, originally intended as an alternate route to Europe from the central United States, but never used. None of the air lines has shown an interest in it as yet, but in the future this route may become important.

Air relations between Canada and the United States have been amicable in the past. Recently a new agreement between the two countries was signed giving Canada six new routes across the border, and the United States five. One of the Canadian routes will be from Toronto to Chicago, giving Chicago its first scheduled foreign aircraft service.

Newfoundland, controling not only its own important bases but the big one at Goose Bay in its dependent territory, Labrador, has signed the "Two Freedoms" agreement produced at the international air conference in Chicago last November. Canada and the United States have also signed, so there is a good basis for a trade of airport facilities, altho the "Two Freedoms" involve only the right to fly over the territory of another nation and use its bases for fueling and similar services.



Map showing area that will be within 1½ hours flying distance of Chicago in post-war planes.

All the larger questions in the world scene, principally concerning what business the air lines of one country will be permitted to do in the territory of another, remain open.

The United States has commercial rights in Iceland and Greenland in the event either proves necessary as a trans-Atlantic stopping point. Operating methods will depend on the types of planes the air lines put in service, the crux being fuel capacity and economical ranges.

England's plan to limit the American international carriers to her own capacity, to effect some kind of agreement to split traffic and nullify competition, has apparently been circumvented by the state department, which announced recently an agreement by which Eire gives American lines the right to operate unlimited daily flights to Foynes. The agreement also gives United States lines the privilege of picking up at Foynes passengers for continental cities, North Africa, and Asia.

Foynes is only a one hour flight from London, and any restriction the English put on the number of American flights from New York to London will therefore be ineffectual. American carriers could take traffic over any imposed limit to Foynes, where their passengers could board English planes for the remainder of the journey if they chose.

• • •

Civil aeronautics board examiners have recommended Pan-American World Airways and American Export Airlines to fly the four routes established for the North Atlantic, three involving stops in Newfoundland and Labrador, the fourth, Bermuda and the Azores. American Export was recommended on condition that it be acquired by American Airlines, the domestic carrier wanting to buy it, a proposal now under consideration by the CAB. All three companies applied for Chicago as a terminal point.

Pan-American Airways, already holding permanent trans-Atlantic certification, espouses the "chosen instrument" policy. The government's decision on this point bears importantly on Chicago's future as an international terminal, in that any chosen instrument company would probably be restricted from flying inside the borders of the country in fairness to the domestic lines kept out of the trans-ocean field. In such a case the domestic lines would probably feed the international carrier at their present coastal terminals, having no incentive to change their routes.

R. S. Damon, vice president and general manager of American Airlines, has this to say of Chicago's prospects:

"Because of Chicago's unique geographical location, its aviation future is one of the brightest, its terminal destined to become one of the most frequently used national and international air terminals in the post-war era. The air lines of this country are well aware of Chicago's value as an airport for world travelers, and evidencing this is the application which American Airlines has made for approval to establish an international route from Chicago to London and continental Europe. Thru international aviation the great centers of Europe, once days and weeks from Chicago, will be brought within neighbor distance. Largest of the central cities in the country, Chicago will find innumerable opportunities for exploitation of new world-wide markets, markets which will expand as people united in peace develop a closer relationship thru the use of international transportation."

Altho the heads of the air lines differ in opinions concerning international air policies and wage ceaseless war for profitable routes, their opinions concerning Chicago's air future are much alike. Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, which has filed applications for world girdling routes with the CAB, estimates 20 per cent of the air traffic bound for Europe will pass thru Chicago. He said:

"Chicago's future is bright because of its strategic location and because of the airplane's ability to serve inland points in any country. Passengers using the Chicago gateway for Europe will approximate 116,000 annually. Government economists estimate that about 35 per cent of the passengers bound for Alaska and Asia will use the Chicago gateway, and this, according to our estimates, will amount to some 200,000 passengers a year."

While differing with the chiefs of the other air lines in his preference for the "chosen instrument" in international transport, W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, expects domestic air transportation to increase five times in the first four years after the war over its best pre-war days. He says:

"United Air Lines, which has continued to maintain its headquarters in Chicago because of its recognition of this city's place as a logical air hub of the nation, has very definite plans for improved and expanded passenger and cargo services which will contribute to Chicago's aviation growth.

"We have applied for authority to operate direct passenger-mail-express service to Honolulu and Alaska—services which would place Chicago only 19 hours from Honolulu and 17½ hours from Fairbanks."

Eastern Airlines, flying a route from Chicago to Florida, has applied for extension of its lines to many points in Central and South America, dominated before the war by Pan-American and various of its subsidiaries. Mexico is already served by American lines, and others have applied for routes.

The islands of the Caribbean, stepping stones to the southern continent, are principally owned by the British and Dutch, which have granted the United States commercial landing privileges.

• • •

Hawaii, the most important island on the South Pacific air route, will serve as a trading item in dealing with Australia and New Zealand, which, like Canada, have air transport ambitions.

Until the CAB rules on the welter of transocean petitions and thus determines which companies are to fly to the other continents it will be impossible to make an accurate estimate of the number of international flights Chicago will get, but the 300-mile-an-hour planes the air lines propose to use certainly will be able to reach every city of importance in the world from here by great circle courses or routes approximating them.

Roughly, post-war international flights will be made in half the customary pre-war time, in many cases less than half. Pan-American's scheduled pre-war time from Chicago to London, for example, was 32 hours and 41 minutes, its post-war proposal 17 hours and 55 minutes. New York to Buenos Aires before the war was scheduled for 91 hours and 15 minutes. After the war it will be flown in 21 hours and 25 minutes, Pan-American says.

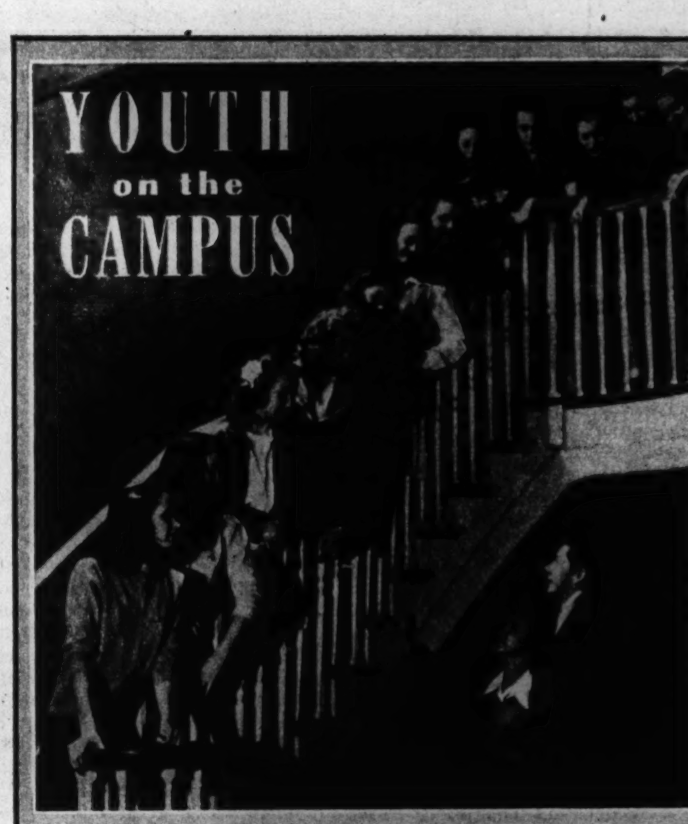
United proposes to fly from Chicago to Honolulu in 19 hours, to Ketchikan, Alaska, 12½ hours; Juneau, 14½ hours; Anchorage, 17½ hours.

American Airlines plans flights from Chicago to London in 14 hours 46 minutes; Chicago to Paris, 16 hours 25 minutes; Los Angeles to London, 21 hours 41 minutes.

TWA proposes to fly from Chicago to Honolulu in 19 hours; to Cairo, Egypt, in 22 hours, and Chicago to Calcutta, India, in 34½ hours.

All these flight times are practical, according to the experiences of the air lines' flying thruout the world for the air transport command, and can be achieved with the first types of four-engined planes produced for commercial use immediately after the war. Later, when even larger and more efficient planes are built, speeds will be greater, fares probably will be lower, and with pressure cabins, very long flights at altitudes over 25,000, above bad weather, will be commonplace.

YOUTH on the CAMPUS



Date night at the Pi Beta Phi house.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Bloomington, Ind.

SLOWLY but surely this campus is assuming again some of its old pre-war color. With the exception of a small group of meds and dents in uniform, the military trainees have gone their arduous ways. Women students are back in the handsome residence halls that were built for them. And there are—for these times—an amazing number of men students around, many veterans, many boys who accelerated thru high school and are crowding in an extra year of college before they sign up with Uncle.

At the moment there are 2,472 girls enrolled at Indiana and 1,394 men—tho a large proportion of the latter put in most of their time at the medical school, located in Indianapolis.

But Indiana is not like it was last year or the year before. Now you see civilian men students around, and their collegiate look makes it seem like old times. Returned veterans—and there are a number of them—and newcomers alike are displaying the pre-war taste for loud shirts, loose coats, and trick caps worn at a jaunty angle, that denote membership in such honorary groups as Skull and Crescent or Sphinx.

There are serenades once again, pin serenades or nightly songfests just for the fun of it. And here the Kappa Sigs shine. Their house is packed with talent this year, headed up by Daniel Cummings, an out-of-the-world pianist who also does the arrangements for the Kappa Sig sextet, which steals every serenade show. Cummings, discharged from the army, is a senior.

• • •

There is the same suggestion of pre-war college atmosphere at the Gables, the popular student rendezvous on Indiana avenue across from the administration building. "Joe dates" are back in style, because there are Joes around again, and every afternoon and evening large groups and many couples mill around the Gables, coking and eating or gabbing above the roar of the juke box, much as they used to before the war. It all seems very 1941-ish. The long, avid line that forms on the days cigarets come in is, however, a distinctly 1945 touch to the whole picture.

Thousands upon thousands of military, including army, navy, and WAVES, have been trained on the Indiana campus. This phase of its war program just about completed, there is good reason to believe that in the fall Indiana will go back to its old schedule.

Calling Bacall

LAUREN (THE LOOK) BACALL has had so much publicity of late that anything that can be said now is bound to be on the redundant side. But for the record, the young New York model (she was born on Sept. 16, 1924) has earned the effusive notices that have been given her. Miss Bacall, however, is a very smart and well controled young woman. In a press conference here in Chicago not long ago she handled the snidest of barbs from one of those super-intellectual writers with consummate ease and wit. It was as good a performance as she gives in her first two pictures, "To Have and Have Not" and "The Big Sleep." Miss Bacall first indulged her childhood fondness for dramatics by attending a theatrical school for one season after finishing high school. She got small parts in two plays that never reached Broadway. It was a magazine photograph that got her the movie chance.

Cleanliness Is Your Cue

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

COME EASTER, the young woman's fancy turns to crisp white bows, blouses, and trim hats, which is as it should be.

Speak of romance and you think of daintiness, its most potent ally. However, daintiness is not allied solely to romance. It's a business asset as well as a social one. Define daintiness as top-to-toe cleanliness and you have it in a nutshell.

• • •

It may not be possible all during working hours to maintain the romantic dainty level, but the girl who starts the day with a clean skin, clean hair, clean person, and clean clothes can't help but earn the coveted acclaim. So let's compile herewith a brief chart for rating on top-to-toe cleanliness:

Baths—The daily bath is a must, giving particular attention to perspiration areas, the armpits, feet.

Shampoo—A shampoo at least once a week if you're engaged in work where dust, grit, or oil settles on the scalp; if not, at least once in two weeks.

Underarm Care—An anti-perspirant does not take the place of soap and water cleanliness, but does help prevent moisture and odor. Apply as often as necessary.

Foot Care—Wear clean stockings each day. If bothered with excessive foot perspiration, soak feet nightly in warm soapy water, air shoes at night near the window, wear two pairs alternately, and use an anti-perspirant of some kind.

Makeup—Start with a well washed skin; use clean washcloth, clean towel, clean puffs, clean everything that touches the skin; and apply makeup with a light hand.

Grooming—This means pressed clothes, even hems, slips that do not show, spotless accessories, fasteners securely in place, straight stocking seams, shined shoes, clean gloves and handkerchiefs; fresh, clean underwear, foundation garment washed often enough to be always fresh-odored, and a general fresh-out-of-the-tub look.

Work Clothes—If you wear a uniform or work clothes, change often. It will help your morale and your work to look and feel fresh and tidy. Hang clothes neatly in your locker before you leave, or take them home for laundering. Some types of work call for extra cleanliness precautions. If there are facilities and regular showers are required, don't think it smart to skip them. A thoro cleanup sees you starting for home in a refreshed frame of mind.

Nothing like a cool, brisk shower to liven you for your very special date, says Actress Jinx Falkenburg.

Jet—Modern Miracle!

cent only. Thus to fly a given aircraft 1,000 miles a conventionally powered plane, with an assumed fuel load of 4,000 pounds and an additional pay load of 4,000 pounds, would, if powered by one of the available jet units, require 6,200 pounds of fuel, leaving only 1,800 pounds for passengers and freight—not enough to be commercially profitable.

An improvement of jet unit fuel efficiency, which should be achieved in time, would of course increase the pay load performance.

A further factor which may prove to be an obstacle to the attainment of super-speed with the Whittle unit is its use of a propeller to induct and compress air, for the same aerodynamic conditions which kill the efficiency of the conventional propeller at 476 miles an hour are incurred here.

• • •

In creating the V-1 or robot-controled weapon (also called doodlebug by our men overseas and buzz bomb by the British) the Germans resorted to a conventional winged airfoil and an impulse duct engine—one similar to that proposed by the French engineers Melot and Leduc, but rejected by French authorities during the first World war. The Germans advantageously adapted the ram effect of air moving at high velocity to obtain the needed oxygen and compression. This power unit constitutes an 11-foot-long tube, open at the rear, with a grilled front of springed metal flaps, the usual fuel injection jets, combustion chamber, and exhaust nozzle.

The air forced in by the speeding V-1 lifts the flap valves and enters the tube. Once inside, its velocity, instead of being maintained, is slowed down. The onrush of air pouring in from behind rams it, causing a slight compression. A sharp injection of fuel at this instant thru nine small vents in the gasoline system, followed by an electric spark jumped across the plug points, ignites the rich mixture.

The explosion of this charge blows along both directions of the tube. The forward pressure snaps the flap valve shut, thereby closing the chamber. The ensuing action and reaction are identical to those taking place in any rocket—namely, the pressure of the combusting gas projects thru the exhaust nozzle, and the reaction thrusts against the closed end of the tube. Immediately the exhausting gas lowers the pressure within to less than that exerted on the outside of the flap valves, they again are forced open and the cycle is repeated, each new explosion cycle conveying a short forward push to the plane.

Unlike the turbo-jet propulsion unit, the V-1 cannot be set in motion from a standing start. Depending on the air ram engendered by forward velocity, it has to be launched so as to attain a speed of approximately 200 miles an hour before the engine starts functioning. For its initial run it is usually catapulted into flight from long ramps, but it could also be set going with the aid of rocket or jet-assisted take-off (jato).

Once air-borne, the V-1's robot controls are actuated by the preset master compass, which maintains it on the desired course, while a gyropilot holds it at a predetermined altitude. (In attacks against London the height has generally been from between 2,500 and 3,000 feet.)

This type engine shows a reasonably good performance. The plane has a loaded weight of 6,000 pounds, including a 2,200 pound war head (pay load if used commercially), fuel, engine, controls, and metal fuselage. It consumes 150 gallons of low grade gasoline to speed it between 340-390 miles an hour over a distance of 150 miles. Tho mass-produced at low cost, the V-1 has a wing loading of approximately 80 pounds a square foot, as compared with about 20 pounds a square foot of a light sport plane type.

If adopted for commercial use these planes could be guided in flight via radio controls, which could also bring them down to safe landings at their destinations. There is no reason why similar engines cannot be employed to power larger and more efficient airfoils in the future.

• • •

By far the most spectacular of weapons is the V-2 or rocket bomb. Taking off from enemy territory, it rises to stratosphere height and attains a velocity of 3,000 miles an hour, to drop with its 2,200 pound war head explosive onto targets 250 miles away.

This missile has an over-all length of 46 feet. Its airfoil swells from 2 feet 6 inches at the rear nozzle to a diameter of 5 feet at its widest point. Because this projectile enters the stratosphere, where it journeys thru air only one-tenth the density of atmosphere at sea level, it must of necessity take along its own oxygen reserve. This it carries, besides its liquid fuel, in a special tank for oxygen—also said to be in liquid form. Nothing definite seems to be known of this, however, as most of our knowledge concerning the V-2 has been gained from the examination of the debris of fallen missiles.

Within the V-2 a turbine mechanism mixes the fuel as it flows to the combustion chamber, and probably also powers the robot controls. There are movable controls outside the gas nozzles of the airframe, but it is uncertain whether these controls are manipulated by radio or by the turbo-driven robot while in flight.

It has been said that the V-2 does not require a special launching run, but can be sent into the air from a road surface. It appears that the moment the fuel begins to combust the rocket pressure becomes sufficient to move its weight—given as 15 tons—and the V-2 commences a near-vertical climb. Its directly upward ascent continues for one minute, during which it attains a velocity of 1,200 miles an hour, or more than 100,000 feet a minute, during the 60 second rise.

At this point its controls are set

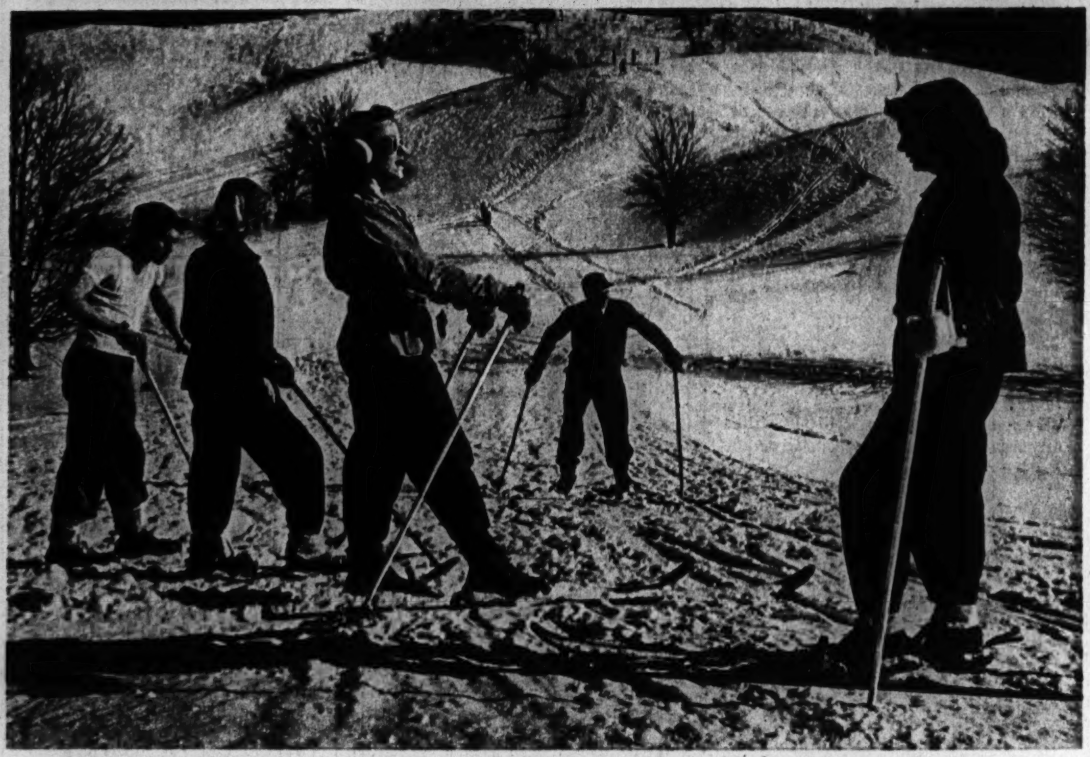
Skiing and Schooling



Under direction of Arthur S. Huey, Leelanau schools offer courses in English, Latin, French, Spanish, history, mathematics, physical sciences, government, etc. In the superb natural setting, considerable emphasis is placed also on sports. Skiing, of course, is predominant. Here, left to right, are Dan Bambaugh, Cleveland; Laurel Hutchings, Mundelein, Ill.; June Libby, Minneapolis; Thomas House, instructor; and Jerry Fleming, Bay City, Mich. (Stadler photos by A. E. Allen.)

On Sleeping Bear bay of Lake Michigan, 350 miles north of Chicago, is situated Michigan's unusual educational institution known as the Leelanau schools. Two independent country boarding schools, Pinebrook for girls and Leelanau for boys, they are the outgrowth of a Christian Science summer camp for boys established in 1921 by Mr. and Mrs. William Beals. They are not connected with the Christian Science church. Both schools are college preparatory and fully accredited. This is their picture story.

Jean Sweeney, formerly of Lake Bluff, Ill., is a prominent freshman.

"ROUGHLY SPEAKING"

1 Louise Randall (Rosalind Russell) has a secretarial job at Yale, where she meets and slightly shocks Rodney Crane (Donald Woods). They eventually marry.

2 Their marriage is happy, altho Rodney finds Louise's independent attitude a little difficult to take. Then their children are hit by paralysis and Louise adds nursing to her tasks.

3 Even after Rodney loses his job, Louise carries on. But her complete independence and capability finally drive him to break away and go it alone.

4 Louise is saddened. Seeking new interests, she attends a costume party a few months after the divorce. There she finds in Harold Pierson (Jack Carson) a kindred soul. He's wearing a Christmas tree on his head.

6 The Piersons operate a greenhouse, and to pay off the mortgage on it they join the children in running a roadside stand. However, competitors wipe them out.

7 Harold turns to aviation, Louise to journalism, but the depression wipes them out again.

8 At right: The Pierson life goes its uneven, uproarious way. Gangsters even get mixed up in it. At the last glimpse Harold is trying to keep the family going, the boys in Yale, by selling vacuum cleaners.

"Never Another Woman," you said

Oh, darling, I hope there never will be.
You're the only man in all the world for me.

It's up to the woman, Mother said. "Keep your hands soft and smooth," she told me. "Use Jergens Lotion."

First I laughed. But hands often in water do need Jergens. I've learned that.

So—all that long time you were gone, dear, I faithfully cared for my hands with Jergens. And you do love my hands; you've said so.

"I'll always love these darling, soft little hands," you said.

YOUNG ARMY AND NAVY WIVES USE JERGENS LOTION, NEARLY 3 TO 1.
Helps so surely to protect your hands against roughness. Jergens Lotion, used regularly, is like professional hand care. Tends your skin with 2 ingredients used by many doctors to help coarsened skin to the smooth, cared-for look and tender softness of heart's desire. No annoying stickiness. 10¢ to $1.00, plus tax.

FOR THE SOFTEST, ADORABLE HANDS USE JERGENS LOTION

From Hildy to Minnie, the Vocalists Have Their Day

Lena Horne . . . blues, nothin' else.

THE vocalists haven't been getting much attention in this corner lately. So here's to dipping into a stack of recordings. They range in style from Hildegarde to Memphis Minnie, and that's as good an order as any in which to take them.

Hildegarde is not, as you may know if you read the amusement section, my favorite cafe entertainer. But I do like her self-accompanied serious songs. DECCA has her latest on tap, and they are illustrative of Hildy at her best. With Harry Sosnick's orchestra backing her up, she does "Ev'rytime We Say Goodbye" and "Who Are We to Say" with that pleading effectiveness that is her trademark. To stick with DECCA for a moment: There are three Crosby platters you'll like—"Let's Take the Long Way Home"—"I Promise You," "Sleighride in July"—"Like Someone in Love," both with John Scott Trotter accompaniment, and "Ac-Cent-Tchu-Ate the Positive"—"There's a Fellow Waiting in Poughkeepsie," with the Andrews sisters and Vic Schoen's band. Gertrude Niesen does her famous "I Wanna Get Married" in her nasal way, and backs it with "Twelve o'Clock and All Is Well."

• • •

Another aside to Pfc. Harry Simmons, U. S. M. C.: There is a Harry James review coming up, and it includes that "Confessin'" number you sought. Greetings to you in the Pacific.—W. D.

VICTOR's star performer this time is Lena Horne, who never was better than in her execution of "I Ain't Got Nothin' but the Blues." Horace Henderson's orchestral background is exciting. It's backed by "As Long as I Live." For the same company the King sisters do a sparkling "Candy," backed by a lively "Saturday Night." And of course we can't overlook Perry Como's "More and More" or Dinah Shore's "Candy."

Give COLUMBIA a hand for putting Memphis Minnie and Big Bill on its Okeh labels. There is an art to appreciating good blues singing, but how can you miss the strange appeal of Minnie in "When You Love Me" or "Love Come and Go"? How can you dodge the sharp tug of Big Bill and his Chicago Five doing "I'm Woke Up Now," and Bill, alone with rhythm accompaniment, complaining about "Bad Acting Woman"? It gets you. More about the vocalists next week.

Let's Stick to That Deadline!

By SHEILA JOHN DALY

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune.)

OF ALL the problems that turn parents gray early and make high school fellows and gals want to pack up their shirts and jeans and best James recordings and leave home, it's the issue of late hours. Parents who can be strictly wonderful when it comes to allowances, using the car, and smooth clothes sometimes seem grim, strict, and old fashioned (your word, not theirs) about that dating deadline.

No gal can really enjoy the tail end of a good evening when she knows her mother is at home awake and anxious, peeking out from behind the bedroom curtain at every car that goes by. And no fellow can be the smooth man of the world when he knows that his dad is waiting up for him in his bathrobe with the inevitable and unavoidable question, "And where have you been till this hour of the night?" That rugged ending can take the fun out of any evening.

High school social life (or haven't you had a date recently?) is divided into definite categories. There are the frequent nights when the gals get together for a harpy huddle at some one's home, and there are the counterpart evenings when fellows get together by themselves. There are the extracurricular evenings for basketball games, club meetings, and Hi-Y get-togethers; there are date evenings—usually Friday or Saturday night affairs for going to the movies, bowling, or a school dance; and then there are the special evenings, those bright lights prom nights or big party evenings, the kind that come up only a few times a year. And every guy or gal has a special, personal zero hour set for each type of evening, but unless parents agree on that time for getting home there is bound to be trouble.

• • •

In a recent poll conducted by a national magazine high school fellows and gals were asked to name the hours at which they themselves thought teen-agers should get in at night. The answers were voluntary and anonymous, and, take it or leave it, the results went like this: Time to be home on special evenings, 10:30; when dating, 12; for special parties, 1; and from week-ends, 12. Maybe you or your parents wouldn't want to set your watches by these results, but that's an accurate coast-to-coast survey.

If you think that bowling party may keep you out later than usual, tell the family beforehand and save them the worry. If it lasts longer than you expected, a phone call will assure them everything's all right.

Give the problem the once-over-lightly to see where you would stand. You might not want to come home from a date or party early, as you don't like to take the initiative in breaking up the evening. It makes you a kind of goon, the type of guy or gal who hasn't been around enough to be able to stay out till the whee hours of the morning.

A gal can partially solve that problem by stating early in the evening exactly what time she is expected home. If her date is a good Joe he'll keep that deadline in mind and make the first breakaway move for her. Oddly enough, fellows who want to get home early rarely seem as "prudish" as gals who make the same suggestion.

Another good reason for an earlier zero hour is the fact that the "healthiest" part of the evening is always from about 8 to 12. The main event, the dance or the movie, is usually over by that time, a sandwich and a malt won't take more than 45 minutes, and after that——? A smart fellow and girl will start for home, and because you're smart, too, you won't have to ask why.

And how about getting up the next morning? No one can do a good day's work with a good disposition on just a few quick hours of shut-eye. Many leading movie stars go to bed each night at 9 when making a picture because they know you can't win Oscars with circles under your eyes.

An occasional late evening is invigorating, but after two in a row the average fellow or girl can't stay awake to face the third day. From eight to 10 hours of sleep is considered best for young people and adults, and if you can fit that in and still make the breakfast table in time in the morning your dating schedule is perfect or your family just doesn't eat breakfast till 10 o'clock anyway.

Most mothers and dads don't object so much to "late hours" as to the fact that they must constantly worry about where young Annie is tonight and because Jackson doesn't show up until 2 after promising to be home by 12. Parents can imagine many strange things when they are lying awake after 12 o'clock at night.

• • •

To you it's perfectly inane to imagine that you've lost your way home, that you got on the wrong street car, or that you tipped the car over, but it doesn't seem long ago to them since you couldn't even steer a kiddy-car. So let your mother and dad in on the big secret of where you're going and when you expect to be home.

Nobody's prying, no one is asking personal questions—you won't be divulging any private secrets if you say, "I'm going to a movie with Jane—should be home about a quarter after 12," or "This is the night the fellows are bowling—don't be worried if I don't get in until 'round 1."

Sure, you have some right to live your own night life, but give your parents peace of mind to live theirs. Agree on a dating deadline and keep it. If something comes up to delay you, call home. It takes you two minutes to dispel hours of worry. But try to meet that deadline—and if your mother doesn't get you Jimmie Byrnes will.

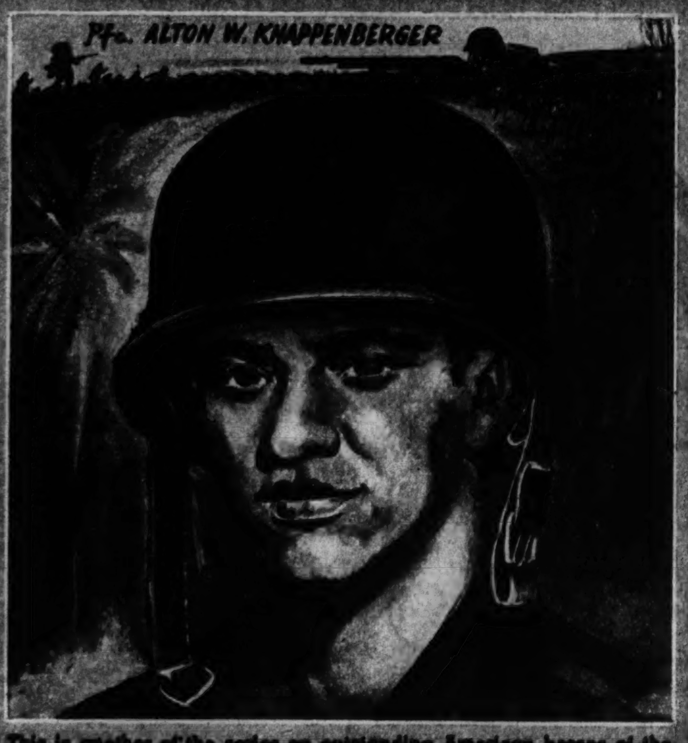
AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects for the series are chosen from among heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clare Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vernak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

ONE OF THE toughest spots that American soldiers ever have found themselves in was the Anzio beachhead in Italy. There for days on end they were subjected to German artillery fire and aerial bombing. When they pushed out on the perimeter of their beachhead they met vicious counter-attacks by German infantry.

On one of these advances a small group of American foot soldiers ran smack into two companies of Germans. Outnumbered, the Americans were compelled to fall back. Some were shot down, but as the others retired in the direction of the beach their withdrawal was covered by a 20-year-old, 120 pound doughboy from Spring Mount, Pa., who operated an automatic rifle with deadly effect.

The soldier, Pvt. Alton W. Knappenberger, fired his weapon until his ammunition was exhausted. Then he fell back a short distance, obtained more ammunition from a fallen comrade, and continued fighting. In holding up the two enemy companies in that scrap, which lasted more than an hour, he killed 60 Germans. That is reported to have been the official count. His last victims were a German officer and six men, whose order to surrender he refused to heed.

• • •

For his valor on the Anzio beachhead Knappenberger was decorated with the medal of honor (congressional medal) by Gen. Mark Clark.

Knappenberger last August came back to America a private first class and wedded his childhood sweetheart, Ruth Eickhoff.

JET PROPULSION

in motion, heading it for the target and modifying the climb angle to approximately 45 degrees. With a speed increase up to 3,000 miles an hour, it attains an altitude in its stratosphere run of between 55 and 70 miles above the earth's surface. After the fuel is exhausted there is an ever-diminishing forward velocity, gravity begins to have its effect, and soon the missile plunges groundward at a speed of 3,700 feet a second. Tho further slowed down to about 2,934 feet a second upon entering the earth's denser atmosphere, it still travels "three times faster than sound."

As yet there is no known defense against this weapon. Modified and adapted for peaceful purposes, it might serve almost at once to hoist meteorological equipment higher than the 100,000 feet to which we now send unmanned balloons.

Fourth and newest of the rocket power units, the aero-thermodynamic duct, or athodyd, was first proposed in 1913 by the French scientist Lorin. It, too, is an aerodynamic tube open at both ends. Fuel is sprayed into the tube to mix with air. A spark jump provides ignition. When the athodyd is moving endwise thru the atmosphere at a velocity sufficient to create the required conditions within the tube, combustion starts producing rocket power.

The athodyd is similar to the engine of the V-1 except for its lack of mechanical means for closing the front end of the tube. Instead of forming a head by sealing the tube automatically, it substitutes the ram effect of high-velocity-ducted atmosphere. At super-speed the air races into the tube. When the air enters the tube what is known as venturi effect (compression turbulence taking place under aerodynamic fault conditions) immediately slows down its velocity. The air coming thru the front rams or compresses momentarily the air already inside. Fuel enters in a fine spray and is vaporized at this compression point. The charge is ignited.

Now the combusting fuel, unable to push back the compression of the incoming air, exhausts thru the nozzle rearward, and a continuously forming air cushion within the tube acts as a head against which reaction pressure is exerted, the thrust of which is transferred to the mounting.

A small athodyd, recently tested at the General Electric laboratories in Lynn, Mass., began to function at a velocity of 290 miles an hour. More powerful units may require 500 miles an hour or more. The thermal efficiency of this unit should be better than that of the turbo-jet unit, and at least as great as that attained by the V-1, for none of its created power is expended mechanically; furthermore, it does not come up against the aerodynamic limit of propeller performance, as does the Whittle jet unit.

The long-haired dachshund at right, Friedl v. d. Starkgarten, is one of the few dogs of this breed and variety to win the companion dog title in obedience competition. Friedl and Ch. Fransl v. d. Starkgarten (left) are owned by Mrs. Max W. Zabel, Wilmette, Ill.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

THERE ARE all kinds of post-war plans being considered these days, but so far as the average dog owner is concerned it doesn't look as if one type of post-war planning was being given much attention. This is a nation-wide program whereby hundreds of thousands of dog owners would be interested in starting and attending obedience classes where they could learn how to train their pets to mind.

After reading thousands of letters from dog owners in many states during the last 10 years we're convinced that if one-tenth of the effort devoted to breeding better dogs and boosting various breeds were concentrated on helping dog owners to get more pleasure out of their pets by training them, there would be less "dog trouble" in neighborhoods and less anti-dog feeling in many towns and cities.

In a day's mail we see these problems involving lack of knowledge of general dog care and training: The dog that runs wild and barks when the doorbell rings; the pet that won't return to the owner when it is allowed to run without a leash; the dog "with no manners at all"; the new pup that is a complete puzzle to the inexperienced owner; the dog that chases cars; and the much-loved pet that howls when left alone. In all of these cases the owner has failed to educate the family pet to respect authority and obey a command.

A few evenings in an informal training class would get such an owner on the right track. But there are very few training classes compared with the number of owners and dogs scattered over the continent.

The way to cure disobedient dogs is not by whacking them with a leash or a newspaper. It's necessary to go 'way back to the kindergarten stuff. This means quiet sessions with the pet to teach it to mind. This teaching can be to train the dog to sit, come on command, respect for the word "no," or any other simple obedience routine. The owner must be firm with the dog. It's necessary to rehearse the pet several times during the day.

This training is important because perhaps for the first time the dog realizes that it must obey. And such obedience means control, which is what the owner wants. Once the owner has control and respect from the pet, it will stop barking when it hears the word "no," one of the most important words a dog can be taught. Our big Labrador retriever always barks a couple of times when some one comes to either the front or back door. That's what we want her to do. But when the word "no" is spoken sharply, that ends the barking.

We suggest that every dog owner faced with a problem of obedience read at once a book on simple obedience training. One very inexpensive one is "Training the Dog," published and sold by the Chicago Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn st., Chicago, for 30 cents by mail. Orders and remittances should be sent to that office direct. There are other good books on how to teach a dog to mind. A list of these will be sent to any reader on request, along with a leaflet on the place that simple obedience has in the life of a well mannered dog.

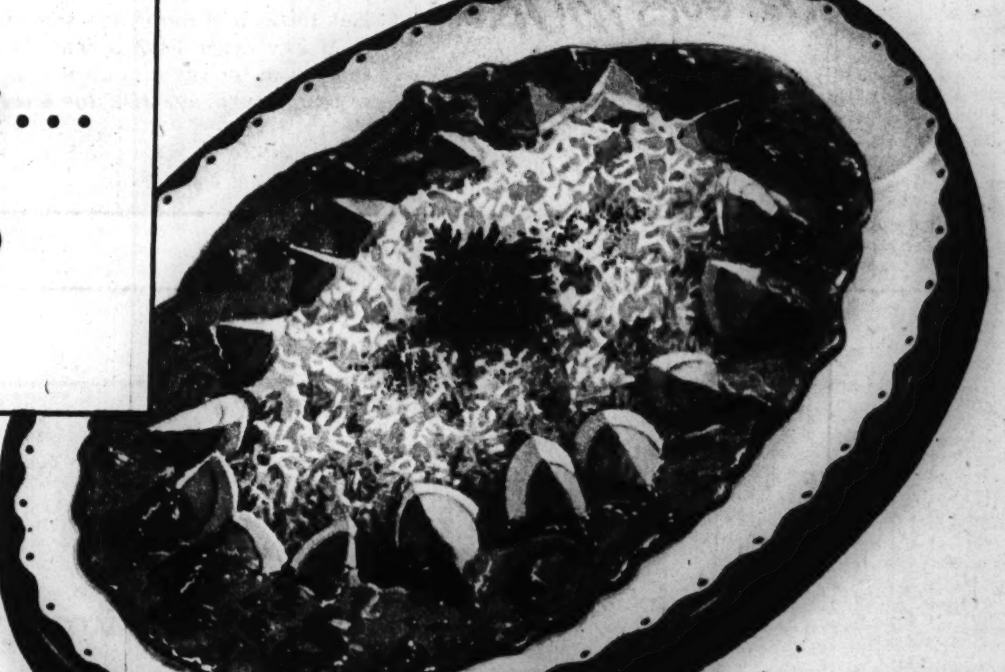
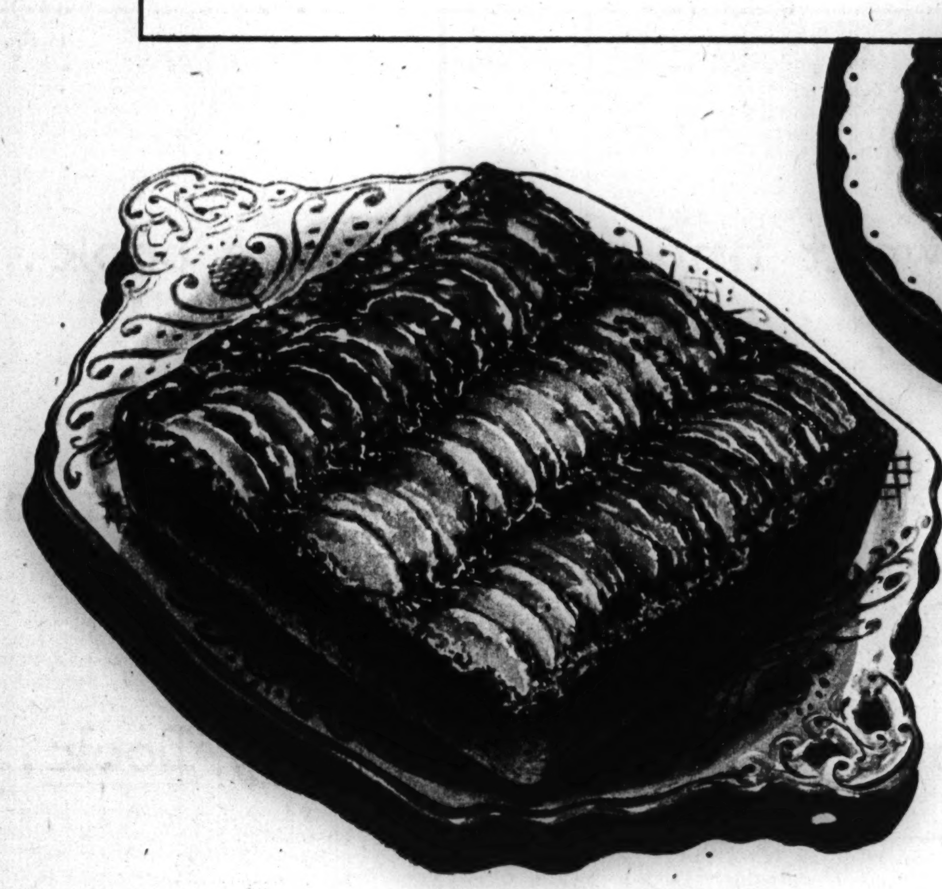
Jane Foster Edison's Director of Home Economics, brings you her own favorite tested recipes, selected especially for Edison Home Service readers. Try them—you'll like them!

Each bite's a treat... nourishing, too





French Curried Eggs
Steamed Rice   Green Beans with Mushrooms
Quick Apple Coffee Cake
Watercress, Grapefruit and Pimento Salad
French Dressing
Chocolate Refrigerator Dessert
Milk (for children)   Tea

FRENCH CURRIED EGGS

4 tbsps. chicken fat or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup cooked tomatoes
1 carrot, finely chopped
1 apple, finely chopped
3 tbsps. flour
2 tsps. curry powder
2 cups milk
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. brown sugar
8 hard cooked eggs, quartered

Saute onions in melted fat until lightly browned. Add carrot, apple and tomatoes and continue cooking slowing about 20 minutes. Stir in flour and curry powder, then milk and lemon juice, salt and brown sugar. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour over quartered eggs and serve with steamed rice. Serves 6. NOTE: For fluffy rice, sprinkle 1 cup washed rice into 8 cups rapidly boiling water. Cook 15-25 min. 'til grains are soft, not mushy. Place in colander, rinse with hot water. Cover with cloth; place over steaming water to fluff and dry out. Separate with fork 2 or 3 times. Makes 3 to 4 cups.

QUICK APPLE COFFEE CAKE

2 cups all-purpose flour
3 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 egg
½ cup sugar
¾ cup milk
⅓ cup melted shortening
1 tbsp. grated orange rind
3 medium-sized apples
3 tbsps. brown sugar
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
⅛ tsp. cinnamon

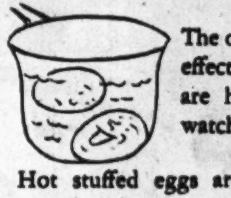
Sift flour, measure and sift again with baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Beat egg, add sugar, milk, melted shortening and orange rind and mix thoroughly. Stir quickly into dry ingredients, mixing only until smooth. Spread batter into greased 8 x 8 x 2 inch baking pan. Peel, quarter and core apples. Slice in thin slices and press sharp edges of slices lightly into coffee cake batter. Mix brown sugar, margarine and cinnamon and sprinkle over apple slices. Bake at 400 degree F. 30 to 35 minutes or until coffee cake is firm and apples are tender. Serves 8.

FROM Jane Foster's NOTEBOOK

Eat Eggs for Health and Goodness

Eggs are one of the few foods which contain sunshine vitamin D. In meat-scarce days, they're invaluable as a source of animal protein and minerals. Eat them often.

"Boil" eggs? Oh no! Simmer just below boiling point; they'll be more tender, yolks won't discolor.



The outside color of an egg has no effect on the inside food value. Eggs are heavier when fresh. Test by watching them sink in deep water.

Hot stuffed eggs are a pleasant surprise when served with a tomato sauce and crisp toast points.

When scrambling eggs, add 1 tsp. of bacon fat for each egg. Cook in top of double boiler. Eliminates scorching, toughness—gives extra flavor and tenderness.

Physical educators now stress "normalcy" for this time of month

The Tampax method of monthly sanitary protection is wholly in accord with modern thought. For Tampax discards the external pad and belt—and removes the nagging awareness that makes it hard to be "as normal as possible on those days".... Tampax is worn internally. When in place it is not only invisible but you yourself are unaware of its presence. No odor can form with Tampax. No chafing is possible. No bulges or edges can show. Then, too, disposal is easy and insertion is quick (with patented applicator). Tampax certainly helps make a woman feel dainty, comfortable and free.... Constructed of pure surgical cotton and perfected by a doctor, Tampax is highly compressed and extremely absorbent. Comes in 3 absorbency-sizes: Regular, Super, Junior. Sold at drug stores and notion counters. A whole month's supply will go into your purse. Economy box holds 4 months' supply (average). Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

OXYDOL
OXYDOL WASHES SO CLEAN
even your biggest wash comes
WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING
FAR AHEAD of Most Soaps in preventing "Dirty Grayness"!
MY, WHAT A SNOWY WASH! WHY THAT TOWEL IS SPARKLING WHITE! DID YOU BLEACH IT?
NO, INDEED! OXYDOL'S LIVELY SUDS LIFT DIRT OUT! EVEN MY GRIMIEST PIECES COME WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING!

Tests Prove Oxydol Washes Clothes CLEANER and WHITER!

Yes, Whiter! In wash test after wash test—Oxydol proved that it actually washes clothes cleaner and whiter than many other soaps which, unlike Oxydol, fail to get out that last possible trace of stubborn dirt and grime!

White and Bright Wash after Wash! You know, soaps often leave behind tiny discoloring particles caused by dirt in the clothes and the "hardness" of the water. These impurities stick in the clothes and turn gray or yellow under ironing heat. But Oxydol combats "dirty-grayness" in an unusual way. It actually helps prevent grayness particles from forming!

New "Hustle-Bubble" Suds Lift Dirt Out! Oxydol's new "Hustle-Bubble" suds are so active they lift dirt out. And they work longer, too—long after other suds that still look good have quit! Yes, with Oxydol all your white things—except for unusual stains—come so clean they're White Without Bleaching. Sparkling white!

So Safe for Colors, Too! Yes, Oxydol is so safe for wash colors, rayons and your own precious hands. Its rich, safe suds wash your colored clothes so clean they fairly sparkle!

Next washday use Oxydol—and enjoy a wash so clean it's actually White Without Bleaching!

AVOID SOAP WASTE!—Soap is made of vital war materials, so soap waste is war waste. Make your Oxydol go farther!

YOU CAN SEE THE DIFFERENCE!

Tests show it...Millions know it!

No matter what leading tooth powder you are using now . . . Pepsodent Tooth Powder with Irium will make your teeth brighter!

Pepsodent makes this unqualified promise to you, without fear of contradiction . . . because test after test proves: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

Tests by impartial laboratories . . . tests with photoelectric devices . . . tests by identical twins . . . by dental clinics, by dentists themselves . . . produced overwhelming evidence for this one unshakable fact:

Pepsodent Powder produces a lustre on teeth twice as bright as the average of all other leading brands . . . brighter than any of them—bar none!

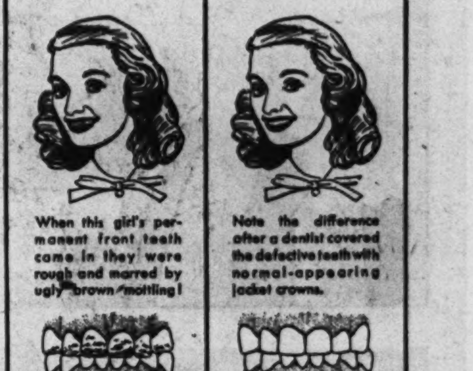
Change to Pepsodent Powder—the only powder containing Irium, the exclusive cleansing ingredient. Use it twice a day . . . and see it make your teeth brighter!

You can see the difference in one week!

How dentistry can remodel an ugly tooth!

Don't think your looks are spoiled for life because of broken or defective front teeth! Whether it's one tooth or many—you, like the movie stars, can have defective teeth camouflaged so perfectly no one will detect them.

For example, when this girl's permanent front teeth came in they were rough and marred by ugly brown mottling. So over the badly mottled front teeth a dentist fitted jacket crowns . . . that exactly matched her sound teeth in color and shape . . . and made all the difference in her looks! Yes, modern dentistry can make teeth more attractive. And daily brushing with Pepsodent Powder can make them far brighter!



When this girl's permanent front teeth came in they were rough and marred by ugly brown mottling!

Drawn from a typical case record

ONLY PEPSODENT CONTAINS IRIUM

THE MYSTERIOUS EGG

ALL the laying hens in the neighborhood of the Teenie Weenie village had gone on a standup strike. No one knew why, but the hens were not laying eggs, and it began to look as tho the Teenie Weenies would not have their usual hen egg for Easter. The little people had visited every hen all the way to Puddlemugg, which is two miles from the Teenie Weenie village, and much too far for such tiny folk to transport a hen's egg. Not a single chicken would promise to lay an egg for them, and it began to look as tho the little people would have an eggless Easter, until the mysterious egg appeared.

The Old Soldier with a wooden leg discovered the egg when he went outside to get some kindling for starting the morning fire in the Teenie Weenie cook stove. He shouted for the rest of the little folks and they came swarming out of the shoe house like bees. The big, brown egg lay on the ground near the kitchen door. Some one had brought it there, but who? A hen could not get thru the tangle of briars and thick brush that surrounds the Teenie Weenie village, and no big person could possibly leave it there. It was all most puzzling until the Teenie Weenie Indian found dog tracks.

"Jack's tracks!" grunted the Indian after he had examined them carefully.

Jack was a small dog friend of the Teenie Weenies, and he had managed to wiggle thru the brush with the egg in his mouth. He had heard that the Teenie Weenies could not find an egg for their Easter party, and somehow the dog had found one and brought it to the village before the Teenie Weenies were up in the morning.

It was a fine looking egg and the Teenie Weenies were delighted, for now they could have a boiled egg for Easter, and they could invite in their small animal and bird friends to help eat it.

The Doctor examined the egg and then he brought out his stethoscope. He put the tiny instrument to the egg and listened while the Teenie Weenies stared in silence.

"I believe," said the Doctor, after he had listened on several spots of the egg, "we ought to put this egg in a warm place and let it stand there for several days."

"Isn't the egg good?" asked the Lady of Fashion.

"It sounds like a very good egg," smiled the Doctor. "Time will tell."

1ST METHODIST CHURCH GROWS WITH EVANSTON

Adjunct to Suburb Since 1854.

BY GENEVIEVE FLAVIN.

Church going is an old fashioned habit, but not an outmoded one for members of First Methodist church in Evanston. Since 1854, when it was founded along with Garrett Biblical institute, the church has served both as a home of religious thought and activity and as a gathering place for discussion groups.

Thru the years it has expanded and accelerated its program to meet the needs of church and community. Today those activities are held in a three story community house, the main church on the corner of Hinman av. and Church st., and in the chapel.

Employs Large Staffs.

To accommodate a seven day full time schedule the church employs a staff which includes a full time chef, housekeeper, commissary manager, seven secretaries, and four sextons. Included on the teaching staff are a full time minister of music, a director of church school choral groups, two kindergarten teachers, a librarian, and 50 members of the teaching and administrative staff of the school of Christian living. Dr. Ernest Freemont Tittle, pastor, has two assistants.

"I've cost the church plenty," said Dr. Tittle, "but I learned early in my career that adequate physical equipment and staff are necessary to the creation of a successful church unit. People will pay for what they need." Evidently his theory is correct, for the membership has doubled since his acceptance of the pastorate 26 years ago.

Nursery Cares for 39.

Among the first additions was the establishment 10 years ago of the half day school for children 2 to 5. Originally organized to accommodate children of Junior Guild members, sponsors of the school, it since has been opened to children of any faith residing in Evanston. Pupils are picked up by buses at 9 and 9:15 a. m. and returned home at noon and 12:15 p. m. The nursery has been lauded for its great community service since the war. It has an enrollment of 39.

Three thousand meals are prepared and served monthly in the church dining room. Under a chef and commissary manager meals are served by students of Garrett Biblical institute, who thus earn their board and tuition. The dining room is a nonprofit organization for the use of club, civic, and school groups.

Many Groups Active.

A typical week's schedule at the church thruout the winter months include 80 meetings, while the summer time schedule slips to 60. Listed are sessions of the seven women's circles; the Red Cross bandage unit; Red Cross sewing unit; Post Kollege Klub; the Junior guild; the Chancel, two high school, 3 junior high school, 4 junior and 5 primary choirs; the Service guild; Evening guild; Newcomer's club; High School Fellowship; Methodist Student's Foundation; Division D club; Boy Scouts; Mr. and Mrs. club; Fortnightly forum; Sunday Evening Fellowship; Mother's circle; Half Day nursery, and the Men's and Women's Bible classes.

To accommodate these organizations the community house has been enlarged three times, with the last remodeling in 1928. Faced with the problem of adding a wing church directors met with members of club committees to determine whether cardroom, dancing, and theatrical facilities were to be a part of the floor plan. Desiring to keep young people within the church, the directors presented to Dr. Tittle a decision to include all three features.

Books for Evanstonians.

Books from the World Friendship library are available to Evanstonians wishing a broader understanding of peoples of the world. Here are gathered 1,500 volumes from every country in the world, dealing with their habits, religion, and ideology. Also on display are costumes sent by missionaries from foreign fields.

From gatherings at First church have sprung the Business and Professional Women's club, the Post Kollege Klub, and a number of other nondenominational groups. According to Dr. Tittle the Post Kollege Klub has proved to be a successful matrimonial agency as well as a social activities group.

Of recent interest to the suburb was the opening of a consumer's cooperative store under leadership of church members.

Finds Time for Details.

Together with his ministrations to his congregation of 2,400 members, his participation in community and church affairs, Dr. Tittle also finds time for details. Church and pulpit lights and acoustics are checked under his supervision. These and many other tasks probably account for his not having had a day off since last September.

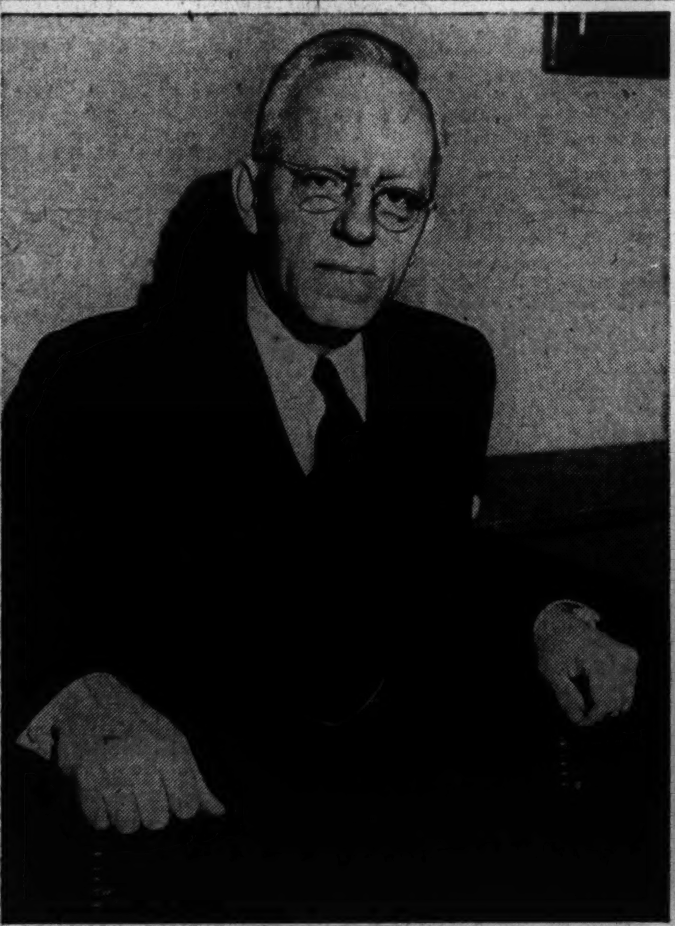
Aside from the cost in personal endeavor, maintenance of the church is expensive, but Dr. Tittle summed up drily by saying "I even have reached the point where I don't mind asking for money."

Advocates Free Pulpit.

During its nearly 90 years First church has been active in three war time service programs. It saw the birth of the Republican party and it advocated the party policy of anti-slavery, altho the church attempted with Lincoln to understand the attitude of southern slave owners.

Today First Methodist church advocates a free pulpit available to clerics of every faith who may speak freely on religious and present day problems.

Evanston Church Doubles Its Size—and Service in Quarter Century



When Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle came to the pulpit of First Methodist church in Evanston 26 years ago, he found an adequate if uninspiring edifice. With the inauguration of his community and church service program, the congregation soon doubled and larger quarters were needed. In 1928 the church was enlarged, and a chapel and wing to the community house was built at the cost of $750,000. When Dr. Tittle celebrated his 25th anniversary last year, the congregation presented him with a cleanup fund to cancel church debt.

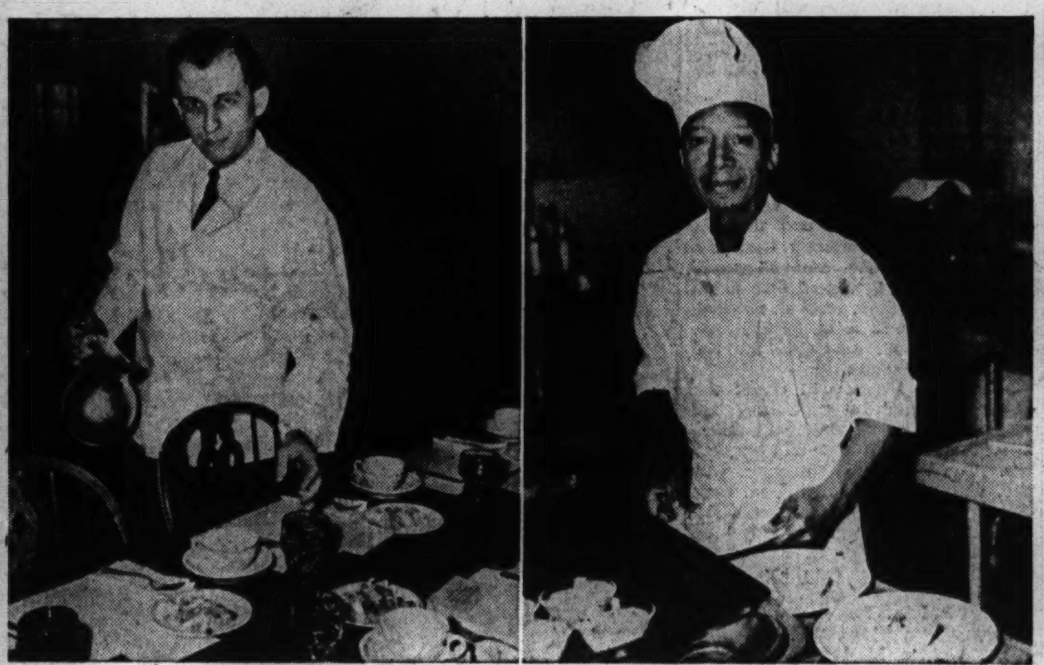
The world at his fingertips, Barney Clark (seated) traces the course of his story on the globe, while John Lowrie chooses a book from the shelves of the World Friendship library. Volumes are gathered from every country of the world so that children of the church, as well as Evanstonians, may develop a knowledge and understanding of the world's peoples.



Students at Garrett Biblical institute earn their board and tuition by waiting on tables in the church dining room. They report for work twice daily. Chef James C. Hunter has been proclaimed by Commissary Manager Ethel Moulton as "the best natured man and the best cook I've ever seen." A full time employe, he spreads his good nature over 3,000 meals served in the dining room each month to club, guild members, and students of Evanston schools.

MEN PROVE ALL AROUND ABILITY AT DINNER TABLE

Score at Flower Show with Decorations.

The men—bless 'em—have a touch of genius where dinner tables are concerned not limited to culinary appreciation. They can decorate a table to a king's as well as a queen's taste. This is demonstrated in the Fashions in Flowers show at Marshall Field and company, where seven won prizes in the table setting class—for men.

Special awards of purple ribbons was made by the show sponsors, the Garden club of Illinois, to Marc Leeds for his "Sabu, the Elephant Boy," while Ernest Von Ammon's "Sportsman's Supper," and Don McNeill's "Breakfast with Aunt Fannie" took blue ribbons. "La Boheme" by Charles Kilgore received a red ribbon, and "Post Curfew Supper" by Paul Piaschke, and Edgar Miller's "Chinese Table" took yellow ribbons. Also on the blue ribbon list was "Circus Luncheon" by Russel Montgomery.

Winners of Other Prizes.

Blue, red, yellow, and white ribbons, in order, denoted the customary first to fourth prizes while the purple ribbon was reserved as a special award of particular merit.

In the large garden class, moonlit garden by the Lake Forest Garden club, and the fountain garden with wishing well by the Glencoe Garden club were awarded blue ribbons. In the medium group the French garden by the Highland Park Garden guild was awarded a special prize of the purple ribbon. The red ribbons was awarded the garden department of Winnetka Woman's club for their service garden.

Win in Still Life.

Two awards, both blue ribbons, were won by north side groups in still life picture arrangements. Suggesting the theme of the friendly nations, Evanston Junior League Garden club's subject was North America, while Waukegan Garden club took their prize for Great Britain.

Bottle Gardens Score.

Bottle gardens by the Winnetka Garden guild took a blue ribbon, a red ribbon for the Garden Club of Evanston, and a yellow ribbon for the Wilmette Garden club, while a blue ribbon was given to the Lincolnwood Garden club of Evanston, and the Garden Study club of Wilmette for tray gardens. In this same class the red ribbon went to the Garden Club of Evanston.

The Ravinia Garden club received a blue ribbon, and the Lincolnwood Garden Club of Evanston a yellow ribbon for book-end floral arrangements. For arrangements in pewter containers, the Wilmette Garden club was winner of a blue ribbon, the Northfielders a red ribbon, with the North Shore and Kenilworth Garden clubs taking yellow ribbons.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 26.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn as soon as the weather is fit and the ground fairly dry. A complete fertilizer is recommended altho ammonium sulphate is effective, easily applied, and safe.

Tuesday, March 27.

Sow sweet peas as soon as possible. The coldframe must be watched and seedlings thinned to enable the individual plant to enjoy sufficient room to develop. On warm days, uncover the sash to permit the sun to warm up the soil for later planting.

Wednesday, March 28.

Spray the soil around perennials that are likely to become infested with a fungus disease. These include such kinds as phlox, peonies, and hollyhocks. Bordeaux mixture, which can be procured ready to use or by simply adding water, is excellent.

Thursday, March 29.

Examine the mulching materials, but do not be in too great a hurry to remove it for there may yet be cold nights and young, fast growing, tender foliage or stems may be frosted. Carefully chip up the soil between the perennials and give an application of plant food.

Friday, March 30.

If you wish a fine bed of low flowering plants for partial shade try the large flowering pansies, for they are superb. Creeping phlox can be obtained in pink, lavender, white and other colors. As a rock plant it is beautiful; for edging in the perennial border it is very useful, and it is easily propagated from cuttings or division.

Saturday, March 31.

Remember that the soil in the garden must be kept in good condition if it is to produce high grade crops. A clay soil can be lightened by spading under sifted cinders, composted soil.

PLENTY OF MEAT, SMOKES IN NAVY, SAYS LT. TENNEY

No Monotony—Japs Still Are Plenty Rough.

History repeats itself in the Tenney family of Highland Park. Both William R. Tenney and his son, William Jr., entered service at 23 as naval ensigns in communications. World War I. didn't continue long enough for the father to see much service, but William Jr. has become a lieutenant and has been overseas more than three years since he received his commission at Northwestern university in 1941.

Lt. W. R. Tenney.

Lt. Tenney, commander of an LST, has participated in five invasions in the Pacific, the toughest of which, he said, was Luzon because "we were subjected to attack more often there." Other invasions included Green and Emirau Islands in the Bismarck archipelago, and Guam and Laete.

"Japs Are Plenty Rough."

At home on his second leave in 3¼ years, Lt. Tenney said: "The Japs are still plenty rough, tho their morale isn't as high as it was. Life on ship isn't particularly monotonous and time goes fast because there's always much to do. We miss fresh vegetables, but we get all the meat we can eat and all the smokes we want, and mail comes fairly regularly.

"I like my present assignment because we transport an interesting variety of personnel and equipment. What did I want to do first when I got home? Just relax."

On Adm. Nimitz's Staff.

The lieutenant arrived at Pearl Harbor Jan. 17, 1942, and was assigned to the staff of Adm. Nimitz for four months before being sent to the Aleutians aboard a light cruiser. The following September his cruiser was sent to Guadalcanal just before the battle of Savo Island, and Lt. Tenney remained there until May, 1943, when he came home on leave.

Returning to duty, the officer received his present assignment with the amphibious forces and was moved to the Marianas Islands. Not all the Tenney family, however, is see minded. The lieutenant's brother, 2d Lt. Robert H., is with the infantry at Camp Maxey, Tex.

ATTENTION

Owing to an acute MANPOWER SHORTAGE and an UNPRECEDENTED SEASONAL VOLUME, causing a serious congested condition in the Dry Cleaning Industry, we wish to give preferred service to our REGULAR customers as a matter of LOYALTY to them. Therefore:

1. We cannot accept goods for cleaning from any new customers at the present time.

2. Regular customers please limit your orders to two ladies' garments and two men's suits, or the equivalent, until further notice.

3. Those of our store customers who, in the past have been calling for their finished goods on Saturdays, have experienced rushes, especially from 4:00 p. m. to closing time, which are very trying on the customers and even more trying on our employees. Therefore, our customers are kindly requested to call for their finished goods regularly throughout the week to avoid these last minute Saturday rushes.

4. There is positively no experienced help available for this Saturday rush period. Ask our store clerks when your goods will be ready and then call for them promptly.

5. By all means please call for all finished goods you now have at any of our stores to alleviate the overcrowded condition. In that manner we will be able to serve all of our regular customers.

Thanking you for your past patronage, we feel sure that you will give us your full cooperation.

BUDA COMPANY'S WAR ROLE TO BE TOPIC ON W-G-N

The story of the Buda company's contributions toward winning the war will be told on the broadcast of America Unlimited over W-G-N at 9 p. m. tomorrow. Buda's war weapons include a small fire pump independently powered by diesel engines, useful to put out fires wherever they break out on ships, and the multiple gauge railroad car, developed by Dwight Richards, chief engineer of the company. Mr. Richards won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE war workers' award for August, 1943, for this invention.

W-G-N's salute to the Buda company is the 8th in a series devoted to showing the importance of Chicagoland and its war workers in giving speed and power to our military forces, thus saving the lives of Americans. The army, navy, war agencies and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are coöperating with W-G-N in presenting this series.

CHORUS TO JOIN NORTHERNERS IN SPRING CONCERT

75 Extras to Sing on Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The Northerners, who have been purveying familiar music every week since Sept. 10, 1931, will give a concert marking the advent of spring at 9:30 p. m. next Wednesday over W-G-N. Lois Wallner will be the soloist, and the Northern Trust company's chorus of 75 voices will be on hand as guest singers. Director Harry S. Walsh has arranged a program which includes "Holiday for Strings," "Hallelujah," from "Hit the Deck"; "Green Cathedral," and a medley from Jerome Kern's "Show Boat." On April 4 Kathryn Witwer, operatic and concert soprano, will become the regular soloist on this program.

Bill Downs, CBS commentator, will parachute into Berlin when the city is occupied by the allies to make the first American broadcast, according to a copyrighted article in the current issue of Broadcasting magazine. Downs and other representatives of the networks drew lots in Paris to decide who would get the first chance to make a pooled broadcast. Downs won. He will make his bomber-to-Berlin drop whether Russians or Americans are the first to march in, it was stated. Following Downs one representative from Mutual, NBC, and Blue will be flown to Berlin from Paris. If German transmitters are intact they will be used to beam early messages to United States pickup points. Otherwise allied mobile equipment will be used.

WGNB, FM sister station of W-G-N, will rebroadcast last night's Theater of the Air production of "Faust," with Marion Claire and Joseph Laderoute singing the principal roles, from 5:05 to 6 p. m. today.

Duke Ellington will receive the award as winner of the Down Beat swing band poll at the conclusion of a special jazz concert to be broadcast in part from the Civic Opera house tonight. The program will be broadcast over WCFL from 11 to 11:30 tonight.

'GIRL CRAZY' IS NEXT SHOW ON THEATER OF AIR

George Gershwin's musical comedy, "Girl Crazy," will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air before an audience of about 4,500 from the stage of the Medinah temple. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday.

An Arizona ranch provides the setting for the production. Skip Farrell takes the singing part of Danny Churchill, a scapegoat son of a millionaire. The part of Mollie Gray, a western girl, will be sung by Betty Mulliner. Earle Wilkie will sing the role of Gieber Goldfarb, comedian. The background music will be supplied by the W-G-N orchestra and chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler. The dramatic cast: Sondra Gair, William Everett, John Barclay, Arnold Robertson, Laurette Fillbrandt, Herb Butterfield, and Carl Kroenke.

FRED ALLEN IS HALL OF FAME GUEST TODAY

Fred Allen, accompanied by the entire company of his former network program, will march into the Radio Hall of Fame on WENR-Blue at 5 p. m. today. Lawrence Tibbett, Martha Tilton, and Raymond E. Johnson of Inner Sanctum also will appear on the show. Allen and his gang will present a full version of their air show, including a visit to Allen's Alley.

"Good Friday Spell" on Symphony Hall Program

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will present the prelude and "Good Friday Spell" from "Parsifal" on the Symphony hall program at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. Other selections: "Variations on a Theme by Haydn," by Brahms, and "Le Jeudi Saint a Minuit," by Turina.

PUPILS RALLY TO WAR WORK AT 8 SCHOOLS

Catholic Youths Aid Every Drive.

Reports indicate that students of eight south side Catholic high schools have gone all out to prove theirs are "schools at war." War bond and stamp sales have soared to more than $407,965 and, according to faculty members, students have been enthusiastic in support of the Red Cross and other civic projects.

The 1,183 girls at Mercy High school, 8100 Prairie av., work under direction of Sister Mary Aquinata, who heads war activities. During the last months the school has purchased, by the sale of war bonds, a gasoline tank truck and a light tank. To date a total of $50,000 worth has been sold. Therese Galligan, student director of war activities, has pledged the school to a goal of $50,000 in seventh war loan drive.

Fifty Are Nurses' Aids.

During the last year at Mercy 50 girls have served as nurses' aids and 65 have completed courses in first aid. Ten girls have won certificates in home nursing. The art department, in conjunction with the Red Cross during the last year, sent 125 choral books to chaplains overseas and made hundreds of attractive menus and Christmas tree decorations for army and navy hospitals.

The Mercy a cappella choir has entertained at Gardiner General hospital. Cakes and other delicacies, playing cards, sheet music, and musical instruments have been sent by the girls to the U. S. O. Most recently, a civil air patrol unit was established, one of the first all-girl groups of its kind.

Aquinas Has Council.

A defense council has been set up at Aquinas High school, 2105 E. 72d st., to take charge of war activities. It is supervised by the following officers: Marilyn Weiss, Adele Malkiewicz, Joan Hogan, Rita Cibock, and Anne Marie Walsh.

Students are kept bond and stamp conscious by salesmen in homerooms. Each homeroom must have at least 90 per cent of its students purchasing bonds or stamps every month in order to fly individual minute man flags and the school's war flag.

The goal of the defense council this year is $280,000. To date they have collected $249,075. An auction will be held in the near future. Souvenirs from well known people, such as Van Johnson, Maureen O'Hara, Eddie Cantor, and Mayor Kelly will be auctioned off. Proceeds will go toward the drive.

Plan Defense Tea.

Also planned for this spring is the annual defense council tea which will honor girls of the Thousand Dollar club. This group includes girls who have brought in the largest sales of bonds. Among its members are Helen Lois Karzas, Eileen Schoonmaker, Marilyn Wickert, Rita Cibock, Anne Kalmes, Barbara Zegers, Rosemary Norris, and Carla Seuring.

Also active at the school is the Junior Red Cross. Scrap books, menu covers, tray favors, place mats, and sewing have been contributed by Aquinas members.

Sell $46,300 to Date.

To date St. Ambrose school, 1014 E. 47th st., has sold $46,300 in war bonds and stamps. Competition between classrooms raised sales in a hurry and the school has now qualified for a minute man flag. Another war activity in the schol is the scrap drive. The winning class each month was rewarded with an hour off. So far the school has collected 14,988 pounds of paper and 1,314 pounds of magazines.

"Have Your Parents Buy Their Bonds Here at School" is the motto at De LaSalle High school, 3455 S. Wabash av. To date $8,303 in bonds and stamps has been sold. Tom McBride leads the bond sales with a total of $2,000. Steve Downey is second with a total of $1,000, and Lawrence Klingers holds third place with $500 to his credit.

Hold Part Time Jobs.

Records show that 70 per cent of the boys are holding part time jobs after school. Besides their bond purchases at school, most of these boys buy bonds on the pay roll deduction plan.

Tentative plans by Miss Olive Shields, librarian and official bond saleswoman, call for campaign in May synchronized with the 7th war loan drive. She hopes to create more competition between classrooms to the extent that 90 per cent of the boys will be purchasers each month.

War bond and stamp sales total at St. Philip Neri school, 7200 Merrill av., have reached the $42,000 mark. Classroom chairmen meet regularly to plan and execute sales activities for each month. Activities are designated to create rivalry both between individuals and between classrooms.

Back Soap, Scrap Drives.

At two rallies students pledge their support to two important cam paigns, the soap drive on behalf of Poland and the scrap drive. Chairmen of the 8th grade division who have been singled out for special commendation are Barbara Bachtell, James Ronan, Sheila McGraw, Douglas Proctor, Robert McNamara, and Betty Ann Delaney.

At St. Thomas the Apostle elementary school, 5467 Woodlawn av., the minute man flag has been flying every month since the beginning of the school year. Sales of war bonds and stamps have reached $6,565. Various programs designed to stimulate sales have been successfully

Gordon Werner.

He was one of six south side men to receive the award recently.

Werner was the only survivor in the after-fireroom which took a direct hit from a large enemy shell.

"I was on my way up the ladder when the shell exploded," he said. "The concussion knocked me down. I was rescued shortly afterward by a shipmate who braved the heat and flames to get me out."

Saved by Shipmates.

During the 48 hours he and other survivors awaited rescue in the water, Werner was saved from drowning several times by shipmates who pulled him aboard rafts. His ship was sunk by the concentrated gunfire of enemy cruisers and battleships after it had caused considerable damage with guns and torpedoes.

YANK WANTS HIS EGG SCRAMBLED; SHRAPNEL DOES!

A member of a forward observation party of a field artillery battalion in France, Fenimore made regular morning visits to a deserted farm house near the front lines. Recently, the Germans began lobbing shells along Fenimore's route. Determined to complete his mission, Fenimore set out on hands and knees to cover the 200 yards separating him from the eggs. Shrapnel whistled overhead, but with three eggs in his pocket, he made his way back.

"It was pretty tough," he grinned, "but if hens can lay 'em under fire, I can go get 'em. Anyway I always did like 'em scrambled."

CHORUS TO JOIN NORTHERNERS IN SPRING CONCERT

75 Extras to Sing on Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The Northerners, who have been purveying familiar music every week since Sept. 10, 1931, will give a concert marking the advent of spring at 9:30 p. m. next Wednesday over W-G-N. Lois Wallner will be the soloist, and the Northern Trust company's chorus of 75 voices will be on hand as guest singers. Director Harry S. Walsh has arranged a program which includes "Holiday for Strings," "Hallelujah," from "Hit the Deck"; "Green Cathedral," and a medley from Jerome Kern's "Show Boat." On April 4 Kathryn Witwer, operatic and concert soprano, will become the regular soloist on this program.

⁂

Bill Downs, CBS commentator, will parachute into Berlin when the city is occupied by the allies to make the first American broadcast, according to a copyrighted article in the current issue of Broadcasting magazine. Downs and other representatives of the networks drew lots in Paris to decide who would get the first chance to make a pooled broadcast. Downs won. He will make his bomber-to-Berlin drop whether Russians or Americans are the first to march in, it was stated. Following Downs one representative from Mutual, NBC, and Blue will be flown to Berlin from Paris. If German transmitters are intact they will be used to beam early messages to United States pickup points. Otherwise allied mobile equipment will be used.

⁂

WGNB, FM sister station of W-G-N, will rebroadcast last night's Theater of the Air production of "Faust," with Marion Claire and Joseph Laderoute singing the principal roles, from 5:05 to 6 p. m. today.

⁂

Duke Ellington will receive the award as winner of the Down Beat swing band poll at the conclusion of a special jazz concert to be broadcast in part from the Civic Opera house tonight. The program will be broadcast over WCFL from 11 to 11:30 tonight.

BUDA COMPANY'S WAR ROLE TO BE TOPIC ON W-G-N

The story of the Buda company's contributions toward winning the war will be told on the broadcast of America Unlimited over W-G-N at 9 p. m. tomorrow. Buda's war weapons include a small fire pump independently powered by diesel engines, useful to put out fires wherever they break out on ships, and the multiple gauge railroad car, developed by Dwight Richards, chief engineer of the company. Mr. Richards won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE war workers' award for August, 1943, for this invention.

W-G-N's salute to the Buda company is the 8th in a series devoted to showing the importance of Chicagoland and its war workers in giving speed and power to our military forces, thus saving the lives of Americans. The army, navy, war agencies and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are coöperating with W-G-N in presenting this series.

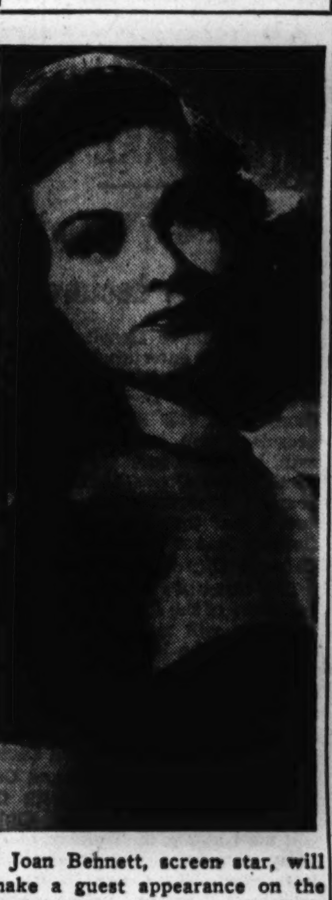
Salute Foreman School on Citizens' Broadcast

Foreman High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 10 a. m. next Saturday. Miss Catherine Ryan, principal, will be hostess. Philip Maxwell, who conducts the program, will add two more names to the honor roll: Dorothy Ann Basner of Foreman and Beverly Jean Evans of Madison, Wis. Dorothy Montgomery will give a dramatic reading. The school choir, directed by Myrtle N. Davies, will sing several selections. Grace Daniels will present interscholastic news.

Joan Bennett on W-G-N.

Joan Bennett will be a guest on the Earl Wilson show over W-G-N-Mutual at 9 o'clock tonight.

W-G-N Guest



Joan Bennett, screen star, will make a guest appearance on the Earl Wilson show over W-G-N-Mutual at 9 tonight.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 26.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn as soon as the weather is fit and the ground fairly dry. A complete fertilizer is recommended altho ammonium sulphate is effective, easily applied, and safe.

New lawns should be made at the first opportunity, which means just as soon as the ground can be worked without being too wet.

Rake away dead grass and debris that may have accumulated during the winter, sow seeds in bare places, and roll or tamp to insure good germination. Sow rather heavily.

Tuesday, March 27.

Sow sweet peas as soon as possible. The coldframe must be watched and seedlings thinned to enable the individual plant to enjoy sufficient room to develop. On warm days, uncover the sash to permit the sun to warm up the soil for later planting.

Wednesday, March 28.

Spray the soil around perennials that are likely to become infested with a fungus disease. These include such kinds as phlox, peonies, and hollyhocks. Bordeaux mixture, which can be procured ready to use or by simply adding water, is excellent.

It is a good time to sow seeds of perennials for many of them will send out a few flowers the first season altho none can be expected to make a good display the first season.

Examine the rock garden plants and press back firmly into the soil if they have heaved from it.

Thursday, March 29.

Examine the mulching materials, but do not be in too great a hurry to remove it for there may yet be cold nights and young, fast growing, tender foliage or stems may be frosted. Carefully chip up the soil between the perennials and give an application of plant food.

Friday, March 30.

If you wish a fine bed of low flowering plants for partial shade try the large flowering pansies, for they are superb. Creeping phlox can be obtained in pink, lavender, white and other colors. As a rock plant it is beautiful; for edging in the perennial border it is very useful, and it is easily propagated from cuttings or division.

Saturday, March 31.

Remember that the soil in the garden must be kept in good condition if it is to produce high grade crops. A clay soil can be lightened by spading under sifted cinders, composted soil.

If the soil needs humus, which city gardens usually lack, rye can be sown and spaded under in fall, or when other crops are off the ground.

[Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.]

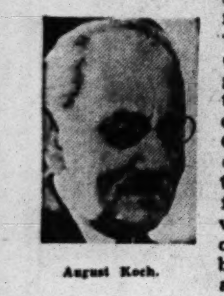
TRY GAMBLING, SAYS VETERAN PLANT EXPERT

War Gardens Need Lady Luck.

BY ELOISE EDSON.

The gambling instinct is requisite No. 1 for persons who would celebrate spring's arrival by planting war gardens, according to August Koch, retired chief horticulturist for the Chicago park district. Despite the possibility of further freezing weather, 72 year old garden gambler Koch has already spaded 150 square feet and constructed a hot bed in his back yard at 5415 Augusta blvd., and has planted lettuce, onions, zinnias, and marigolds.



August Koch.

Persistence and common sense are also important traits for the gardener, Mr. Koch admits, but he insists that no one can raise either vegetables or flowers successfully unless he is willing to gamble. "There are risks of all kinds in this business—frost, flood, drought, winds, insects—but one must accept them along with the pleasures of gardening," he says. The common sense is to be employed in doing everything possible to prevent trouble, and the persistence is needed for trying again after it has come anyway, he says.

West Side Soil Is Good.

West siders have an excellent opportunity for gardening, according to Mr. Koch, because in contrast to certain other land in and near Chicago, much of the soil both in the west section of the city and in the western suburbs is exceptionally good. Also much of the west side is outside the smoke and gas area.

For those planning gardens this spring, he offers four pointers from his 56 years' experience:

1. Make the most of available land. Add humus or chemicals to the soil if necessary—"Lettuce from poor and unfertilized land is tough, like kindling wood," he warns—and remember to cultivate across the slope and to provide a drainage trench.

Suggests Planting Time.

2. Begin now. Peas should be planted immediately, but only in the suburbs—"They just don't like smoke." March plantings are also recommended for lettuce, set onions, and spinach. During the first week in April carrots, beets, Swiss chard, onion seeds, parsnips, parsley, and strawberry plants should be added.

3. Don't waste. Many kinds of seed are now scarce, so use them to best advantage—make sure the vegetables selected are suited to this climate, don't put sun-loving plants in the shade, and don't raise more than can be put to good use.

4. Take it easy. Remember that gardening, like horseback riding, tennis, and other outdoor activities, can develop sore muscles unless practiced with discretion. Don't try to finish a garden in the first day.

Worked in Europe.

Mr. Koch is well qualified as a gardeners' adviser. In his boyhood he learned the almost ceremonial process of broadcasting grain on his father's farm outside the quaint walled village of Dambach la Villa in Alsace-Lorraine. At 16 he became an apprentice gardener, and after informal study of gardening in Italy, Switzerland, and Germany and a horticulture course in Strasbourg, he became head gardener on the vast estate of a French countess.

"The noblemen were fine people, but I was too much of a democrat to be really happy there," he recalls. "I even went bareheaded so I wouldn't need to tip my cap to them."

Came to America.

Because of his belief in democracy, Mr. Koch came to America in 1898, and found work in the Missouri Botanical gardens in St. Louis. Within a short time he had become head of the tropical plants house there, and in 1912 joined the Chicago park district staff.

Accustomed to filling royal banquet halls with flowers that common folk had no opportunity to enjoy, he raised rare and lovely species for all Chicagoans in the Garfield park conservatory, which he developed into one of the nation's best. So that visitors might understand what they saw, he introduced labeling, a guide system, and lectures. In 1939, after 27 years with the park district, he retired.

Married St. Louis Girl.

Mr. Koch and his wife, Wilhelmina, whom he met in St. Louis, have six children and eight grandchildren. Their four daughters, Mrs. Adele Cosley, Mrs. Marcella Alverson, Mrs. Leona Sherman, and Mrs. Germaine Jackson, live in Chicago; one son, Rene, is a seaman 1st class stationed at Great Lakes, and Cyrill lives in Montebello, Cal.

Content with the opportunity for his beloved art in America, Mr. Koch never has returned to France, even for a visit. No word has been received from his relatives in France during the last five years, but recently a neighbor, Corp. John O'Brien of 909 Lockwood av., wrote that he had visited one of Mr. Koch's brothers in Dambach.

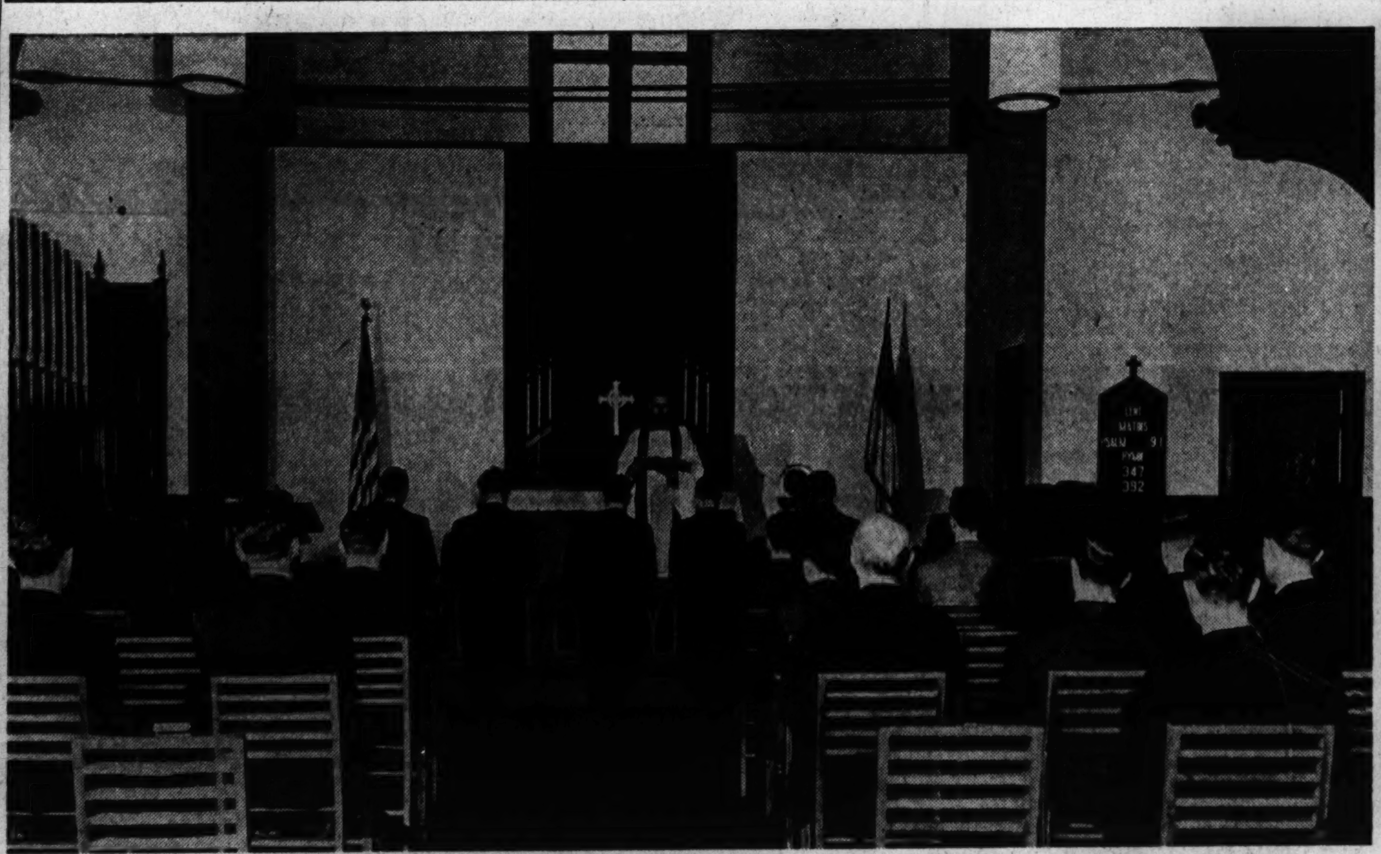
Lutheran Seminarians Live a Balanced Life of Study, Discussions and Sports



Palm Sunday services at Chicago Lutheran Theological seminary, Maywood, will commemorate Christ's entry into Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover. Leading the communion service in stole and surplice, is a faculty member, the Rev. Carl U. Wolf, Ph. D., who has returned to civilian life after three years as an army chaplain. Overseas from 1942 to '43, he participated in the North African campaign. Students attend chapel service daily, and take turns leading the meditation or preaching short sermons.

Spring on the campus brings an annual emergence of golf clubs, baseball bats, and other sports equipment. Seminary students follow a well balanced routine of study, athletics, and extracurricular activities. Talking over the prospects of a good game of golf are (left to right): Wesley Buck, Everett Erickson, and James Fresh. Buck and Fresh are "middlers," or second year students, while Erickson is in his senior year. (Story on page 2.)

Unmarried students at the seminary live in residence halls on campus and take their meals in the college refectory, where the arched, trefoil decorated windows suggest Gothic origins. No monastic severity, however, marks the camaraderie of the seminarians, who being trained for spiritual leadership in contemporary society. College graduates before entering the seminary, they pursue studies on a graduate level leading to the degree of bachelor of divinity.

"Bull sessions are our favorite indoor sport," say the seminarians of themselves. Good natured arguments often go on far into the night, with students citing passage and text to support their point in a discussion. In the group above are (left to right): Charles Powell, John Jetty, Leland Urlaub, John Zerhusen, and Harold Floreen.

LENTEN DUTIES OCCUPY TIME OF SEMINARIANS

BY AGNES LYNCH.

Palm Sunday, feast of the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem, brings an intensification of duties for the majority of students at Chicago Lutheran Theological seminary at Maywood.

No cloistered scholars these young men, who are engaged in advanced studies for the ministry, usually spend their week-ends assisting pastors not only in the metropolitan area but also outside the state. Their duties, which constitute a kind of internship in the ministry, have widened in scope as the penitential days of Lent, drawing to a close, bring an increasing number of worshipers to the churches.

Duties Cover Wide Field.

Duties of the student assistants range all the way from teaching confirmation classes and working with youth groups to preaching Sunday sermons. The young men are prepared for their tasks by a well orientated course of studies which, while not neglecting such fundamentals as Hebrew exegesis and Old Testament prophecy, also emphasizes topics of such contemporary import as "Social Work and the Lutheran Church."

Students carry an average course of 16 class hours a week, with studies leading to a bachelor of divinity degree. In normal times the curriculum covers a three year period. Since the war, however, in keeping with medical and other professional schools, the seminary course has been accelerated to two and a quarter years. The stepup in time has been accomplished largely by eliminating summer vacations.

All College Graduates.

The seminarians are all college graduates, a bachelor of arts degree being a prerequisite for entering the institution. Many of the students plan to enter military service as chaplains, and a number of recent graduates have joined the navy immediately after completing their studies.

Founded in 1891 on the site of the present Wrigley field on the north side of Chicago, the Chicago Lutheran seminary was moved to Maywood in 1910. On its 15 acre campus are located class buildings, faculty dwellings, and residence halls for unmarried students. Married students may live off-campus, the majority finding housing accommodations as near as possible to the seminary.

From Many States.

In classrooms and on campus a spirit of informal camaraderie exists among the students who come not only from Chicago but from such widely separated places as Tea, S. D.; Fresno, Cal.; Germantown, N. Y., and other states. Several of the students, too, have entered the seminary from Canada.

The institution is supported by six synods of the Lutheran church: Illinois, Wartburg, Indiana, Michigan, Pittsburgh, and the synod of the midwest, all of which are represented on the seminary's board of directors.

MUSIC FESTIVAL WINNER WILL BE CANTATA SOLOIST

Roy Anderson.

Roy Anderson, former Chicago Music Festival winner, will be one of the soloists singing Stainer's cantata, "The Crucifixion," which will be presented at 7:30 p. m. today by the senior choir of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Ohio st. and Lawler av. William Rollins will also sing solo parts in the Palm Sunday services.

The choir, which has 40 voices, will be directed by Ingeborg T. Gustafson. Accompanists will be Ruth Rosencrantz and Ruth R. Quoos.

The cantata will be preceded by a half hour carillon recital of sacred and liturgical music.

DU PAGE TB UNIT NAMES HEALTH AID FOR SCHOOLS

Expansion of the education program of the Du Page County Tuberculosis association was announced with the appointment of Miss Elizabeth E. Roe of Itasca as director of health education. In coöperation with offices of the county superintendent and the county health department, Miss Roe will serve as health education consultant in rural and village schools, county high schools, and colleges. Her office will be in Glen Ellyn.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Miss Roe has been director of educational work for the Sunset Camp Service league, Bartlett, Ill., for the last three years. She previously served as case supervisor for Arizona and director of recreation and welfare for a railroad.

A committee representing the association board of directors will assist with the new program.

Expansion of the health education program has been made possible because of the record sale of Christmas seals this year, officials said. Income from the seals has totaled $27,000, and late returns still are being received.

Boys and girls who frequent the toy center at Union park, 1501 Randolph st., will take part in an Easter egg hunt at 3 p. m. Saturday. Ersatz eggs will be hidden in shrubs and nooks and crannies about the park. They will be exchanged for real eggs after the hunt.

Prizes will be awarded youngsters who find the greatest number of eggs. Following the hunt there will be an Easter program in the fieldhouse with singing games.

Bernice Brunson of the Chicago park district staff will supervise the program which more than 60 children are expected to attend.

Glen Ellyn's Book Smooths Students' Path

"The Junior Hi-Way Signpost" is Glen Ellyn Junior High school's novel way of directing pupils on scholastic pathways. A yellow bound handbook, illustrated thruout with block prints, the Signpost was planned by children, parents, and school officials, and contains advice on subjects ranging from the proper bedtime hour to try-outs for cheer leading.

The booklet was written after meetings of parents and pupils. "The mothers were complaining about the children's social life," according to Principal Joe E. Hickey, "parties and late hours, and all that sort of thing. So it seemed a good idea to start a discussion group to iron out the problem."

Art classes, under direction of Miss Wilma Skidmore and Mrs. Gilbert Foote, illustrated the booklet. Among pupils who assisted with plans for the project are Leone Lawrence, Mary Ann Steele, Lee Tolley, Hoke Smith, and Fritz Churm.

Parties, borrowing, sports, music, traffic, and even the family radio are discussed in the Signpost. "Arithmetic and the 'Lone Ranger' don't mix very well, and not even good music can help you read your social science assignment," the handbook declares. And in the paragraph on manual training, "Remember, too, boys, your mother might appreciate a handy man around the house."

OAK PARK HAS HOT FIGHT FOR VILLAGE RULE

Three Tickets Seeking April 3 Victory.

Campaign cries of "Keep machine politics out of Oak Park" by candidates on all three tickets, with charges and counter-charges of major party backing for opponents, promise a hard-fought contest in the Oak Park village and township elections April 3.

Presidential candidates are Richard H. Thomas, milling executive, on the Village Home Rule ticket; Stuart Cochran, financial consultant, Non Partisan Community candidate, and Louis S. Gibson, attorney, for the Citizens' Non-Partisan group.

Deny Machine Support.

Altho all three parties deny machine support for themselves but charge their opponents with Chicago, Cook county and state political affiliations, the candidates represent three different attitudes toward major party interest.

All candidates of the Village party are Republicans, which, they declare, is proper, inasmuch as a majority of Oak Park citizens vote G. O. P. On the Community ticket are both active Republicans and active Democrats, in justification of which their backers assert that both parties should be represented. The Citizens' ticket includes a 50-50 proportion of Republican and Democratic voters, but no major party workers, party members say, pointing out that their aim is to keep village rule completely nonpartisan.

Committeemen Are Active.

Thomas A. Walpole, Democratic township committeeman, is the Community candidate for assessor, while one of the public meetings for the Village party was held at the home of L. A. Wescott, Republican township committeeman.

Veterans of World War I. are included on all tickets, and three candidates have been in military service during the present war. Herbert J. Redding, Citizens candidate for village and township clerk, was honorably discharged after he was wounded in France; Earl F. Rozika, candidate for constable on the same ticket, also has a medical discharge. Joseph Triner, Community candidate for trustee, is on inactive status after overseas service as an army colonel.

Promise Veterans Aid.

On the platform of the Village party, in addition to the anti-machine plank, are a veterans' employment agency, grade crossing accident prevention, exclusion of illegal liquor traffic, public village board meetings on all matters, open village records, the filling of appointive offices by competent villagers rather than nonresidents, lower cost vehicle tags for the duration, and the rescinding of the ordinance permitting sale of grade B milk.

Village party candidates are Harry N. Leadaman, clerk; Paul K. Ayres, Gordon W. Bennett, Ivor M. Hanson, Robert I. Humphrey, Robert C. Ransom, and Andrew W. Watters, trustees; Mary Davis Carleton, Harry M. Peterson, and Marjorie Scovel, library directors; Walter R. James, assessor; Leo J. Talleur, collector; Edwin H. Forkel, supervisor; Alfred T. Brennan, Leo J. Lasnier, Ralph H. Platt, Frank A. Ramsey, and Rudolph C. Weichbrodt, justices of the peace; Leo Gielow, Joseph Kerr, John H. Kirk, Edward L. Orth, and Robert R. Pierson, constables.

Women Hold Rallies.

At the first in a series of meetings held by women supporters of the Village ticket, Dr. Harry J. Stewart, executive committee member, warned that "The Kelly machine is an octopus reaching out for the Oak Park police and fire departments." Village candidates spoke of the threat of control by liquor interests, referring to charges that Cochran, Community presidential candidate, was formerly president of a Peoria brewery corporation, and that Triner, of the same ticket, heads another liquor business.

Leaders in the women's village party movement include Mrs. N. M. Maxson and Mrs. Leo Talleur.

The Community ticket includes 11 incumbents, and is supported by the retiring president, Robert F. McMaster, and Oak Park Leaves, local newspaper.

List Community Candidates.

Community candidates are James A. Wasson, clerk; Robert F. Glaesel, Theodore M. Nelson, Joseph Triner, Lyle E. Hicks, Edward J. Faltysek, and Joseph A. Coyner, trustees; William Y. Gilmore Jr., Carl A. Pfau, Louise W. La Grow, and May Estelle Cook, library directors; Thomas A. Walpole, assessor; Esther Ross, collector; Harry L. Judd, supervisor; Thomas W. Barrett Jr., Hubert L. Steed, Helen M. Cirese, James O. Basta and Gilbert O. Volke, justices of the peace; Harry F. Thiel, Walter F. Wyman, Gerald H. Driscoll, Thomas Murray, Michael Murray, and Michael W. Ryan, constables.

Party officials declare themselves to be as interested as any other citizens in maintaining the liquor-free status of Oak Park, and in preventing machine control of the village.

Those On Citizens Ticket.

Citizens candidates are Herbert J. Redding, clerk; Arthur A. Basse, Edward P. Carroll, Ruth R. Eller, Arthur G. Metcalf, Paul A. Nelson, and Robert J. Wade, trustees; Clementine A. Campbell, George E. Thompson, Evelyn B. Carter and Thomas R. Jones, library directors; Frank J. Tyrrell, assessor; John L. Bond, collector; Jack E. Licht, supervisor; Walter E. Moss, James J. Coughlin, Harold J. Hopkinson, Clarence P. Smith, and Michael J. Creighton, justices of the peace; Arlis D. Campbell, Harry A. Henderson, Earl F. Rozika, Joseph M. Whiteford, and Joseph D. Ulrich, constables.

The Citizens platform advocates a "sensible program" of public works, appointments based on ability, careful handling of village finances, a study of the desirability of a civil service system, grade crossing safeguards, opposition to the annexation of Oak Park by any other municipality, coöperation with servicemen's aid programs, efficient service, improved maintenance of streets, parks and playgrounds, and reduced water rates.

West Side Trio Meets on LST

Three west side men, representing three branches of service, met aboard an LST recently when they participated in the assault on Iwo Jima. They are (left to right): Pvt. Robert F. Eggebrecht, 808 S. 15th av., Maywood, of the marine corps; Seaman Adolph Schoenwolf, 636 S. 14th st., Maywood, of the navy, and Seaman Peter J. Impastato, 124 N. 24th av., Melrose Park, of the coast guard. Eggebrecht and Impastato attended Proviso Township High school together.

Cicero to Vote April 3; Party Tests Skipped

Dispensing with primaries, each of the two political organizations in Cicero has chosen candidates for the offices of trustee, police magistrate, justice of the peace, constable, and library board director to be voted upon April 3.

By foregoing primaries for what is said to be the first time in its political history, the town has saved an estimated $4,000.

HINSDALE ACTS TO AID ITS 1,311 MEN IN SERVICE

Set Program Urged by Legion.

More than 1,300 Hinsdale men have gone to war, and their home community is determined to let them know they are not forgotten. For the benefit of these service men and their families, citizens recently have organized the Hinsdale Service council, which offers six general types of assistance.

Formulated by representatives of various groups who met at the suggestion of the American Legion, the council is headed by Fred McElhone and a board of six directors. Vice chairmen are Mrs. Henry B. Freeman and Harold G. Townsend. Mrs. Howard C. Holzbach has been elected secretary and Jack De Rosa treasurer.

Serve as Directors.

Directors are Mrs. Philip R. Clarke, George E. Ruchty Jr., the Rev. Walter Luedtke, Mrs. Fred C. Bailey, Henry Maxwell, and E. M. Bidwell.

The reviewing and service committee, which offers information relative to the so-called G. I. Bill of Rights, is headed by T. A. Blank, director of the Hinsdale Community house. Mrs. Philip Ketcham is in charge of welfare work, and Leroy H. Mosher is chairman of the hospitalization committee. Other committee chairmen to whom service men's problems can be referred are Russell L. Poppenhager, education; Charles L. Cobb, loans, and Charles D. F. Merrill, employment.

Notify Men in Service.

All Hinsdale service men are being notified of the council's facilities, and further information will be mailed to them from time to time.

According to Mr. Merrill, 92 of Hinsdale's 1,311 service men have been discharged and 14 are prisoners. Thirty-one have died in service, and 11 others are reported missing.

CHIEF SURGEON OF LOYOLA ARMY UNIT BACK HOME

Lt. Col. William J. Vynalek, formerly professor of surgery at Loyola university, is visiting his wife, Sylvia, and daughter, Mary Jayne, at 316 E. Grove rd., Riverside, after overseas service.

Col. Vynalek entered the army in January, 1943, and last July was sent to Paris, where he was chief of surgery in a hospital unit sponsored by Loyola.

Air traffic over the ocean was described as tremendous by Col. Vynalek, who flew home. Many wounded soldiers, he said, are being flown back from Paris. "Even tho he may be minus an arm or a leg, the happiest fellow in an army hospital is the one who is told he's going to go home by plane the next day," the colonel commented.

After a 30 day leave Col. Vynalek will report at the army hospital in McKinney, Tex., for a rest and checkup.

LEGION TO HONOR VILLA PARK MEN KILLED IN ARMY

The Legion citations and flags will be presented to the families of Walter Dziak, Gerald R. Hill, Ralph L. Knippen, Wallace A. Bangert, Aldo N. Allegretti, William C. Brand, Morris W. Cleland, Einar Johnson, Eugene J. Schumacher, Robert C. Albright, Joseph A. Wagner, Angelo Sinibaldi, and William M. Klaeren.

CICERO'S G. O. P. CITY OFFICIALS SAVE $204,926

Expect to Have Surplus 1st Time Since 1932.

Extensive savings to residents of Cicero since a Republican administration went into office in April, 1944, were shown in an audit of the suburb's finances completed last week.

Expenditures for the year were $204,926 below the 1944 appropriation of $1,185,589. Savings included $143,324 in salaries and $61,602 in miscellaneous purchases. Further salary reductions of $72,670 are provided in the 1945 appropriation.

Water Department Profit.

The audit showed a saving of $8,210 in salaries in the water department, which made a profit of $24,740 for the year. The amount of taxes used for the payment of old bond issues increased from $128,129 in 1943 to $160,796 in 1944.

No bond issues were made after April, 1944, altho the previous administration passed an issue in March of that year, a month before leaving office.

Jerry Dolezal and Jerry Justin, Republican members of the board, said that when 1944 taxes are paid this year, Cicero, for the first time since 1932, will have a surplus to pay off some of the $417,000 in back salaries and overdue bills accumulated in the 12 years from 1932 to April, 1944.

$221,684 Water Bill.

Further light on the handling of Cicero's finances during the 12 year period was given in the audit.

It showed that the judgment obtained by the city of Chicago against Cicero in 1935 for unpaid water bills was paid out of the corporate fund. As a result the water department still owes the corporate fund $221,684. From 1932 to 1937 Cicero received $108,308 from taxes for special assessments. This amount was spent for corporate purposes and the special assessments fund is still short that amount.

Altho the suburb was free from bonded indebtedness and unpaid bills in 1932, there were $1,808,547 in corporate bonds, $861,000 in water department bonds, and more than $400,000 in unpaid bills outstanding in April, 1944.

No Payment on Principles.

One judgment funding bond issue, dated July 15, 1939, in the amount of $632,000, made no provision for retirement of principal until July 15, 1952. Redemption of this issue, in 1959, will cost a total of $1,137,600 in principal and interest. Similarly, a $46,800 funding bond issue of June 1, 1940, provided no payment on principal until 1960 and will cost $81,320 to retire.

Specific savings under gross appropriations shown in the 1944 audit include: Police department, $20,365; fire department, $29,449; public works, $56,139; administrative, $28,450, and street lighting, $19,501.

HENRY MILLERS WIN WAR GARDEN GRAND PRIZE

Altho Henry Miller Jr., Villa Park, spent his youth on a farm, he gives his city-bred wife, Peggy, credit for the war garden that won them a $100 bond, grand prize in a nationwide contest sponsored by the Pullman company. The Millers had earlier won $50 in bonds in district and zone contests.

A $9.85 investment, for seed and plowing, yielded vegetables sold for $24.95 and 349 quarts of assorted products which Mrs. Miller canned and values at $104.70. They also contributed vegetables for the Chicago service men's center. Their garden measured 55 feet by 110 feet.

Mrs. Miller's gardening experience is limited to the last three years, but she maintains that the keeping of accurate records, which was part of her secretarial training, is essential in successful gardening.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 26.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn as soon as the weather is fit and the ground fairly dry. A complete fertilizer is recommended altho ammonium sulphate is effective, easily applied, and safe.

New lawns should be made at the first opportunity, which means just as soon as the ground can be worked without being too wet.

Rake away dead grass and debris that may have accumulated during the winter, sow seeds in bare places, and roll or tamp to insure good germination. Sow rather heavily.

Tuesday, March 27.

Sow sweet peas as soon as possible. The coldframe must be watched and seedlings thinned to enable the individual plant to enjoy sufficient room to develop. On warm days, uncover the sash to permit the sun to warm up the soil for later planting.

Wednesday, March 28.

Spray the soil around perennials that are likely to become infested with a fungus disease. These include such kinds as phlox, peonies, and hollyhocks. Bordeaux mixture, which can be procured ready to use or by simply adding water, is excellent.

It is a good time to sow seeds of perennials for many of them will send out a few flowers the first season altho none can be expected to make a good display the first season.

Examine the rock garden plants and press back firmly into the soil if they have heaved from it.

Thursday, March 29.

Examine the mulching materials, but do not be in too great a hurry to remove it for there may yet be cold nights and young, fast growing, tender foliage or stems may be frosted. Carefully chip up the soil between the perennials and give an application of plant food.

Friday, March 30.

If you wish a fine bed of low flowering plants for partial shade try the large flowering pansies, for they are superb. Creeping phlox can be obtained in pink, lavender, white and other colors. As a rock plant it is beautiful; for edging in the perennial border it is very useful, and it is easily propagated from cuttings or division.

Saturday, March 31.

Remember that the soil in the garden must be kept in good condition if it is to produce high grade crops. A clay soil can be lightened by spading under sifted cinders, composted soil.

If the soil needs humus, which city gardens usually lack, rye can be sown and spaded under in fall, or when other crops are off the ground.

[Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.]

Scouts, OCD to Help.

Boy Scouts and OCD policemen will direct the parade, which will leave the playground at 9 a. m.

COUNTY SCHOOL AID A TEACHER FOR 36 YEARS

She Wants Students to Learn by Selves.

To teach children how to learn without teachers—that is the goal of Miss Nellie G. McMahon, who recently celebrated her 25th anniversary as an assistant superintendent of county schools and her 36th year as a teacher. "The purpose of education is to develop independence in students so they can learn and study without guidance," says Miss McMahon, who rates "an upright character" of first importance as a teaching qualification.

Nellie McMahon.

A native southwest sider, Miss McMahon, 10636 Oakley av., was born in Palos township. Her father, Michael McMahon, was born in Ireland and lived in Palos 65 years.

Attended One Room School.

Miss McMahon began her education in a one room county schoolhouse in the same system she later was to help administer. Her teacher from the first to eighth grades was Miss Catherine McClaughry, Palos Park, who later was an associate of Miss McMahon in the county school superintendent's office and principal of the Palos Park elementary school when Miss McMahon began teaching there in 1909.

Later Miss McMahon attended the Academy of Our Lady, Northern Illinois State Teachers college, De Kalb. She has studied at Northwestern university and the University of Chicago.

A guest at a recent reception held in honor of Miss McMahon was N. M. Johnson, president of the Palos Park school board when she was hired as a teacher. In 1914 she was promoted to principal of the Palos Park school and in 1920 became assistant supervisor in charge of county schools in Lyons, Stickney, Palos, and Lemont townships.

Has Own Teaching Method.

She believes in teaching the axioms and postulates of the three Rs by first showing the students how the rules were evolved rather than giving the rules first and then explaining their use.

Her method of handling behavior problems is to have so much work lined up before the class starts that students won't have time for anything else.

BILL KNAPP GETS OVERSEAS POSITION IN THE RED CROSS

Counselor to Glen Ellyn service men since the start of the war, Postmaster Norbert C. [Bill] Knapp will widen his sphere of service next month, when he joins the American Red Cross overseas staff. Knapp will close his work at the postoffice Saturday, and report in Washington, D. C. April 14. After four weeks' training there and in an army camp, he will go overseas as an assistant field service director to do counseling and give educational guidance.

Norbert Knapp.

Publication of the special bulletin started by Knapp in December, 1941, to keep Glen Ellyn boys informed of events in their home town will be continued by the American Legion in Knapp's absence. More than a thousand men are now on the mailing list.

Enlistment of navy men has been another war time hobby of the 44 year old postmaster. As the result of a bet with a Pennsylvania friend, with whom he served on a destroyer in World War I., Knapp was responsible for the enlistment of 175 Glen Ellyn men in the first six months of the war. Navy pilots in the White Eagle and 40 & 8 squadrons, which Knapp helped organize, are now serving thruout the world.

Postmaster of Glen Ellyn nearly 10 years, Knapp is a member of the United States Navy league and the Rotary club, and commander of Du Page county American Legion executive committee.

His home is at 507 Duane st., Glen Ellyn.

James S. Perkins, national vice president of the Theosophical Society of America, will discuss "Evolutionary Factors in World Progress" at 4 o'clock today at a meeting in the organization's headquarters one mile north of Wheaton.

CITY PLANNER WILL SPEAK IN WEST SUBURB

The Downers Grove Plan commission has arranged with the University of Illinois bureau of community planning to have Don H. Morgan address a special meeting to be held at the Downers Grove Village hall for the tentative date of April 11. Members of all village organizations are being invited to attend the meeting.

Morgan was formerly with the St. Louis Plan commission and for seven years has been a fieldman for the University of Illinois' bureau, working to help solve planning problems of villages thruout the state. Any criticism he may make in his resume will, it is said, be constructive and seek to aid the community. R. F. Ward is chairman of the Downers Grove Planning commission with headquarters at 1041 Burlington st.

A phase of community activity believed to impress favorably any diagnostician of the community is said to be the success with which Downers Grove has conducted its wastepaper drives under the direction of C. L. Baylor.

Downers Grove's accomplishment in its recent drive is the more spectacular because it was carried out during bitter and snowy weather.

The total tonnage to date of all the drives which have been held in Downers Grove is 244 tons. The amount of money realized from the recent pickup was $609, making a total of $3,859.89 which has been obtained from the sale of paper since the community drives started.

FOOTBALL GANG OF GLEN ELLYN GROWS TO 200

From a recreation of depression days for a few football players, Glen Ellyn's Amateur Athletic association has developed in the last 15 years into a community-wide project in which more than 200 youths participated last year. Latest interest of the members is planning for the needs of returning service men.

Glen Ellyn business men donate their services as coaches and supervisors, and the organization is supported by membership dues. A membership of 500 citizens is the goal of a campaign being conducted this month.

Among Glen Ellyn men who work with the teams are C. F. Butler, former Beloit college coach and now in the insurance business, who is chairman of the softball committee, and Harold K. George of the Chicago Cubs staff, who has assisted the baseball teams.

Other coaches are Charles Schreyack, Hal Baum, Ted Curtis, and Tony Diederich, baseball; Pete McAleese, skating, and Ted Boss, girls' softball. Directors of the association are C. F. Rudolph, president, C. F. Butler, B. E. Meyer, V. R. Olson, J. R. Stewart, H. A. Gustin, and Charles Schreyack.

Business Men Aid Boys.

The association was formed during depression years, when a group of business men decided to raise funds to uniform the ex-Glenbard High school athletes who had formed a football team. Since that time baseball, softball, bowling, track, basketball, swimming, and ice skating have been added to the group's activities.

Many former members are now in service and the directors feel that a well rounded athletic program should await their return. Other young men will have acquired an interest in sports during their military training, President Rudolph points out, and will wish to join the community teams.

Enter War Roles.

Former Glen Ellyn athletes now scoring high in military competition include Lt. Paul Grant, football star who has completed 50 missions; Lt. Fred Roll Jr., speed skater who downed four Jap planes, Lt. Joe Luckey and Maj. Duane Cann, softball players. All four have been awarded the air medal with oak leaf clusters. Sgt. John Scull, another softball player, received a Presidential citation.

Two members of pre-war softball teams have died in service. Lt. Lawrence Lehne was killed in a plane crash and Lt. Rollie Nelson was killed in action. Missing in action are Lt. Jim Milmoe, former editor of the Glen Ellyn News and member of the A. A. A. board of directors; Lt. Art Johnson, speed skater, and Sgt. Jack Covell and Pvt. Frank Kahl, softball players.

CITIZENS SEEK TO REDEVELOP N.W. SIDE AREA

Would Rebuild and Resell to Owners.

BY JANET PECK.

Civic, church, and school leaders are organizing a Near Northwest Redevelopment council to seek postwar rehabilitation of their community under a private business program whereby present property owners in the so-called blighted area would have first option to rebuy after the neighborhood has been rebuilt.

The project will cover the area between Division st. and Grand, Ashland and Milwaukee avs. Federal Judge Walter J. La Buy, instigator of the program which calls for community organization to promote a private housing project, believes it is the first such organization in the city following the recent State Supreme court decision upholding the neighborhood redevelopment act.

First Met Feb. 23.

The council is an outgrowth of a meeting called by Judge La Buy Feb. 23 at Wells High school. Meetings will be held every Tuesday night.

To succeed, the new council seeks first to convince property owners of the desirability of selling. At the same time, it is necessary to find a private corporation which will agree to buy and develop the area into units suitable for private ownership, and, after completing redevelopment, resell the property at a reasonable profit.

Must Buy 60 Per Cent of Area.

Any insurance company or other private firm seeking to redevelop an area must buy 60 per cent of it before it can begin condemnation proceedings to obtain the other 40 per cent. The neighborhood act as affirmed also makes it mandatory that persons of the nationality residing in the area prior to the redevelopment must be given first choice if the property is resold.

Under the act Mayor Kelly has appointed a redevolpment commission to supervise and control redevelopment projects undertaken by private corporations. This commission, the city council, and the Chicago Plan commission, under the act, can designate an area as "blighted" for redevelopment purposes.

Commission Labels Area.

The Chicago Plan commission has made a study of such areas, including the near northwest side. According to its report a large percentage of the residential buildings has deteriorated to a degree where the residences are considered a menace to health and public welfare.

"Some day," declared Judge La Buy, "this neighborhood will certainly be taken over for redevelopment purposes. If for a public housing project, owners will not have the opportunity to rebuy their property.

Plan Different Types.

"Then, too, our project eliminates the usual row upon row of houses all exactly alike. We plan each building as distinctly separate from its neighbor and we are definitely in favor of home ownership."

Political leaders interested in the project include: Joseph T. Baran, Democratic ward committeeman [25th]; Ald. Bieszczat [26th]; Frank Bobrytzke, county commissioner's board; Casimir J. Gorny, Republican ward committeeman [32d]; Michael Palese, from county clerk's office; Robert Petrone, Republican ward committeeman [26th]; Ald. Rostenkowski [32d]; Edward S. Sheffler, chief justice, Municipal court.

Civic Leaders.

Civic and community leaders who also have expressed interest in the plan are: Alex Bonczkowski, Chicago Av. Chamber of Commerce; Richard Emanuel, Milwaukee Av. Chamber of Commerce; Norman J. Collins, Stanley Bezdon and Joseph Przydatek, National Security bank; Mrs. C. Myers Bardine, Eckhart park supervisor; Dr. Francis A. Dulak, board of health; Horace S. French, Milwaukee Av. National bank; Mrs. Barbara Fisher, Miss Adela Logodzinska, and Mrs. Honorata Wolowska, Polish Women's alliance.

Mrs. Mary Fudema, Thaddeus J. Lubera, and Dr. Paul H. Pierce, Wells High and Evening schools; John Gordon, OCD commander; Marion G. Kudlick, northwest side Kiwanis clubs; August G. Lauterbach and Ben W. Mason, West Side Commercial league; Niccolo Lofranco, editor and publisher L'Italia; Richard Maske, Division St. Y. M. C. A.; Oran Mensik, publisher Community News; John Nering, Polish Welfare association; John Olejniczak, Polish Roman Catholic union.

Stanek, Polish Alma Mater; Miss Lea Taylor, Chicago Commons; Miss Florence Towne, Erie Neighborhood house; Miss Harriet Vittum, Northwestern university settlement house; Mrs. Frankie Trochim, Peabody school, and John Zalenski, Pulaski park supervisor.

AVID PITCHER HOBBYIST HAS A TIP ON LIFE

If You Look for Items You Will Overlook Faults.

"People who have hobbies seldom have an unkind word to say about any one," contends Mrs. Otto P. Heller, 5123 N. Christiana av. "Their interest is usually centered elsewhere than on human faults."

Mrs. Heller should know, for she is a member of the Chicago chapter of the Colonial Coverlet Guild of America, the majority of whose members are ardent hobbyists. Just about all of them echo her sentiments, she says.

Collection Numbers 200.

For the last 10 years Mrs. Heller has specialized in collecting pitchers. To date she has about 200 of them, which she found while browsing thru antique shops, at the hobby show, and on automobile trips with her husband. "It's a hobby in itself keeping them all clean and sparkling," she said.

After settling on pitchers for collection—she also is interested in vases and figurines—she studied her subject until today she knows the background of every type of china, pottery, and glassware represented in her collection.

One of her choicest pieces, she says, is a Capa de Monti, sometimes called a French mask pitcher. In the shape of a head, the face resembles nothing so much as the king or jack in a deck of playing cards. According to Mrs. Heller this is a product of the early 1800s.

Has Victorian Item.

Another of her favorites is a pint sized pitcher of amberinaware. While this piece is not particularly rare, she stated, it is unusual in that the amber yellow shades into a deep red which covers the handle and upper part of the piece. It is of the Victorian era.

Her collection includes Wedgewood in light blue and green, a blue and white Spode piece, a Venetian glass pitcher from the 1893 World's Fair, varicolored spatterware, an authentic hobnail pitcher, a coin spot, ribbonware, decorated Pamonaware, an original Tobey jug, parianware, carmel or cinnamonware, blue and white milk opaque glass, and one little black pitcher dated 1657 which is thought to have been presented to Cuba, whose crest it bears, by England.

Also Likes Figurines.

She has innumerable clear glass early American pitchers in the various patterns that delight all collectors. "There is a pitcher for every state in the Union," Mrs. Heller said as she held up the two she owns, those of Colorado and Virginia. A side interest is her small but choice collection of porcelain figurines.

"Some of my pitchers aren't old," she confessed, "some of them are products of our time. I bought them because they were lively and because some future day they will be of as much interest as some of my antiques are today." Mrs. Heller is fortunate in that her family and her son's family share her enthusiasm. As she explains it, "There's a certain gratification in knowing that the things you have enjoyed working on will become a part of your family tradition and heritage."

Seeks Bennington Item.

There is one particular piece she has been looking for, a Bennington pitcher with a hound handle. "Not a particularly beautiful piece, I'll grant you—it's heavy brown and yellow pottery with a curved handle in the shape of a hound dog—but rather a hard one to find," she said.

"And, speaking of hobbies, Mr. Heller is going to have to get busy on his so we'll have some place to put these pieces." The couple has planned to have shelves built so she can place and group her collection, and that is Mr. Heller's responsibility.

REP. J. O. HRUBY'S MOTHER MARKS 92D YEAR TODAY

Mrs. Mary Hruby.

Mrs. Mary Hruby, mother of State Rep. John O. Hruby, will celebrate her 92d birthday today at an open house at 4418 N. Springfield av., where she lives with her daughter, Mrs. Ann Yamnicky.

Unlike her birthdays in past years there will be no family reunion and dinner. There won't be too much excitement. Altho Mrs. Hruby is still in excellent health, her activities now are confined to small household duties. Until three years ago she was keeping house and cooking three meals a day.

Came from Bohemia.

A Chicagoan for 80 years, Mrs. Hruby says, "I was born in Bohemia and came to the United States to settle in Chicago when I was only 12. It took the steamer I was on 18 days to cross the ocean. In those days we thought that was fast. My father came over in a sailing vessel and the trip took him seven weeks."

Mrs. Hruby remembers Chicago when it had many unpaved streets and no skyscrapers, and recalls vividly the Chicago fire in 1871. "I probably had one of the best ring side seats of any one. I stood on top of a three story building and watched for hours as the fire swept farther and farther north. It started on De Koven st. near where my husband, Albert, lived—only I didn't know him then.

"People today think the war rationing has imposed a lot of hardships on them, but they are luxuries compared with what the people went thru after the fire. Drinking water was scarce and had to be hauled in. My father's house didn't burn so we weren't hit, but it was a sorry sight to see all those destitute people without homes, clothes, or money," she recalls.

Praises Her Son, John.

Mrs. Hruby has four living children, seven grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. Two other daughters are Mrs. Emma Grambar, 4340 N. Monticello av., and Mrs. R. H. Soukup, Hubbard Woods.

Her only son, John, lives at 2758 S. Hamlin av. "My family is the best any mother could have," she proudly declares. "All of my children have been very good to me and I have them to thank for the good care which has kept me in such good health.

Capt. R. B. Olson to Speak to 9th District Legion

The 9th district of the American Legion will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Edison Park post, 6709 N. Oshkosh av. The meeting will celebrate Army day with Capt. Robert B. Olson, veteran of 28 months South Pacific service, the speaker.

Seek Rebuilding

The Chicago plan commission has designated the area bounded by Division st., and Milwaukee, Ashland and Grand avs., as territory eligible for development by the newly formed near northwest side redevelopment council. The council program calls for rebuilding by private business with present owners having first chance to purchase the property after the neighborhood had been rebuilt.

ENDS 29 YEARS OF SLEUTHING; WILL TRAIL SUN

After 29 years' service in tracking down lawbreakers, Raymond Marschall, 55, detective at the Hudson av. station, retired this week to "loaf and relax, and perhaps take a vacation in Miami, Fla." A widower, he lives at 2426 N. Kimball av.

Marschall, who spent 24 years at the Hudson av. station, for many years patrolled Madison st. from the river to Halsted st., an area known as the hobos' stomping ground. He also worked on the St. Valentine's massacre in 1929 and the recent crucifixion of Fred Walcher.

Four times in his career he earned creditable mention and an extra compensation award for meritorious service in catching auto and liquor thieves.

CHORUS TO JOIN NORTHERNERS IN SPRING CONCERT

75 Extras to Sing on Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The Northerners, who have been purveying familiar music every week since Sept. 10, 1931, will give a concert marking the advent of spring at 9:30 p. m. next Wednesday over W-G-N. Lois Wallner will be the soloist, and the Northern Trust company's chorus of 75 voices will be on hand as guest singers. Director Harry S. Walsh has arranged a program which includes "Holiday for Strings," "Hallelujah," from "Hit the Deck"; "Green Cathedral," and a medley from Jerome Kern's "Show Boat." On April 4 Kathryn Witwer, operatic and concert soprano, will become the regular soloist on this program.

Bill Downs, CBS commentator, will parachute into Berlin when the city is occupied by the allies to make the first American broadcast, according to a copyrighted article in the current issue of Broadcasting magazine. Downs and other representatives of the networks drew lots in Paris to decide who would get the first chance to make a pooled broadcast. Downs won. He will make his bomber-to-Berlin drop whether Russians or Americans are the first to march in, it was stated. Following Downs one representative from Mutual, NBC, and Blue will be flown to Berlin from Paris. If German transmitters are intact they will be used to beam early messages to United States pickup points. Otherwise allied mobile equipment will be used.

WGNB, FM sister station of W-G-N, will rebroadcast last night's Theater of the Air production of "Faust," with Marion Claire and Joseph Laderoute singing the principal roles, from 5:05 to 6 p. m. today.

Duke Ellington will receive the award as winner of the Down Beat swing band poll at the conclusion of a special jazz concert to be broadcast in part from the Civic Opera house tonight. The program will be broadcast over WCFL from 11 to 11:30 tonight.

FRED ALLEN IS HALL OF FAME GUEST TODAY

Fred Allen, accompanied by the entire company of his former network program, will march into the Radio Hall of Fame on WENR-Blue at 5 p. m. today. Lawrence Tibbett, Martha Tilton, and Raymond E. Johnson of Inner Sanctum also will appear on the show. Allen and his gang will present a full version of their air show, including a visit to Allen's Alley.

BUDA COMPANY'S WAR ROLE TO BE TOPIC ON W-G-N

The story of the Buda company's contributions toward winning the war will be told on the broadcast of America Unlimited over W-G-N at 9 p. m. tomorrow. Buda's war weapons include a small fire pump independently powered by diesel engines, useful to put out fires wherever they break out on ships, and the multiple gauge railroad car, developed by Dwight Richards, chief engineer of the company. Mr. Richards won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE war workers' award for August, 1943, for this invention.

W-G-N's salute to the Buda company is the 8th in a series devoted to showing the importance of Chicagoland and its war workers in giving speed and power to our military forces, thus saving the lives of Americans. The army, navy, war agencies and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are coöperating with W-G-N in presenting this series.

"Good Friday Spell" on Symphony Hall Program

An Arizona ranch provides the setting for the production. Skip Farrell takes the singing part of Danny Churchill, a scapegoat son of a millionaire. The part of Mollie Gray, a western girl, will be sung by Betty Mulliner. Earle Wilkie will sing the role of Gieber Goldfarb, comedian. The background music will be supplied by the W-G-N orchestra and chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler. GIVES 18TH PINT OF BLOOD, SENDS 459 TO CENTER

Ranks First Among N.W. Side Donors.

Mrs. Antoinette Klatt, 5437 Agatite av., feels she has done nothing unusual in donating 18 pints of blood to the Red Cross center. Neither does she see anything outstanding in having recruited 459 donors for the center from her neighborhood. Her only feeling is one of disappointment that she recently passed the age limit and cannot donate a 19th pint.

To Mrs. Klatt, whose son, Norbert, is serving with the navy medical corps, to help the Red Cross is to help win the war. She holds the silver blood donor's pin plus a red and a white ribbon for her donations. She has won the Red Cross gold eagle service medal for her recruiting work.

Others Rank High.

During the last World war Mrs. Klatt was awarded a special citation and service pin for her work sewing clothes and selling Liberty bonds.

Other top ranking northwest side blood bank visitors include 17 times donors: Charlton Walsh, 3645 Newcastle av.; Marguerite Miller, 5252 School st., and Sidney H. Godell, 6745 N. Oxford av. Sixteen time donors include Mrs. Dorothy Lake, 5236 Melrose st.; Mrs. Alice Peterson, River Grove, and Mrs. Vee Godell, 6475 Oxford av.

Fifteen pints have been given by Warren T. Donohoe, 5535 N. Parkside av.; Mrs. Jennie Bjerregaard, 4860 Natoma av.; Don R. Joyce and Mrs. Mabel Joyce, River Grove.

Give 14 Pints.

Fourteen time donors include Mrs. Martha Jensen, 4333 N. Altgeld st.; John Bruen, 1828 N. Linder av; Otto Doerrlamm, 5105 North av.; Hilton Grant, Park Ridge; Bernard Rakers, 7739 Talcott rd.; Mrs. Sonora Roe, 3043 N. Oketo av., and Leonard Drake, 2300 N. Mango av.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 26.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn as soon as the weather is fit and the ground fairly dry. A complete fertilizer is recommended altho ammonium sulphate is effective, easily applied, and safe.

New lawns should be made at the first opportunity, which means just as soon as the ground can be worked without being too wet.

Rake away dead grass and debris that may have accumulated during the winter, sow seeds in bare places, and roll or tamp to insure good germination. Sow rather heavily.

Tuesday, March 27.

Sow sweet peas as soon as possible. The coldframe must be watched and seedlings thinned to enable the individual plant to enjoy sufficient room to develop. On warm days, uncover the sash to permit the sun to warm up the soil for later planting.

Wednesday, March 28.

Spray the soil around perennials that are likely to become infested with a fungus disease. These include such kinds as phlox, peonies, and hollyhocks. Bordeaux mixture, which can be procured ready to use or by simply adding water, is excellent.

It is a good time to sow seeds of perennials for many of them will send out a few flowers the first season altho none can be expected to make a good display the first season.

Examine the rock garden plants and press back firmly into the soil if they have heaved from it.

Thursday, March 29.

Examine the mulching materials, but do not be in too great a hurry to remove it for there may yet be cold nights and young, fast growing, tender foliage or stems may be frosted. Carefully chip up the soil between the perennials and give an application of plant food.

Friday, March 30.

If you wish a fine bed of low flowering plants for partial shade try the large flowering pansies, for they are superb. Creeping phlox can be obtained in pink, lavender, white and other colors. As a rock plant it is beautiful; for edging in the perennial border it is very useful, and it is easily propagated from cuttings or division.

Saturday, March 31.

Remember that the soil in the garden must be kept in good condition if it is to produce high grade crops. A clay soil can be lightened by spading under sifted cinders, composted soil.

If the soil needs humus, which city gardens usually lack, rye can be sown and spaded under in fall, or when other crops are off the ground.

A Librarian Keeps a File of Elephants

BY ALBERT PUGNER.

Mrs. Frank J. Richards, when at work, catalogs books by number and name as librarian of the Chicago Lawn library. At home she does the same with 264 elephant models.

A trip thru her apartment at 3219 62d pl. will reaveal elephants in many roles. They serve as ash trays, glasses, lamps, incense burners, kitchen utensils, desk accessories, light and shade pulls, calendars, book ends, brush holders, pen holders, perfume bottles, pipe holders, and playing cards. Every day Mrs. Richards wears one of her elephant rings, bracelets, necklaces, hair clips, or buttons. She even has elephants on her handkerchiefs!

Otto Was No. 1.

No scholarly interest, but a jest started her collection of elephantine ornaments. A friend named Otto, who played bridge as seriously as if he were deciding the fate of a nation, reprimanded Mrs. Richards for taking the game too lightly one day in 1928. "O, you're as cross as this old black elephant here," she said, picking up a near-by ornament, "and I'm going to name him Otto after you."

"If Otto can have an elephant named after him, so can I," declared another friend, and the collection was started. All 264 elephants have been named and numbered. They come from 26 states and nine foreign countries, including the Fiji Islands, Italy, Denmark, and Japan. Many are from persons who have heard of the collection, some are from friends, and some Mrs. Richards has purchased while traveling.

Files Tell Complete Data.

One file lists the elephants by name and contains a short history telling where each came from or for whom he is named. Another file lists them numerically. "Every good librarian has a cross-reference," explains Mrs. Richards, who has been a Chicago public librarian for 27 years.

Personalities and incidents in Mrs. Richards' life figure in some of the notations. For example, Adam, number 178, which is a large soapstone elephant from Topeka, Kas., was contributed by the late Dr. Walter Buhlig. He built the apartment building in which Mrs. Richards lives. Alfred, a small white number, was a present from Miss Mary E. Courtenay, Mrs. Richards' English teacher at Englewood High school. She suggested that Mrs. Richards become a librarian. Miss Courtenay is now principal of the Gomphers school.

Named After Library.

Douglas, number 11, is named after the Douglas branch of the Chicago public library, where Mrs. Richards worked four years. Jack, number 28, is from John J. Enright, former bodyguard for Mayor Kelly and now a police captain. Herbert the Magnificent Elephant Number 13 Says You is the grandiose name bestowed on one ornament by a student named Herbert, and Kenneth is the label of all seven little elephants which make up a necklace.

Some cards carry a detailed description of the ornament and its source, such as "Phillip, number 114, a tiny white celluloid elephant with a compass in his side from the Zeiglers, named after their friend, Phillip Francher with a very high I. Q." Favorite of children who visit the Richards is the big glass elephant which holds candy.

Her Husband Converted.

Mr. Richards was not enthusiastic about the collection until he met Frank, a big 16 inch high black metal pachyderm. He bought Frank and it is the largest of the herd. He also has contributed the tiniest member, a quarter inch piece of glass perfectly formed into an elephant with tusks, trunk, tail, and even eyes. Most of the cities he has visited as an installer of institutional kitchen equipment are represented in the collection. At Christmas the Richards send cards bearing elephants and receive similar greetings from many of their friends.

Mrs. Richards says that her hobby is not to be construed as indicative of her political outlook. Just so any friends won't feel out of place, she keeps a little metal donkey in the center of the herd.

First Sgt. Leonard O. Liepelt, 6613 S. He was awarded the bronze star at Fort Sheridan for heroism with the American division on Bougainville where he was wounded.

As his infantry platoon was about to attack an enemy position Liepelt crawled to within 25 feet of the enemy, called up mortar and machine gun fire, and completed his mission altho under fire constantly. He entered service in March, 1941, as a member of the 33d division of the national guard.

The new plan speeds presentation of citations to returning men. Many heretofore arrived home without all their decorations because they were difficult to reach while traveling.

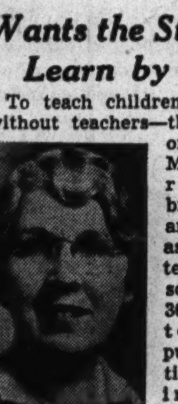
COUNTY SCHOOL AID A TEACHER FOR 36 YEARS

Wants the Students to Learn by Selves.



Nellie McMahon.

To teach children how to learn without teachers—that is the goal of Miss Nellie G. McMahon, who recently celebrated her 25th anniversary as an assistant superintendent of county schools and her 36th year as a teacher. "The purpose of education is to develop independence in students so they can learn and study without guidance," says Miss McMahon, who rates "an upright character" of first importance as a teaching qualification.

A native southwest sider, Miss McMahon, 10636 Oakley av., was born in Palos township. Her father, Michael McMahon, was born in Ireland and lived in Palos 65 years.

Attended One Room School.

Miss McMahon began her education in a one room county schoolhouse in the same system she later was to help administer. Her teacher from the first to eighth grades was Miss Catherine McClaughry, Palos Park, who later was an associate of Miss McMahon in the county school superintendent's office and principal of the Palos Park elementary school when Miss McMahon began teaching there in 1909.

Later Miss McMahon attended the Academy of Our Lady, Northern Illinois State Teachers college, De Kalb. She has studied at Northwestern university and the University of Chicago.

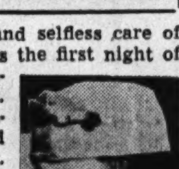
A guest at a recent reception held in honor of Miss McMahon was N. M. Johnson, president of the Palos Park school board when she was hired as a teacher. In 1914 she was promoted to principal of the Palos Park school and in 1920 became assistant supervisor in charge of county schools in Lyons, Stickney, Palos, and Lemont townships.

Has Own Teaching Method.

She believes in teaching the axioms and postulates of the three Rs by first showing the students how the rules were evolved rather than giving the rules first and then explaining their use.

Her method of handling behavior problems is to have so much work lined up before the class starts that students won't have time for anything else.

LEONARD B. BLASCO SAVES INJURED VETS OF GUAM, WINS MEDAL



Leonard Blasco.

For brilliant and selfless care of wounded marines the first night of the Guam campaign, Leonard B. Blasco, pharmacist's mate 2d class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Blasco, 5435 S. May st., was awarded the navy and marine corps medal. The award was made at a base in the Pacific.

The 23 year old hospital corpsman landed with assault forces and during the first night worked continually treating marines despite infiltrations of Japs and the danger from gunfire.

According to the citation, in spite of heavy fire "on three occasions he left his foxhole and crawled from 40 to 70 yards to give aid to nine marines. His actions resulted in saving the lives of several who otherwise would have had no treatment until morning."

Altho suffering from fever and exhaustion, he remained on duty all thru the day and night until the enemy withdrew and the artillery mission was completed. His tenacity and courage were credited with being decisive factors in preventing an enemy break-thru. Ambrose is a graduate of Calumet High school.

Like Ambrose, Drumm received his battlefield commission with the artillery. Drumm, who was with the invading forces at Leyte, recently wrote his parents of the promotion which followed his work in that invasion. Rout Ambush Tank to Win Silver Stars

His submachine gun blazing, Corp. Michael J. Creagh, marine scout, routed a Jap ambush, killing six of the enemy. Quickly applying first aid to a wounded comrade, he carried the man to the rear while his 10 man patrol advanced on Guam.

Michael A. Creagh.

"His courageous and aggressive actions allowed his patrol to continue its mission and aided in the saving of a comrade's life," reads the citation with the silver star medal which was recently awarded to Creagh, son of Matthew Creagh, 3730 Wallace st.

A student at Harper High school before enlisting in February, 1942, Creagh also fought in the Bougainville campaign.

Another southwest sider recently honored with the silver star is Staff Sgt. Alex S. Greczek, son of Mrs. Beatrice Greczek, 5004 S. Kedvale av., who received the medal with the 5th army in Italy for a similar action.

When his company's advance was halted by fire from an enemy tank, Greczek, armed with a grenade launcher, left his place of cover, maneuvered thru intense fire, and made a direct hit on the tank, but it continued to advance. Greczek ran back, got a rocket launcher, and when the tank was within 50 yards, scored another direct hit which completely immobilized the vehicle.

AIRMAN FREES BY HAND BOMBS JAMMED IN BAY

Braving the triple dangers of high altitude, subzero weather, and exploding enemy flak, Staff Sgt. Stanley M. Peca and a navigator crawled out on the wind blown catwalk of their Flying Fortress to release bombs over Chemnitz, Germany, in a recent 8th air force attack.

Chop Bombs Free.

Anti-aircraft bursts rocked the plane as it began the bomb run. When the bombardier pulled the release mechanism, only one side of the racks emptied. Sgt. Peca, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Peca, 3759 S. Wolcott av., and the navigator picked up emergency bottles of oxygen and crawled onto the bomb bays, where they chopped away at each bomb until the rack was clear.

Holds Air Medal.

Peca, stationed in England as a Flying Fortress engineer and top turret gunner, holds the air medal and has been a member of the air forces since December, 1941.

He is stationed with the 3d air division, given a Presidential citation for its England to Africa shuttle bombing of the Messerschmitt plants at Regensburg, Germany.

Rounds Out 20 Years in Air Forces

Completion of 20 years of service in the army air forces recently was celebrated by Capt. James H. Braund, husband of Mrs. Cleata Braund, 5542 W. 64th pl. He is assigned to the 93d bombardment group as technical inspector of aircraft and maintenance facilities at an 8th air force Liberator station in England.

Braund joined the air service [now the army air forces] in Pittsburgh, a few minutes after seeing a sign which read: "Join the Army—Earn, Learn, and Travel." He added four years to 17, his real age.

During his first 16 years of service he was an aircraft mechanic and worked on every army plane from the DH-4B, a DeHavilland biplane with a Liberty engine, to the newly developed four engine Liberator bomber.

When the 93d bombardment squadron was formed at Barksdale field, La., Capt. Braund was a master sergeant and a line chief in charge of repair and maintenance. The squadron was the first Liberator unit to arrive in the European theater and has bombed German held areas from Oslo, Norway, to the Ploesti oil fields in Romania.

Braund was commissioned shortly after going overseas and has accompanied the squadron on two of its three trips to North Africa. As a 20 year service man, he refers to ground crews composed of newly recruited men as "ex-civilians," but says their work in maintaining fleets of bombers and fighters all over the world has been "almost miraculous, altho they've had comparatively little training by peace time standards."

FATHER AND SON TEAM BATTLES AT HOME, IN WAR

Both Are Honored for Staying on Job.

Thomas Lyons.

Pvt. R. T. Lyons.

Pvt. Lyons recently has been awarded the silver star for service with the 5th infantry division in Europe and his father was presented with The Tribune's war worker's award for "unusual devotion to duty" in May, 1943.

Bob has been in servce more than three years, and recently returned to the United States after serving in Ireland, England, France, and Iceland.

Refused to Leave.

According to the citation accompanying the silver star "during an intense barrage of heavy fire, Pvt. Lyons, a communications man, altho wounded, refused to be evacuated and continued to maintain communications between our forces until our objective was attained."

Bob apparently reflects the team's spirit for, when his father was awarded a gold studded diamond pin symbolical of The Tribune award, the elder Lyons gave this advice to war workers: "Just keep plugging until it's over. Everybody should stay on the job, sick or well. There's no place for absenteeism."

Works on Carriers.

Lyons, the war worker, is one of the steamfitters who helps keep the Wolverine and Sable, navy aircraft carriers on Lake Michigan, in trim. Often on winter mornings Lyons, 59, has braved a gale to stand up in a pitching boat, clutch a Jacob's ladder, and climb aboard a carrier. And often he has worked overtime, frequently until midnight.

He is employed by Gallagher & Speck, Inc., Chicago piping firm founded in 1886, and is a member of local 597, Steamfitters' Protective association.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, March 26.

Apply fertilizer to the lawn as soon as the weather is fit and the ground fairly dry. A complete fertilizer is recommended altho ammonium sulphate is effective, easily applied, and safe.

New lawns should be made at the first opportunity, which means just as soon as the ground can be worked without being too wet.

Rake away dead grass and debris that may have accumulated during the winter, sow seeds in bare places, and roll or tamp to insure good germination. Sow rather heavily.

Tuesday, March 27.

Sow sweet peas as soon as possible. The coldframe must be watched and seedlings thinned to enable the individual plant to enjoy sufficient room to develop. On warm days, uncover the sash to permit the sun to warm up the soil for later planting.

Wednesday, March 28.

Spray the soil around perennials that are likely to become infested with a fungus disease. These include such kinds as phlox, peonies, and hollyhocks. Bordeaux mixture, which can be procured ready to use or by simply adding water, is excellent.

It is a good time to sow seeds of perennials for many of them will send out a few flowers the first season altho none can be expected to make a good display the first season.

Examine the rock garden plants and press back firmly into the soil if they have heaved from it.

Thursday, March 29.

Examine the mulching materials, but do not be in too great a hurry to remove it for there may yet be cold nights and young, fast growing, tender foliage or stems may be frosted. Carefully chip up the soil between the perennials and give an application of plant food.

Friday, March 30.

If you wish a fine bed of low flowering plants for partial shade try the large flowering pansies, for they are superb. Creeping phlox can be obtained in pink, lavender, white and other colors. As a rock plant it is beautiful; for edging in the perennial border it is very useful, and it is easily propagated from cuttings or division.

Saturday, March 31.

Remember that the soil in the garden must be kept in good condition if it is to produce high grade crops. A clay soil can be lightened by spading under sifted cinders, composted soil.

If the soil needs humus, which city gardens usually lack, rye can be sown and spaded under in fall, or when other crops are off the ground.

[Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.]

TELLS OF THRILL AS FLAG TOPS MT. SURIBACHI

William H. Mehaffey, petty officer aboard a battleship which bombarded Iwo Jima recently, wrote his wife, Mrs. Margaret M. Mehaffey, 6242 S. Green st., that the extinct volcano of Suribachi "seemed to come alive again with the smoke and flame from our shells."

He has been in the navy 39 months. He also has participated in the Normandy invasion and was on convoy duty. He wrote that the Iwo Japs "must have all lived in caves, because from the ship we couldn't see any one moving on the island.

"We pounded the island for three days before the marines landed. Then on D-day when they came plowing in with their landing boats, the ships stood off the beach—bow of one ship close to the stern of the one ahead—and poured tons of explosive steel into that island. I want to tell you those marines have what it takes and they take what they land on, no matter what."

Mount Suribachi at the southern end of the island was "honeycombed with enemy guns and emplacements and proved to be a miniature rock of Gibraltar," wrote Mehaffey. "For three days we watched Suribachi, trying to follow the marines' advance up her craggy side. Then suddenly, on the third day—it was a beautiful day—there it was! On the highest peak of the mountain we saw Old Glory. I guess I've seen the American flag hundreds of times before back home, but I don't think it ever looked as good as it did there on top of Mount Suribachi."

Legion Council.

Judge Hartigan of the Municipal court will speak before the 3d district council of the American Legion at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Chesterfield post headquarters, 9231 Cottage Grove av.

Two Active in Scout Work Are Given Keys

Robert Kraskiewicz, 4247 Archer av., scoutmaster, and Edward M. Goraleski, 4849 S. Hermitage av., member of the southwest district Scout organization committee, recently were awarded the scoutmaster's key for service to Scouts and participation in leadership training courses.

CHORUS TO JOIN NORTHERNERS IN SPRING CONCERT

75 Extras to Sing on Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The Northerners, who have been purveying familiar music every week since Sept. 10, 1931, will give a concert marking the advent of spring at 9:30 p. m. next Wednesday over W-G-N. Lois Wallner will be the soloist, and the Northern Trust company's chorus of 75 voices will be on hand as guest singers. Director Harry S. Walsh has arranged a program which includes "Holiday for Strings," "Hallelujah," from "Hit the Deck"; "Green Cathedral," and a medley from Jerome Kern's "Show Boat." On April 4 Kathryn Witwer, operatic and concert soprano, will become the regular soloist on this program.

◆

Bill Downs, CBS commentator, will parachute into Berlin when the city is occupied by the allies to make the first American broadcast, according to a copyrighted article in the current issue of Broadcasting magazine. Downs and other representatives of the networks drew lots in Paris to decide who would get the first chance to make a pooled broadcast. Downs won. He will make his bomber-to-Berlin drop whether Russians or Americans are the first to march in, it was stated. Following Downs one representative from Mutual, NBC, and Blue will be flown to Berlin from Paris. If German transmitters are intact they will be used to beam early messages to United States pickup points. Otherwise allied mobile equipment will be used.

◆

WGNB, FM sister station of W-G-N, will rebroadcast last night's Theater of the Air production of "Faust," with Marion Claire and Joseph Laderoute singing the principal roles, from 5:05 to 6 p. m. today.

◆

BUDA COMPANY'S WAR ROLE TO BE TOPIC ON W-G-N

The story of the Buda company's contributions toward winning the war will be told on the broadcast of America Unlimited over W-G-N at 9 p. m. tomorrow. Buda's war weapons include a small fire pump independently powered by diesel engines, useful to put out fires wherever they break out on ships, and the multiple gauge railroad car, developed by Dwight Richards, chief engineer of the company. Mr. Richards won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE war workers' award for August, 1943, for this invention.

W-G-N's salute to the Buda company is the 8th in a series devoted to showing the importance of Chicagoland and its war workers in giving speed and power to our military forces, thus saving the lives of Americans. The army, navy, war agencies and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are coöperating with W-G-N in presenting this series.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

An Arizona ranch provides the setting for the production. Skip Farrell takes the singing part of Danny Churchill, a scapegoat son of a millionaire. The part of Mollie Gray, a western girl, will be sung by Betty Mulliner. Earle Wilkie will sing the role of Gieber Goldfarb, comedian. The background music will be supplied by the W-G-N orchestra and chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler. The memorial tribute should be a service of dignity and reverence, yet it can be so only when the smallest detail involved is thoughtfully pre-arranged, so that the service as a whole will proceed smoothly, without interruption. Behind every service at Colonial Chapel is an efficiently organized staff, carefully trained to the Skeeles-Biddle tradition of personally conducted, thoughtful service.

NEW GUADALUPE CHAPEL TO HOLD MEXICAN SOCIAL

Gathering Will Climax Easter Sunday.

Rev. James Tort.

Parishioners and friends of the new Guadalupe chapel and social center, 4515 S. Ashland av., will culminate Eastertide celebrations with a Mexican social gathering in the hall next Sunday night. Refreshments will consist of Mexican delicacies, such as enchiladas, tostadas, and tamales. Serapes and other Mexican crafts will be on display.

Ceremonies will begin in the chapel today with the blessing and distribution of palms and will continue thru Holy week with services in honor of the Sorrowful Mother at 7:30 p. m. Good Friday. High mass will be sung by the chapel choir at 9:30 a. m. Easter with Sister Mary Ann of the Cordi Marian order as organ accampanist and Marie Louis Garibay as vocal soloist.

Founds Parish in 1943.

The Rev. James Tort, who founded the parish in the Mexican community in November, 1943, will speak on "The Resurrection of Christ and the Resurrection of the World."

The church structure which formerly contained four stores now houses a chapel, social center, and a hall for entertainments. Classes in Spanish, English, and history are taught by Miss Francisca Lana on Monday and Tuesday nights as part of the social center program. Painting is taught on Wednesday by Mrs. Jesse Flores, and Peter Valencia teaches guitar and piano Thursday nights.

Father Tort plans to remodel the chapel and social center in mission style with terra cotta front as soon as funds can be raised. Pews, candlesticks, the confessional, and a life sized figure of Christ in the chapel were donated by priests of the near-by St. Rose of Lima's church.

Father Tort From Spain.

Father Tort, who was born in Barcelona, Spain, is the founder of St. Jude's league, the Chicago police branch of the league, Our Lady of Guadalupe church, 3208 E. 91st st., and The Voice of St. Jude, the league's monthly magazine.

He was an instructor and organist at Collegio Hispano-Mexicano in Toluca, Mexico, from 1910 to 1914. After founding St. Jude's league in 1929 he went to Rome where he had an audience with Pope Pius XI. and obtained five relics of the saint which were placed in the national shrine at Our Lady of Guadalupe.

What The U. S. Department of Agriculture Thinks of this Book

We quote from its publication "Soil Conservation"

"There are moments, in times such as these, when it is a tremendous relief to find a quiet corner with only one's own small affairs for company. To many Americans this book provides the means for such relief. It is designed especially for people haunted by the small-country-home dream, yet it is nonetheless valuable to the established farmer, small or big, who knows that he should check the efficiency of his farm operations frequently and in detail. The meticulous care with which the author treats the details involved in intensive farming is most unusual and commendatory. The friendly, conversational tone of the book is one of its best features.

"The author begins with a warning, by pointing out in no uncertain terms the 'tried and true ways to fail' at intensive farming. He ends his book with appendices to the number of 46, compiled as ready helps to farmers looking for tested and approved methods. In between the 'warnings' and the helps are 46 chapters dealing with practically every phase of farming the small farm for profit.

"In books for actual use as 'tools,' especially in farming, one wants proved and up-to-date facts and not fish stories. One excellent way of checking the accuracy of such books is to check the author's experience and connections. M. G. Kains has been a farmer all his life, on many different farms and under varied conditions. He is likewise a horticulturist of note and has had wide experience as editor of horticultural, agricultural, and botanical writings."

‘Sing Out, Sweet Land!’ Opens Here Saturday Night

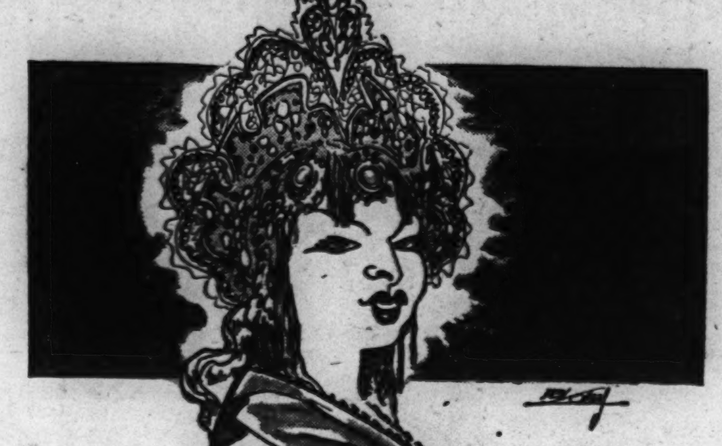
New Musical Reviews Folk Songs of U. S.

By Claudia Cassidy.

For a long time the plight of the drama critic has seemed to me rather more dire than the public appreciates. If he doesn't like a show he is a poltroon unable to appreciate free seats. But if he gives a show a few kind words, he has, in the parlance of the trade, written a rave notice. He can't win. How many times have you seen those friendly words, compiled with loving care on the brink of deadline, torn from their cushioning context and flung at innocent bystanders under the sinister caption, "THE CRITICS RAVE!" And you know what the innocent bystander says. If you can manage to say "Yaah" with your lip curled like Mae West, you have the general idea.

All this has so preyed on my mind that when I saw by Howard Vincent O'Brien's column the other day that he was going to tilt at dramatic criticism, I snatched at his newspaper, convinced a knight had come riding to the rescue. But Mr. O'Brien betrayed me. He wasn't tilting for us, but at us. Having mulled over "The Glass Menagerie" for a couple of months, he had decided it was okay. And this mulling seemed to him far sounder stuff than what he described as seeing two acts of a play, then dashing off to pound out a hasty opinion against a deadline. He said that was no way to treat a work of art. If you ask me, Mr. O'Brien, it's no way to treat a critic, either. This war time wear and tear is awful.

'CATHERINE WAS GREAT'



Her Imperial Highness, Catherine II., empress of all the Russias and a few points west, which is to say Mae West in full regalia for the Studebaker's "Catherine Was Great."

[Sketch by Ben Cohen.]

However, it wasn't the work of art that bothered me, tho that was what set Ashton Stevens' off for a coruscating column. What bothered me was trying to figure out what would have happened to "The Glass Menagerie" if it had taken Chicago drama critics two months of mulling to decide it was okay. Roman candles that we are, we went off the very next day with a splutter the like of which has not been equaled in seasons, and even so, that lovely little play almost starved to death before the customers caught up with its brilliance.

Much as I admire the widely circulated, not to say illustrated, Mr. O'Brien, I'm putting a hex on him for a week. I hope that piece of his doesn't beat "The Glass Menagerie" to New York. If the New York critics start mulling, they may achieve masterpieces for posterity, but what my favorite play is going to need is a batch of bravos for right now. I won't even mind—too much—if their choicer morsels of scintillant prose leap at me from the nearest newspaper under the shrieking headline, "THE CRITICS RAVE!" If they must be sent to the critical booby hatch, they couldn't go in a better cause.

• • •

Chicago critics, meanwhile, are going to be permitted a dignified mien at the opening of "Sing Out, Sweet Land!" which has chosen Saturday night as the time for its invasion of the newly christened Shubert Great Northern. None of that surreptitious checking of watches, stumbling up dark aisles, frenzied searching for nonexistent taxicabs, or making the typewriter smoke in gallant effort to catch the presses, which would breathe fire at the delay if they had nostrils. No, the morning paper critics are going to sit right there to the last curtain like their afternoon brethren, but if you or Mr. O'Brien think any one of them is going to let that show go cold on him while he mulls of a Sunday, I'll bet you are six times wrong—once for each paper. Any reviewer worth his salt long since learned one major lesson—write it while it's hot.

• • •

"Sing Out, Sweet Land!" sounds like something clean and fresh to give a fine old theater a deserved place in the sun of public approval. It is the Theater Guild's musical which reviews the comic and epic songs of America from the early days up to now. Walter Kerr and Elie Siegmeister put it together, with dances by Weidman and Humphrey, and settings and costumes by Albert Johnson and Lucinda Ballard. Miss Ballard, you remember, did Ballet Theater's enchanting décor for "Giselle."

It was Carl Sandburg who said of Burl Ives, "He is the mightiest ballad singer born in any century," which would be good enough for me even if I didn't admire Mr. Ives on my own. "The Wayfaring Stranger" of the guitar, who absorbs music as he wanders, is a pretty big man. Six feet one, 270 pounds, no less, Mr. Ives sings some 300 folk songs, not all of them in "Sing Out, Sweet Land!" There you will find a flock of them, tho, including "Blue Tail Fly," said to have been Abraham Lincoln's favorite. Mr. Sandburg would know about that.

Raymond Jacquemot, who is Barnaby Goodchild now that Alfred Drake has ducked to Hollywood, began to sing at Rutgers college. Then he joined the Hilltop Players in Maryland, and invaded New York stage shows and radio. More recently he has been singing in "The Student Prince."

Monday night, April 2, is going to cause a lot of people the sweet pain of choice. "One Touch of Venus" opens at the Opera house, Vladimir Horowitz introduces Prokofieff's Eighth sonata at Orchestra hall, and Artur Schnabel plays one of his rare recitals at Mandel hall. For theatrical folk the road forks west to 20 Wacker dr., where Mary Martin and John Boles cling to their original roles in the long-lived musical by S. J. Perelman, Ogden Nash, and Kurt Weill, who wrote, among other things, the enchanting "September Song." For the newer show he has "Sing Low," "That's Him," and other favorites. Among the numerous replacements in the cast is Eleanor French for Paula Laurence. I don't know Miss French, but Will Davidson says okay from the Camellia House. Between Mr. Davidson and Mr. Sandburg, this column is one authoritative testimonial—for one day, anyway.

Eleanor French.

In case you missed the midweek story, "Othello" is in stormy mood about that booking of "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" to follow it at the Erlanger. "Othello" opens April 10 and says it will stick around for a while, and that "Jacobowsky" can just go hunt itself another theater. Both plays, like "Sing Out, Sweet Land!", are on American Theater society subscription.

THE GOLDEN TOTEM

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

(Copyright: 1945: By Barrett Willoughby.)

INSTALMENT XII.

IT WAS some time before Lynn realized she was facing Melody Hill. There was a light shining up there just above the last fringe of trees. That would be the Pent House. The thought lessened her sense of aloneness. From there, perhaps, Court Faber might look down on Illahee. He might even be looking now.

Before she could elaborate on this thought, MacFarlane came bounding up to her with little dog noises of joy. Greer came behind him. He said, in a troubled, apologetic voice, "I'm terribly sorry about the ring, Lynn. Can you forgive a blundering, tactless bachelor? I meant only to be kind."

She turned to him. "I'm sure you did."

"As for Perry—don't bother your pretty little head about him any more. I'll take care of him for you. And now—good night, my dear."

"Good ni—" She broke off to lift her head, listening.

From Melody Hill came the sound of a flute—Irish music of infinite longing and regret riding crystal clear above the soughing of the forests.

They fell silent for a moment, compelled, somehow, to follow Flan's theme as it climbed the wind again and again, ending always on an eerie, questioning note that was never answered. And so, when a sudden shrill whistle sabered the darkness, both of them uttered an exclamation of surprise and whirled about.

Moving in across the wind torn cove came the red and green lights of a craft. "The Prospector!" cried Lynn.

"No. It can't be." She failed to note Greer's sharp displeasure. "Perry's not due back for three days."

The whistle was enthusiastically tooting out the rhythm of "All Policemen Have Big Feet." "It's Perry," insisted Lynn. "No one else would announce his arrival like that." She laughed in relief. No more tete-a-tete evenings with Jefferson Greer! She caught up her long skirt and, with MacFarlane bounding ahead of her, ran down the stone steps to meet the incoming cruiser.

Tonight, darkness, wind and rushing clouds all combined somehow to lift the Prospector's arrival out of the commonplace into the realm of the adventurous. There was an air of dashing competence about Perry as he laid the cruiser alongside the float and, from behind the wheel, called a laughing greeting to Lynn. Back of him in the unlighted pilot-house stood the Baxter party—five vague figures of potential possibilities bringing, who knew what, delightful touches of life from the world of civilization that seemed so remote.

The guests leaped to the float—sturdy, middle-aged men in expensive outing clothes, all of them expectant and eager as boys on a holiday. Greer extended his hand and stepped forward with his glad, level look, his hearty Alaska welcome.

Lynn saw Tonglaw already taking over the luggage from Al and Bill, and wondered at his prompt appearance. Then the float floodlight came on and her eyes widened on the pilot-house door.

• • •

Perry, with some ceremony, was handing an unexpected guest thru to the narrow deck—a tall young woman whom he would have described as a "knock-out." Shoulder-length hair of mahogany-red, extreme hat, several thousand dollars worth of mink coat, sheer stockings on perfect legs, and spike-heeled sandals so airy as to be almost invisible above the soles.

At that moment Greer, still laughing at some suave witticism of Doctor Baxter's turned and saw her. His mouth froze in the form of his laugh; but only for an instant. Then he was stepping swiftly toward her, smiling, both hands outstretched. "At first I thought I must be dreaming—a wonderful dream." His voice had taken on its deep organ tone. "Welcome to Illahee, Miss Chandler—"

"Mrs. Chandler," corrected the stranger.

"Of course. How stupid of me. What good fortune brings you here—a month ahead of time, Mrs. Chandler?" Without giving her a chance to reply he reached up, took both her large white hands in his and, with sort of wary courtesy, helped her to the float.

Greer continued: "Let me present my secretary, Miss Lynn Clonard." Then facetiously, gesturing to the Scotty sitting on his haunches close to Lynn's feet, he went on: "And this is Sir MacFarlane Clonard. You already know Miss Clonard's fiance, Perry Holloway. Perry, take charge of Doctor Baxter and the others, please. Lynn, Mrs. Stella Chandler is one of our—most important stockholders."

Mrs. Chandler had been studying Lynn with black eyes that, even in the dim light, showed hot and moist and luminous. "Yes, Miss Clonard," she said, with an odd laugh. "I was among the—shall we say—earlier ones." She turned her back on Lynn just as Tonglaw came hurrying along with baggage in each hand. Obviously to put as much space as possible between herself and the Thlinget, she took a step backward.

Her spike heel came down on MacFarlane's forefoot; her ankle turned. Her exasperated "Damn!" blended with the pup's yelp of pain.

Greer thrust a steadying hand beneath her elbow. She clutched her coat, looked down, and saw MacFarlane holding up his hurt paw for Lynn's sympathy. A sandaled foot suddenly shot out in a vicious kick that lifted the Scotty toward the edge of the float.

Lynn leaped and caught the pup just as he was toppling over into the water. Holding him in her arms she turned on the stranger, vividly young and for the moment, beautiful in her flashing-eyed anger. "He wasn't bothering you! How dare you kick him!"

Mrs. Chandler lowered her lashes. Her slow, up-and-down look took in the slender figure in the blowing white gown, and came to rest on MacFarlane, snarling and lunging at her from his mistress' arms. She tightened one corner of her heavy painted mouth and worked it in and out a couple of times. Then she coldly replied, "He ran under my feet. I hate dogs, Miss Clonard."

Greer stepped in between the two women. "This brewing storm has us all on edge. I'm sorry, Mrs. Chandler, I know you're tired after your long, hard trip. Let me take you right up to Illahee, and make you comfortable. My housekeeper is already setting out a lunch, and I can promise you something brand new in the way of a cocktail. Perry invented it the other day—a cross between a Daiquiri and a Sidecar, I believe," he finished with a laugh.

• • •

At the mention of food and drink Mrs. Chandler's face brightened. Greer, with soothing, deferential words, began to steer her along the float toward Illahee Lodge, where every window was now a hospitable blossom of golden light.

They were nearing the sportsmen waiting at the foot of the steps, when Al overtook them. "Boss, do you mind if I use that new Julie boat with the outboard motor?"

"Tonight? What's up?"

Al groaned. "The Veteran Virgin. She pulled the ring out of her nose and vamoosed. On the biggest tide of the month, too."

"O, let the old crate go, Al. She's no good."

"She's our mascot, boss! Our four leaf clover! Our good luck—Bill's and mine. We've got to find her before the tide turns and sweeps her down thru the Bottleneck."

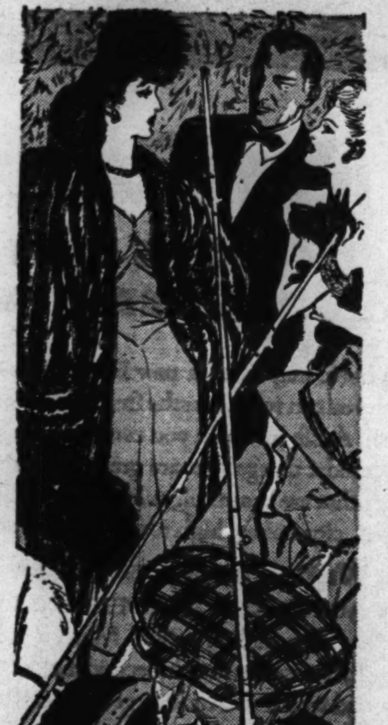
Greer laughed indulgently. "O, all right. But ask Lynn first. The Julie belongs to her." He turned to Stella Chandler who stood waiting, patting a yawn with long oxblood-tipped fingers; then called back over his shoulder to Al. "Try the Gorge first. These high tides set in there strong."

Tonglaw, bent over to take hold of the last two suitcases on the float, straightened after Greer's last remark, and without picking up the luggage, walked over to where the Julie was bumping the float in the rising tide. He waited until Al and Bill were seated in the little craft before he spoke. "Outside the cove, boys, the tide really swings off toward the other shore of the inlet," he said in a quiet, authoritative voice. "It might be wise to try over there before you go up to the Gorge."

"Thanks, Tong," answered Bill. "We'll do that little thing. Wish you could come along with us."

"Wish I could, too," responded the Thlinget, with his slow, slightly sardonic grin.

With calculated nonchalance, Greer guided his guests in out of the windy night to the living room.



Mrs. Chandler took in the figure in the blowing white gown. "I hate dogs, Miss Clonard."

Mrs. Chandler immediately high-heeled her way to a soft chair; but the sportsmen paused inside the threshold and looked about in surprise.

Mrs. Strum had been busy to good purpose. Logs flamed and crackled in the fireplace. Shaded lamps made pools of light on the comfort of deep-cushioned chairs and sofas. Bowls of iris and wild roses, gathered by Lynn that morning, lent an unexpected exotic touch. And the plump housekeeper, immaculate in her white tie-around apron, moved competently in the background from whence came the fragrance of fresh coffee. Doctor Baxter rubbed his hands in delight. "So this is Alaska! Well I—" He broke off to stare at the far end of the spacious room which, at Greer's touch on a button, had suddenly become brilliantly lighted. He, as well as the other guests, were held by the great fireplace of white quartz—"jewelry rock"—presenting its lace-work traceries of gleaming gold.

The guests were delighted with everything, and the spirit of camaraderie was considerably heightened after a couple of rounds of Mamma's Downfalls which Perry, quite in his element, mixed and served as a prelude to lunch.

Mrs. Sturm had some moments of distress when she found that Tonglaw had unaccountably disappeared, leaving her to manage lunch alone. But Lynn came to her rescue, and finally took over completely, leaving the housekeeper free to go upstairs and prepare a room for the unexpected Stella Chandler.

That young woman had been completely restored to good humor, even gayety, by Greer's attentions and Perry's cocktails. With lunch, she took another Downfall in preference to coffee, and insisted on going to the dining room with Perry to help him mix it. When she returned, glass in hand, she was a trifle unsteady on her high heels. Her cheeks were flushed, and the moist black luster of her eyes more pronounced.

• • •

When at last the sportsmen were ready to go up to their rooms, Greer attempted to lead the way with Mrs. Chandler. But she waved him aside. "Go on ahead, Mr. Greer!" she cried gaily. "I've got a good story just for Doc's ear."

She told it to him as she mounted the stairs beside him, her arm thru his, her protuberant red lips against his ear, murmuring just loud enough so that the others could not fail to catch the biological drift of her humor.

She looked beautiful and opulent in the way a full blown jacqueminot rose does just before the petals begin to fall.

At last Lynn and Perry were alone in the living room.

"Holy Pete, darling, I thought that bunch would never go up to bed!" Perry drew her down to the sofa before the dying fire. "Um-m-m. . . ." He buried his face in her short, silky curls. "Am I glad to get back to my little Goldilocks. I—why, what's the matter darling?" He drew back to look at her, his eyebrows upquirked in the center. "Have I done something? Aren't you glad I got home early?"

"Don't be silly, Perry." She could not help laughing at his little-boy manner. "Of course I'm glad you're home. Did you bring dad's picture back with you?"

"Yep. Also the copy for the boss. They're in my suitcase down on the Prospector. I'll give them to you in the morning, lovely. Now, let's—O, hell!" he broke off, with a glance up at the gallery. "The boss is coming downstairs already. Looks black as midnight, too."

Greer strode across the living room. "Perry! Why in the name of God did you come rushing back to Illahee tonight? I told you not to return until day after tomorrow."

Perry came to his feet, his long-lashed hazel eyes widening in hurt surprise. "Why, I thought I was doing something you'd like, Boss. The steamer got in early with the party, and the weather report said——"

"Said storm. Coming with the high tide of the month. And so you took a chance getting caught in it and maybe wrecking the Prospector."

"No, Boss. I knew I could hit the tide about right in the Bottleneck, and I thought you'd want the guests at Illahee, if possible, rather than parked in a Juneau hotel for maybe three days waiting for the storm to blow out. Besides, that Chandler woman—." He stopped.

"Well, go on! Go on!"

Perry shook his head. "I never saw any one so hell-bent on getting some place. She demanded that I start out right away. She——"

"Listen, Perry. You too, Lynn." Greer's vexed glance flicked upward to Mrs. Chandler's door opening off the gallery. He lowered his voice. "That damned woman—I didn't know she was coming. At least, not so soon," he amended, hastily. "She—her good will is very important to my business. Especially at this time when I'm hoping Baxter and his friends will invest. But she's—difficult. Difficult as the devil. Used to money, power. Something of a man eater, too, and jealous as a cat of a younger woman—that's why she kicked MacFarlane when she saw you, Lynn. She's thrown a monkey wrench into my plans for entertaining the Baxter party. I need help." His sudden wry smile took Lynn and Perry all the way into his confidence. "Are you with me, youngsters?"

"You just try us, Boss!" Perry spoke for both. "What do you want us to do?"

"Be as nice to her as you can—especially you, Perry—until I can get rid of her."

Greer stopped speaking to face the sound of opening doors. Al and Bill, windblown and hatless, were coming inside.

"We caught up with our boat, boss, drifting in at the mouth of the Gorge," Al hurriedly announced. "But we ran into something else we thought we should report."

"Pipe down, Al. Guests asleep upstairs. What is it?"

Al continued in a stage whisper: "When we shut off our motor to make fast to the Veteran, we heard a muffled exhaust just inside the Gorge. It was dark and we couldn't see any lights. But we eased our way along until we came up behind the boat—a salmon troller, by the smell of her. And the first thing we knew we'd run smack into her tow."

"What kind of tow?"

"It looked like a very long punt, and when I fended off I felt lengths of pipe in it."

"Ummm." Greer's gaze grew abstracted. A stillness came upon him.

Al went on: "I yelled, 'What are you guys doing up here this time of night?' Some bird aboard bellowed: 'Can't hear you, buddy. Come up along side.' Well, maybe it was the wind and dark, but I said to Bill: 'This layout smells — and I don't mean fish. Let's get the hell out of here.' And we did."

• • •

Greer nodded. "So Faber's trying to pull a fast one on me. Taking advantage of this full moon tide to get his drill stem up over my land at the head of the Gorge—"

"But it wasn't Faber, boss. The guy in the gasboat, I mean. As we swung about to come home I was close enough to turn my flash on him. He was that red headed flyer, Higgins, who owns the Thunderbird. I think his mechanic was with him."

"No matter. The drill-stem is Faber's—for his diamond drill. My job tonight is to see that he doesn't get it on the ground. We—"

"A gun job?" hopefully blurted Bill, sotto voce.

"Certainly not! I can't afford to bring the law down on us. And I've got to be especially careful while these important guests are here. We four can do the job, easily." Greer spoke rapidly in an undertone to Perry and the two brothers, "I'll detail the plan when we get aboard."

Al and Perry had nearly reached the door when Bill, detouring a floor lamp, stubbed his toe on a rug and plunged headlong onto the keyboard of the piano. The discordant crash was still reverberating in the quiet room when a door upstairs off the gallery burst open. Stella Chandler rushed out to lean wide-eyed over the balustrade.

"O, what has happened?" she cried.

Her mahogany-red hair hung in careful disorder on each side of her face. Her heavy lips were moist with lipstick. Her only garment was a black lace nightgown which made doubly alluring every line of her beautiful white figure.

"Boy! What equipment!" Perry's bright, uplifted stare was bold, appreciative, and very masculine.

Al and Bill, fallen shoulder to shoulder, gazed up in slack-mouthed admiration. And Greer, looking stern and faintly bored, sauntered to a spot where he could look straight up at the young woman.

"Don't be alarmed, Mrs. Chandler. The boys are just going out to set the crab nets," he lied smoothly. "I recalled your fondness for Crab Louis." His sudden smile implied a shared memory. "Good night, now Mrs. Chandler. Pleasant dreams. We'll see you in the morning."

When at last Mrs. Chandler retreated, waving a gay goodnight to all, Greer's eyes sought Lynn across the room. She hurried over and walked with him to the door, where Perry waited.

"I want this night's disturbance at the Gorge kept from our guests, Lynn," he said in a low voice. "If they suspected there was any sort of trouble between me and the owner of the property above me, it might upset my financial plans."

"I understand." Lynn slipped a hand thru Perry's arm. "I'm going down to the float with you," she added.

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Clonard spends her vacation with one of her Aunt Julie's friends and meets Perry Holloway, who is heading for Alaska. Perry asks her to marry him. They become engaged and will marry at Christmas time. Perry wires he has a job as foreman in a mine and asks her to come immediately to Alaska and marry him there. Lynn has just enough money for a one-way passage. Court Faber, young mining engineer, rescues Lynn and her dog from an accident on the boat. Perry is late meeting her, arriving hopelessly drunk. Lynn tells Perry she will not marry him. Jefferson Greer is approached by Court and refuses to grant him a right of way to Faber's claim. Greer tricks Lynn into asking for a job as secretary at his mine, the Golden Totem. En route to the mine Lynn learns that Greer is Perry's boss. Out canoeing, Lynn sees Faber and Tonglaw, Greer's houseman, studying over papers. Perry asks for another chance. Out walking, Lynn meets Flan O'Hara and Court, who is impressed when he learns she is not married. Later Greer tells Lynn he loaned money to Faber's father and in his absence acquired the Golden Totem when the mortgage was foreclosed. Court's father was drowned and Court is still bitter. Perry borrows Lynn's first earnings to cover a bet. Greer sends Perry to Juneau to meet some prospective investors. While Perry is gone Greer tells Lynn she is his ideal woman.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

JUST in time to tell you about the wonders which are wrought by your Red Cross dollars comes "At His Side," by George Korson. . . . It is full of human interest stories, all of them tingling with interest and as full of humanity as a can of caviar is of roe. . . . For instance, there's the helpless rage of Red Cross Field Director Irving Williams when waves broke over the decks of the American Red Cross hospital ship Mactan and sent cots and wounded men crashing together. . . . Three days before the Japs entered Manila [January, 1942] he had filled the only seaworthy ship available with the most severely wounded. . . . It's an epic saga of the 27 day voyage of that grunting and groaning little vessel, its tired engines straining at nine knots, about eight miles an hour to us landlubbers, plodding for 27 days to Sydney, Australia. . . . The valiant Chicagoan, Maj. Fellmeth, was head nurse on that heroic voyage.

The whole war moves thru the pages, dramatically, with the Red Cross as the eyes and ears of the world. . . . George Korson, a member of the American National Red Cross staff, took six months' leave without pay to write "At His Side."

World War Language.

"The Language of World War II.," compiled by A. Marjorie Taylor of the Rochester [N. Y.] Public library, is a most enlightening volume. . . . It tells you what a WAG is—but, of course, you knew it is a member of the K-9 corps [woofs, my dear]—that a VIPER is a very important person [in World War language only!]—a PIPER a pretty important person. . . . But don't go making up your own shorts for persons, like hiper or ryeper for a drinking person. . . . A list of more than 300 song titles of the war nestle in the pages of this interesting book, and the origins of its famous phrases. . . . You may be surprised to find that Winston Churchill did not originate the phrase, "too little and too late." . . . It was first used by Allan Nevins in a sentence written for Current History in May, 1935, which ended: "Nazi Germany had become a menace to all mankind."

Army Books for Rural Areas.

What is to become of the books in army camp libraries after the war has bothered many of my readers. . . . The American Library association submitted a plan to the surplus property administration and congress to salvage them for rural use. . . . There are 35 millions of rural and small town Americans who now have no local public libraries or library facilities. . . . In Illinois approximately 2 million persons—one-fourth of the entire population—are without library service of any kind. . . . Illinois is making a limited area test of the most effective means of loaning books to the geographically lonely.

I got a chuckle out of the recent announcement of a French translation of Fannie Farmer's "The Boston Cooking-School Cook Book." It's destined, however, for the American continent and not for France, the home of the subtlest arts of cuisine. . . . It will be distributed in Canada.

And, speaking of cooking, I have just come upon an account in the Congressional Record of a speech made by the Hon. Bertrand W. Gearhart of California extolling the culinary prowess of George Mardikian, whose book, "Dinner at Omar Khayyam's," was a recent success. . . . The gentleman from California apparently read into the ears of his fellow public servants recipes for pilaff, shish kebab, dolmas, turlu gujev, and assorted mysteries, and instructions about taking life on the lamb. . . . Rep. Gearhart's "reading from Omar" and culinary oratory must have given a war time congress indigestion.

"Meet the New Champ."

From "499 Scottish Stories for the Price of 500," by B. C. Forbes, head of the publishing firm of that name, I pass on this tale which Mr. Forbes, who is a Scottish terrible tale collector, says is new to him. . . . It is about a Scot who had a handsome dinner at the Omar Khayyam's of Aberdeen. . . . Replete, he bestowed a gratuity upon the waitress who had served him so efficiently and lavishly. . . . It was a penny. . . . The waitress glowered reproachfully. . . . "What's the matter?" he asked. . . . "Why, sir, even the champion miser of Aberdeen, when he eats here, tips us tuppence." . . . Thumping his chest, the proud Scot cried dramatically: "Gaze on the new champion."

THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAY-OFF.
"THE OUTSIDERS," by A. E. Martin. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]	Petty blackmail sprouted into drab, puzzling murder among a group of Australian sideshow artistes and freaks—midget, giant, armless woman, tatooed girl, and sundry. Unobtrusively brilliant manager of fasting champion, Sapolio, did smart job tricking villains.	Warmly human, cleverly entertaining drama in a little world the rest of us see only on shabby platforms. Full time, sympathetic job of characterization in plot that covers full range of emotions. Sparkles with highlights.
"THE INNOCENT FLOWER," by Charlotte Armstrong. [Coward-McCann, $2.]	When the woman guest in the Moriarity home died of poison, MacDougal Duff had to do some careful appraising of the doings of the six Moriarity kids in order to segregate helps and hindrances. But he managed to get the answer to a neighborhood enigma.	Merrily presented murder tale that sustains suspense interest and unravels a pathetically inspired crime, along with offering an enjoyable brand of amusement.
"THE INDIGO NECKLACE," by Frances Crane. [Random House, $2.]	Murder puzzle tossed squarely at Lt. Pat Abbott and his wife, Jean, when they become paying guests in old New Orleans home that seethes with mysterious prowlings, conflicting love interests, family skeletons, and unconventional deaths.	Interest captured by adequate assortment of characters involved in trouble brewing relationships. Fanciful trimmings amplify eerie atmosphere. Smoothly written and diverting.
"FEAR CAME FIRST," by Vera Kelsey. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Greed, rivalry and hatred create heavy atmosphere in Seattle mansion that bulges with victims of rooming house shortage. Murder that sprouts from entanglements remains puzzle until secrets of deeply rooted bitterness are bared.	Told in a day to day account that is sometimes tedious because of detail. Narrative recites action with melodramatic overtone, muting otherwise exciting incidents in fairly good puzzle.

Haycox Pens a New Western Adventure

"CANYON PASSAGE," by Ernest Haycox. [Little, Brown, $2.]

Ernest Haycox has added another exciting novel to his long list of western adventure tales. "Canyon Passage" is a colorful romance of the Pacific northwest in the days of the gold rush when mule trains carried freight into the boom mining towns of the Oregon-California region. Gun play, fist fights, romances, and Indian attacks keep the plot moving at high speed.

Orchestra to Play Lenten Season Music This Week

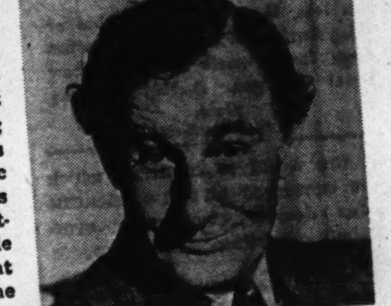
Fred Stone's Autobiography as Lively and Likeable as Fred

THEATER memories are inextricably tangled with emotions, and not many people old enough to have been playgoing for 20 seasons can see Fred Stone or read his entertaining new autobiography, "Rolling Stone" [Whittlesley House, $3] without remembering two things. The night in "Stepping Stones" when he introduced his daughter, Dorothy, who was his spittin' image as a dancer but fortunately had a face like her mother's, and the night in "Ripples" when he came out on crutches with daughters Dorothy and Paula, having survived a disastrous airplane crash better than his friend, Will Rogers. It was Rogers who jumped into Stone's part in "Three Cheers," saving the show when he got Stone's typical telegram, "I'm in a production of my own called 'Plaster of Paris.' In fact, I'm the only one in the cast."

Reading over that paragraph, I see a grave error. It says Stone "came out on crutches." Stone never just came out in his dancing life. In his own words, "When I made my entrance, I was supposed to be kicked out of a barn by a mule. I swung out from a horizontal bar, turned a back somersault, landed on my feet in a tulip bed, and came up smelling a tulip." That, you understand, was the invalid phase of the acrobatic clown restored to cheering audiences who had loved him as Dave Montgomery's partner, and who made him a national idol from the night he played the Scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz." That was right here at the Grand Opera house the night of June 16, 1902. Montgomery played the Tin Woodman, and Stone's brother, Eddie, his first partner, played Imogen the Cow.



Fred Stone.

Having insatiable curiosity about things theatrical, I'll never quite get over not being around for that performance, partly because photographs of Stone as the Scarecrow look like Petrouchka from Kansas. But "Rolling Stone" is a lively substitute for things missed, and either it had no ghost, or a good one. No matter who wrote it, it sounds like Fred Stone, and when you spot an inaccuracy like omitting Lloyd Lewis as co-author with Sinclair Lewis of "Jayhawker," you know it's an oversight. The book has the ring of honesty, right to the tag line, "The world has been good to me. I have been a happy man."

Spangles Sesame to Wonderland.

Except for Grandmother Stone, Fred would have been Val and his brother Eddie, Mont. Their father, the original rolling Stone, named them for their California birthplaces, but grandmother snorted, and they were Fred and Ed from then on. Except for Mother Stone, Fred might have ended his days as a clown in pantomime. He was born tongue-tied and she had saved the 50 cents that was the doctor's fee for diagnosis and cure. But both boys might have grown up to be itinerant barbers, like papa, except that they saw a traveling acrobat do trapeze tricks, shedding some spangles in the process. Fred picked up the sparklers and his mother sewed them on a concoction of velvet trunks, red undershirt, and long, red stockings. He had a costume, the open sesame to wonderland.

And wonderland it has remained, thruout his life. The two little boys began to work in earnest at tumbling and contortionist tricks, and apparently it never occurred to Fred to be discouraged, tho he was often dismayed. His first job was walking a high wire dressed in a ballet skirt and corkscrew curls, squirming under the billing, "Mlle. Army d'Artago, the Human Doll," a barb dug deeper by the fact that the troupe couldn't cope with French and so in all innocence called him Millie. This circus was no Ringling's and it gave about 15 shows a day, but even that was better than the crooked one the boys struck next, where they got no salary, and slept on dirty straw in dirtier clothes until papa's detective caught up with their sawdust trail.

Double "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

When the circuses closed for the summer, they trouped with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and both boys played Topsy. At the same time. This was a double "Uncle Tom" with two of everything except Eva and Uncle Tom, and I certainly wish I had seen that one, But later the brothers split, and Fred teamed with Dave Montgomery in blackface. He never had another partner until the night Dorothy danced with him on the stage of "Stepping Stones." Montgomery and Stone played London, bucked the vaudeville trust, got a job with Weber and Fields, struck vaudeville heaven at Tony Pastor's, and struck gold, or should I say oil?, in "The Wizard of Oz."

But that is only the briefest skeleton of the story of a man with a talent for the stage that was rooted in a deeper talent for living and making friends. When he worked up a role, nothing was too much trouble, not even the tricks of fancy skating for his role of "Charlotte Russe" in "Jack O'Lantern," which he learned right here in Chicago at the College Inn. He did everything else the same way—riding and roping with Will Rogers, shooting with Annie Oakley and his brother-in-law, Rex Beach, deep sea fishing with a fantastically inept crew, sparring with Jim Corbett, flying the plane that put a premature period to his days of dancing. But not, of course, to his days of acting. Even now, Mr. Stone is at New York's City Center, where with Dorothy and her husband, Charles Collins, he is reviving "You Can't Take It With You." He played Grandpa here in the revival, you remember, and he wasn't too good in Kaufman and Hart. But he was terrific in a curtain speech that was pure Fred Stone.

Will Rogers' Grand Squelch.

Which reminds me of another stage speech, not his own, but Will Rogers', which Stone quotes with glee, which I share. I hope the next time some yapping female talks out of turn, it will serve an actor of World War II. as it served Mr. Rogers in World War I. It seems that during one of his performances a large, middle aged woman with one of those hatchet faces called out from the audience, "Why aren't you in the army?" Mr. Rogers pretended he hadn't understood, and she fell for the bait hook, line, and sinker, reiterating the question, "Why aren't you in the army?"

"For the same reason, ma'am," replied Mr. Rogers blandly, "that you aren't in the 'Follies'—physical disabilities."

3 Chorales to Be Offered by U. of C. Choir

By Albert Goldberg.

Music suitable to the lenten season will be conducted by Hans Lange at the Thursday-Friday concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week, with the second concert falling on Good Friday.

The first half of the program will be devoted to works of Johann Sebastian Bach. One of the late Frederick Stock's numerous transcriptions of works of this master, the chorale prelude, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," will be revived as an opening number. Mr. Lange then programs the Sinfonia to the church cantata, "Ich steh' mit einem Fuss in Grabe," a work which has appeared only once before on these programs, when it was conducted by Mr. Lange in the 46th season. The University of Chicago choir, trained by its new director, Gerhard Schroth, will sing three of the chorales from the "St. Matthew Passion": "O Man Bewail Thy Grievous Sin," "When Life Begins to Fail Me," and "Here Yet Awhile, Lord, Thou Art Sleeping." Mr. Schroth recently succeeded Mack Evans as director of the university choir. He previously had been director of music at radio station KFUO in St. Louis.

Artur Rubinstein appears again as piano soloist at the Tuesday concert under Mr. Lange's direction, playing Chopin's F minor concerto. The week's "Pop" concert again will be on Saturday afternoon at 2, with Désiré Defauw conducting, and John Weicher and Dudley Powers, concertmaster and first cellist of the orchestra, playing Brahms' concerto for violin and cello. The first hour of the program will be broadcast on NBC's "Orchestras of the Nation" series.

Dr. Van Pelt to Head Science Education Program

Leaves Museum for Battelle Institute Post

By The Rev. John Evans.

Dr. J. R. Van Pelt.

Leaders in science education thruout the country see notable meaning in the call of Dr. John R. Van Pelt from the Chicago museum of science and industry to head up a program of research education under auspices of Battelle Memorial institute, Columbus, O. Dr. Van Pelt has been associated with the former Rosenwald museum as technical director since 1928.

This significance is best seen from three angles. First, in the exhaustion an. threatened bankruptcy of America's supply of basic scientific knowledge; second, in the squandering of talents of potential scientific men of the future, which might dismally forecast the surrender of the country's scientific leadership thruout the world to countries which have conserved future scientific brains despite even more overwhelming fighting personnel needs than America.

• • •

The third point emphasized in the selection of Dr. Van Pelt by a notable foundation to tackle the problem of such importance and magnitude is his work at the Chicago museum for the past decade and a half, where the panorama of technological developments have been in line with the coördination requirements of America's war-born science problem.

In an interview, Dr. Van Pelt stressed two points. The first dealt with what might roughly be called the double nature of science—basic or "pure" and applied. The second concerned the seven year education program necessary to produce scholars capable of independent basic research. Hence, he said, with the seven year minimum of training, and the three to four years already consumed in war which has depleted science halls, there already is the dangerous hiatus of a decade which, in terms of new scientists, puts America just that far behind England, Russia, France and even Germany where foresight has kept science halls fully peopled with potential basic scientists.

The distinction made by Dr. Van Pelt between basic and applied science—the latter popularly known as technology—pointed to the view that without the reservoir of basic science knowledge, the pumps of applied science eventually must dry up. For example, basic scientists discovered helium in the sun before it was discovered on earth. They knew what its properties were before any was ever found. Knowing this, the applied scientist had relatively little to do in applying helium to balloons and airships.

•

Training the minds and imaginations of men who could discover helium in the sun, together with full freedom to follow their own researches wherever they might lead, and at the same time not be tied down to technological requirements, is a vastly different job from training the hands of technicians to the job of putting it into balloons after all of its properties are known. Dr. Van Pelt's responsibility will be that of coördinating the work of basic scientists, and of finding men in and out of the services who are qualified for fellowship aid from Battelle institute.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

FOR several weeks "Journey Underground," Flight Officer David G. Prosser's story of his escape from German occupied France, has been running serially in THE TRIBUNE. . . . Now the book rights to it have been sold to E. P. Dutton & Co. for early publication. . . . And this may be an appropriate time to call attention to the fact that in the last three years this newspaper has originated quite a few nonfiction stories which have been put into book form and thereupon have enjoyed wide sales. . . . Among these are "Queen of the Flat-Tops" and "The Grim Reapers," by Stanley Johnston; "I Thought I Heard the Angels Sing," by Lt. James C. Whittaker; "The Dyess Story," by Col. William E. Dyess and Charles Leavelle; "Joe Foss: Flying Marine," by Maj. Joseph J. Foss and Walter Simmons; "God on a Battle Wagon," by Capt. James V. Claypool and Carl Wiegman, and "I Beheld His Glory!" by the Rev. John C. Evans. . . . In addition, many of the fiction serials run in this section have been grabbed up by the book publishers and likewise have attracted a large readership.

Not so long ago Adria Locke Langley [whose visit to Chicago was discussed in this column a few weeks ago] was hammering rivets in a war plant by day and hammering a typewriter in her home by night. . . . Now "A Lion Is in the Streets," the novel that came from her typewriter, has been sold to the Cagney Productions for $250,000—said to be the highest price ever paid for the movie rights to a book. . . . If reports coming out of New York are to be believed, Mrs. Langley's story almost won the M. G. M. first annual novel award. . . . Had it done so, she would have received somewhere between $125,000 and $175,000, depending on sales. . . . Her novel—the first she ever wrote—will be published by Whittlesey House in May, and Chicago book dealers say it promises to be a best seller. . . . Naturally, Whittlesey has signed her up to do another.

• • •

Rosemary York, Harry Platt, and Bill Finneran of Bobbs-Merrill believe they have a prospective best seller in "Bright Tomorrow," by Lt. Lloyd Wendt of Chicago. . . . To be issued a month hence, it deals with the "lost generation" caught between two wars. . . . The locale is a town in Lt. Wendt's native South Dakota. . . . Another Bobbs-Merrill spring publication [April 18] that should send the critics searching for new adjectives is Jay Monaghan's "Diplomat in Carpet Slippers." . . . Lloyd Lewis, author of "Myths After Lincoln," says of this one: "It tells for the first time the story of Lincoln's foreign policy in terms of the actors involved, wily diplomats and golden-tongued preachers, emperors and crackpot reformers, millionaires and party bosses, privateers and premiers, corporation presidents and rabble rousers, power politicians and spies, with the hard-pressed lawyer from backwoods Illinois using all of them, all his artistry, all his subtlety and eloquence, in his endless battle to keep the Ship of State from crashing on international as well as domestic rocks."

• • •

Some time ago the John Day company announced John Sedges' "Pilgrim's Pride" for publication this spring. . . . The Literary Guild has made the novel its selection for June, and meanwhile has named Robert Molloy's "Pride's Way" [Macmillan] as another choice. . . . Too many "Prides." . . . So the Sedges opus has been retitled "The Townsman." . . . Unless I miss my guess it will go over big in the middle west and, with proper publicizing, may become a nationwide leading seller. . . . For my money, it has more down-to-earth American midlands pioneer atmosphere—with sod houses, oil lamps, rag rugs, primitive plumbing, and what-not—than anything else since Rose Wilder Lane's classic, "Let the Hurricane Roar," rolled off the presses 12 years ago.

From the jacket design of "Copernicus and His World," by Hermann Kesten, was issued last week by Roy Publishers.

High Artistry in Stories Written by Mrs. Winslow

"A WINTER IN GENEVA," by Anne Goodwin Winslow. [Knopf, $2.50.]

One of the rare joys allotted to book reviewers is the occasional privilege of using, unashamedly, the adjective "distinguished." Mrs. Winslow has given us that privilege. Her beautiful prose, her mastery of understatement, her ability to make the reader's mind work for her as she delineates character, is artistry of the most distinguished order.

The title piece in this collection of eight story sketches is a 30,000 word novella that is a gem of literary economy. Under the limpid surface of an American woman's prewar adventure in Europe lie depths and meanings that are at once dark with the mysteries of the deep and clear as the waters of a mountain pool. When that surface is swept by a storm of the heroine's own unwitting design the story develops an impact all too seldom found in full length novels. The other, shorter sketches maintain this high quality.

WILL DAVIDSON.

Some California Mexicans Seen thru Humorist's Eyes

"SLEEP IN THE SUN," by Alan Moody. Illustrated by Edwin Earle. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht.

There is always something sad about a promising first novel, published posthumously. This time all the sadness is in the circumstances, none in the book. "Sleep in the Sun" is less a novel than a series of sketches about the more shiftless and poverty stricken Mexicans of southern California. Among recent books, it suggests "Cannery Row" and "We Ride a White Donkey." But Moody is less sentimental than Steinbeck and more substantial than Panetta. Essentially a humorist, he does not sigh over the degradations he chronicles, but he has less "nostalgia" than his blurb writer for "something warm and good."

It was Jose Mercado's opinion that Mama Chula was not a slut. That's as may be. She does, now and then, haul her husband out of bed to clean the house, but she never washes her hands and face on these occasions, for the hard work would only soil them again; and when she notices that Jose needs a bath she merely threatens to heat a bucket of water "one day next week."

• • •

The worst problem is their bed, for it is "inhabited," and it stays inhabited until the witch woman, Lupe Mendoza, brings a remedy which nearly kills them along with the bugs. Mama Chula's usual carouse is "ice cream with chocolate ointment on the top," but there are times when she shares her husband's stronger indulgences.

The Mercados have a way of managing the luxuries, but they run short on necessities. They have a "sedan" which is rapidly "decomposing," and they finally wangle a "radio speaking machine," which turns out to be useless because the canyon has no "electricity juice from the wires of the Edison company, incorporated." They see their first movie when an unwelcome nephew pays them a visit with his rug cutting "friendly girl" from Fresno.

But they never do pay for the hatching eggs they bought on credit. "Always there was something essential to buy—either a jug of wine, tobacco for Jose, or a garden tool." And when the state of California puts up a school building for their children it burns before it can be used.

• • •

The book strikes a more wistful note when the aged half crazy Madrecita finds a treasure under mystic guidance—the "Little Saint"!—and makes away with it again—"She-Devil-Thing"!—while in the same condition; and when Mama Chula, with the aid of a "miracle" and a skilful bit of play acting, acquires the baby she had long craved. But even in its lightest moments "Sleep in the Sun" is consistently charming.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery.

WORDS of fearful anxiety from a wife on learning that her husband, whose past has been blameless, now [circa 1780] harbors a temptation to write a book:

> I would not have thee, James, pass for what the world calleth a writer; no, not for a peck of gold, as the saying is. Thy father, before thee, was a plain-dealing honest man; punctual in all things. He was one of yea and nay, of few words; all he minded was his farm and work. I wonder from whence thee hast got this love of the pen? Had he spent his time in sending epistles to and fro, he never would have left thee this goodly plantation free from debt. . . . These Englishmen are strange people. . . . I have often heard my grandfather tell how they live by writing. By writing, they send this cargo unto us, that to the West, and the other to the East Indies. But James, thee knowest that is it not by writing that we shall pay the blacksmith, the minister, the weaver, the tailor, and the English shop. . . . How wouldst thee bear to be called, at our country meetings, the man of the pen? . . . Travelers would point our house, saying, Here liveth the scribbling farmer. Better hear them, as usual, observe, Here liveth the warm substantial family that never begrudgeth a meal of victuals or a mess of oats to any one that steps in. Look how fat and well clad their Negroes are.

• • •

The title of the ancient tome in which this moving plea may be read is [in full] as follows: "Letters from an American Farmer, Describing Certain Provincial Situations, Manners and Customs, Not Generally Known; and Conveying Some Idea of the Late and Present Interior Circumstances of the British Colonies in North America; Written, for the Information of a Friend in England, by J. Hector St. John, a Farmer in Pennsylvania."

Well, what I am getting at is that title pages should be taken cum grano salis. Nobody's distressful worried wife composed that speech. Neither did J. Hector St. John, "a farmer in Pennsylvania." It was composed by a Frenchman named Crèvecoeur [which means heartbreak], and he was already a professional writer when he pretended to be in danger of becoming one. The book is a classic and I am ashamed to remember how tardy I was in finding it out. If you can get it, and I am sure you can, please do.

• • •

Clement Wood, the poet and dictionary maker, recently taken to task in this column for rhyming hors d'oeuvre with nerve and curve, replies in prose and rhyme.

"My knowledge of French," he says, "allows me to speak it with the greatest facility, to people who know no French at all; but when they do know French, I switch to Alabama."

Here is his poem, which he titles:

LESSON IN AMERICAN.

I read with growing perturbation
Your blitz of the pronunciation
My Rhyming Dictionaries serve
Free gratis for the phrase hors d'oeuvre;
While you, with verse, aplomb and fervor
Would rhyme the dinged thing as hors derver.

Beside some Scandinavian fjord
They'd speak of it as smorgasbord;
Italian people, when they fast, owe
Its ending to an antipasto;
An English speaking hostess tries her
Skill with some simple appetizer.

It is quite different in France.
There your hors d'oeuvre has a chance.
But here at home a life preserver
Would sock you if you tried hors d'erver.
With voeuvre and noeuvre I soeuvre this coeuvre.
D. Avery, do try this hors derve!

• • •

Well, all the pronunciations offered by Mr. Wood are wrong. And so, discouraged, I suggested that Moustique [whose name means mosquito] should answer him and close the incident, which she did as follows:

O, Clement Wood, the likelihood
That you will ever get it right
Still seems to be [at least to me]
At best intolerably slight.

MOUSTIQUE.

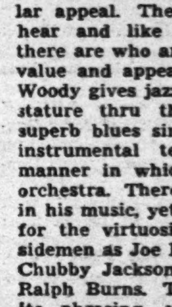
Woody Herman Purveying Pure Jazz at College Inn

Willie Shore's Comic Antics Packing Chez

By Will Davidson.

Ask for an opinion of jazz from a group of 20 persons and anywhere from 15 to 20 of the answers will be founded upon almost complete ignorance of what jazz is.

Incidentally, one of the most lucid discussions of jazz it has ever been my privilege to hear was given a week ago at the Arts club by Dr. S. I. Hayakawa of the Illinois Institute of Technology as part of the Poetry magazine modern arts series. He had the help of no less than Jimmy Yancey, daddy of boogie woogie, Ma Yancey, and the Richard M. Jones trio.



Willie Shore.
[Seymour Photo.]

But what I want to say now is that among those who know jazz and understand it and love it for the real thing it is, Woody Herman stands high. Jazz is an art of the people and will flourish only as the people know it and understand it. The men who create and develop jazz are not always able to give it to the people because their art form is often too far removed from the thought habits and the normal tastes of the people. It is important, therefore, that some one who can create, or at least who knows and understands what is being created, serve as the middleman—the envoy to the people.

• • •

Woody does this spectacularly well. Listen to him at the Hotel Sherman, and you'll get my point. Among the commercial band leaders he is in that select top group that can be credited with the creation and fostering of real jazz as well as with maintaining wide popular appeal. The more people who hear and like Woody, the more there are who are learning the real value and appeal of jazz. Further, Woody gives jazz a rare dignity and stature thru the medium of his superb blues singing, his own fine instrumental technique, and the manner in which he conducts his orchestra. There is impeccable unity in his music, yet there is free reign for the virtuosity of such elegant sidemen as Joe Phillips, Bill Harris, Chubby Jackson, Dave Tough, and Ralph Burns. There is subtlety in its phrasing, yet there is great drive as well.

Give Woody something like "One, Two, Three, Four, Jump" or "Caldonia," and the result is elegant. The former is a specialty produced by the Herman hot group, the "Woodchoppers." There's an added feature now in the vibraharp playing of Marjorie Hyams, which is very good, indeed. Frances Wayne, Woody's dark haired vocalist, is perfect for his style.

DYNAMIC

[Bloom Photo.]

The College Inn show, outside of band features, is effectively handled by Mardoni and Louise, that fast, friendly, and especially entertaining pair of showmen.

• • •

Back to Dr. Hayakawa's talk on the history of jazz. I recommend strongly that the institute publish his text in pamphlet form and that some one undertake the distribution of it. Not that the amiable master of semantics revealed anything particularly new in itself. It was the way he traced for an audience of complete novitiates the origins of jazz, the manner in which he pointed out its logical development, the clear picture he gave of the sources of jazz inspiration. Space doesn't permit a full commentary, but suffice it to say that as an amateur jazz authority the good doctor makes a lot of flamboyant self-appointed jazz pontiffs look highly overrated.

• • •

While we're on the subject of jazz, don't forget that Duke Ellington is appearing at the Opera House tonight in a jazz concert that should be a treat. Credit Downbeat with a musical scoop on this.

And while we're on the subject of the Opera House there is the very important item of the Draper-Adler return engagement there Easter Sunday night. Paul and Larry are of the cafe world and it can be proud of two lads who are superb artists in unusual fields. Their blending of classical and modern forms, washed as it is with good humor and a sly cynicism, is wonderful stuff.

• • •

Willie Shore packed them in the Chez Paree for his opening week-end, he shore did—and from reports he's continuing to be the answer to Fritzel and Jacobson's prayer. Good draws these days are curfew and far between.

I'm not going to say much about Willie's opening night show—the only one I've been able to see up to this time—because what he did then isn't important. Willie is a superb entertainer, a magnificent dancer, a wonderful guy. For nearly three years he has been strictly a G. I. entertainer and it was to be expected that the switch to civilian fare would take a few days. Couple that with a tremendous opening night ovation and you can understand why that show wasn't up to Willie's best.

But nobody cared, particularly, unless it was some one who never had seen Willie before. Just to watch him dance is enough. But he gives you much, much more. His "Bouncer" skit remains one of the best.

Donna Dae, beautiful singer of radio and orchestra fame, is a smart addition to the Chez show. She has appearance, voice, savvy, and her arrangements are wisely clear of impedimenta that slow down so many cafe singers. Dorese Midgley, the pert little tapper, is doing her usual good job, altho for some reason she looked scared to death opening night. Her diamond taps are excellent.

Olive Bernard has arranged one of her best groups of numbers for the Chez Adorables this time. The Bloomer Girl routine is clever and fresh, and altho the "Frangee Pahnee" number, a Polynesian playlet, expresses Miss Bernard's irresistible itch for the symbolic, it is very effective cafe dancing. Martha Henry is featured, and scores by letting the simple and effective movements of her body express the meaning of the dance, avoiding the facial grimaces that seem so important to some less wise performers.

Gay Claridge, as always, plays a good accompaniment, and serves as a friendly interlocutor. Lucia Garcia and the Chez rhumba band carry on during intermissions.

• • •

Boswelling the Bistros:

Mark down Montoya's dancing in the Bismarck's Tavern room as a must on your list. More about it later. . . . That new dance team at the Hotel La Salle, Zarco and Beryl, is unusually good and beautifully costumed. Dick Gordon, romantic tenor, has just joined the show, which requires a later review. . . . Enrico and Novello and Juggler Lew Hoffman compose the show that follows Talia and Art Nelson in the Bismarck's Walnut room on April 6. . . . Georgie Price opens Good Friday in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone, a switch in the previously announced policy of dropping entertainment after the Dwight Fiske run. . . . Lawrence Welk returns to the Trianon Saturday, costarring on that and the following night with Art Kassel, who departs after the Sunday date.

Drama Notes

"The Voice of the Turtle" plays its 200th performance at the Selwyn tomorrow night, when it begins its 26th week in Chicago. This is a ripe age for a play, but consistent care, including numerous visits by the producer, Alfred de Liagre Jr., and the author, John Van Druten, has kept it as freshly staged as the night it opened. The three actors haven't changed noticeably, either, except for some new clothes. To prove at least a third of this point, observe the brand new picture of K. T. Stevens, widely known as "Beautiful Katie."

Robert Friers, a young travel talker who has Burton Holmes' blessing, will apepar at the Eighth Street theater April 5 and 6 at 8:30 in "Mexican Holiday," a color film travelog concerned with everything from bullfights to the Paricutin volcano, with narrative accent on the humorous side. Mr. Friers, it seems, has been traveling since he was 12 and read an atlas. It took him seven years to finish college because he kept going off on trips. In 1939, he says, he hitch-hiked around the world on $82, and got $5 of it back because his roommate had bet him $5 it couldn't be done. Mr. Holmes, meanwhile, is just about to wind up his 52d and most prosperous season. Last night he repeated last season's Mexican lecture with Ted Phillips' pictures of Paricutin, and he will repeat the lecture on Guatemala tomorrow night at Orchestra hall and Wednesday night at the opera house.

China to Me
A PARTIAL AUTOBIOGRAPHY
by EMILY HAHN
Author of THE SOONG SISTERS

The book about China that only one woman could have written!

EMILY HAHN is a many-sided woman, so it's not surprising that her "partial autobiography" should elicit such varying response from the reviewers. To some, CHINA TO ME is "uninhibited" ... "frank" ... "forthright" ... "gossipy" and "comic." To others it is "vivid" ... "moving" ... "genuine" ... "sincere" and "objective." But they all say it's good reading ... an exciting account of eight crowded years in China, during which the lovely and irrepressible Emily interviewed the Soong sisters for her famous book about them, when she wasn't ducking bombs, Japs, spies, bores and international meddlers.

She made friends with the Chinese, Eurasian drifters, and British colonials, as well as prostitutes, missionaries, newspapermen, and all the flotsam and jetsam of China's pre-Pearl Harbor days. She collected gibbons ... matched wits with Jap gendarmes who thought she was a secret agent ... slapped, and was slapped by one of them ... and through bombings, near-starvation and hourly danger, kept her sense of humor, and thumbed her nose at well-meaning people who attempted to "organize" her life.

How Mass Education Plan Betters Conditions in China

"TELL THE PEOPLE," by Pearl S. Buck. [John Day, $1.50.]

Reviewed by Arno L. Bader.

Pearl Buck.

In this little book Pearl Buck reports her talks with James Yen, founder of the Chinese mass education movement. Mr. Yen tells how the movement grew out of his work with Chinese coolies in France during World War I., how he reduced the complex Chinese written language to a Basic Chinese consisting of only a thousand characters, and how these characters can be taught to an illiterate Chinese in an amazingly short time, thus enabling him to read printed material written in simple language.

Mere literacy, however, is not Mr. Yen's final goal. He wants better economic conditions, better health, and better government for the common people of China. And so the mass education movement in that country undertook, in experimental districts, to improve farming, public health, and local hsien or county government, in all of which ventures it was successful. Finally, having made a start in China, Mr. Yen asks why the same program cannot be put into practice on a world-wide scale.

Mr. Yen is an unusual combination of idealist and practical man of affairs, and his solid accomplishments in China must be acknowledged. It is to be hoped that after the war the Chinese government will avail itself of his ideas and methods.

Hero Rises Above Fear and Doubts

"THE SMALL BACK ROOM," by Nigel Balchin. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil.

If not enough American readers buy this book, Author Balchin can take comfort that it found such favor in England as to be rated, deservedly, a best seller. It grips the reader with all the intensity of a well written mystery or adventure story, yet at the same time strikes a note of the spirit that will echo in every heart burdened by the war.

The hero, Sam Rice, a mechanical technician with an artificial foot, might be any of the brave men whom fate has denied the gage of battle, but who try to do their small part in winning the war. Not many, however, will get the chance to show, as Sam Rice did, that only those who know fear are truly brave.

• • •

Capt. Stuart, a bomb expert of the British government, met his greatest problem in a mysterious time bomb which the Germans were dropping on England. Since every one who handled the bomb had been killed by it, Stuart enlisted the aid of Rice, who had expert knowledge of fuse mechanisms. When Stuart finally found two of the bombs unexploded, he was killed trying to defuse one of them.

It was then Sam Rice's duty to try to defuse the other. Tho his flesh crawled with terror at the thought of even approaching the thing, he studied the detailed notes of Capt. Stuart's attempt [dictated over a phone as he worked] and went at it. How Rice proved to every one but himself that he was no coward is a fine bit of drama.

• • •

As a contrast to this display of courage, the story tells of bungling government officials, less intent upon victory than upon building up their personal prestige. How the research unit of which Sam Rice was a part, working in a "small back room," became a political football is irony of the highest order.

The author narrates his story with such simplicity of style, in so direct and straightforward a manner, that one feels that this is not merely a vicarious experience, but a mirror of one's own doubts, fears, and responsibilities.

Two Novels and a Good Rental Book

"THE PEAR TREE," by Elissa Landi. [Ziff-Davis, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

Elissa Landi.

A subtle and a penetrating psychological study, this story traces a personality back to its primary motives and reveals the hidden life that lurks behind a smiling exterior. Because Miss Landi, herself an artist, understands the temperament of genius, she draws an accurate picture of an entrancing woman, America's leading poetess, as a matter of fact. When the story opens she has died from a heart attack, supposedly, but by observing the smallest details of her possessions, her best friend uncovers the secret of her life, and discloses not the carefree person every one had supposed, but a woman with a deep and corroding secret.

Reading this beautifully written story is like following the strings in a treasure hunt. Tenuous, lovely, they lead to but one end.

"THE SILVER ANSWER," by Rhoda Hoff [Dodd, Mead, $2.50.]

Margaret is married to a man she no longer loves, in Paris in the '20s. She meets Paul Magnier, a priest earnestly dedicated to his calling. Tempted to renounce the church, he struggles thru a period of doubt and of anguish before he saves his soul.

There are sincerity and earnestness in the graphic description of a spiritual struggle that ends in victory. Told with great emotional impact, the situation between the woman and the priest becomes important only when it frees them from all selfishness. Then their story acquires stature and great importance.

"ARIZONA STAR," by Faith Baldwin. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]

Steele's New Novel.

A new novel by Wilbur Daniel Steele, entitled "That Girl from Memphis," is on the June list of Doubleday, Doran.

Maine Woman Becomes Hard, Ruthless Person

"YANKEE WOMAN," by Eric Baume. [Dodd, Mead, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst.

Harriet Jupp was a Maine woman by birth, but when she married the cruel and fanatical Capt. Hosea Spilbury she became a seafaring woman, and when she married the British Maj. Stuart she became the proprietress of a San Francisco gambling house. Thruout her stormy life she retained a vitality that may have come from her Yankee mariner ancestors, but she had no trace of New England's moral conscience. She was a hard hearted, tough minded woman who fought her way thru the violence of seafaring life and the equal violence of a frontier city in its lawless years.

• • •

There is no lack of violent, sometimes melodramatic action in her story. It begins with her being flogged on the deck of his brig by her brutal first husband. Three chapters later she has killed her husband and taken over his ship. In the next chapter she is in the hectic gold rush city of San Francisco of 1850, where she sees in the lawless Barbary Coast the fortune waiting for any one shrewd and ruthless enough to grasp it. The story goes on to the San Francisco earthquake when the city of her era tumbled down, as her life had tumbled in its final years. She lived hard, she fought hard, she was finally defeated. But she never gave in.

• • •

Of more interest than its tawdry plot and shallow characterization is the historical and descriptive information this novel contains. There are vivid glimpses of Australia a century ago and detailed pictures of the feverish life of San Francisco in its early years. Behind the story is the growing commerce of the Pacific, along with the changing life of the dramatic city above the Golden Gate.

Little French Boy at the Mardi Gras

"SECRETS AT THE MARDI GRAS," by Joan and Josephine Costantino. [Albert Whitman, $1.25.]

As gay and suspenseful as the fascinating New Orleans carnival itself is this juvenile story of the little French boy, Victor, who just had to peek at the floats the night before the celebration. Even so the parade next day has plenty of thrills for him and his friends, dressed as goblins. Gladys Rourke Blackwood's full page colored illustrations beautifully match the spirit of the subject.

FRANCES DUNLAP HERON.

Philosopher Who Influences Many Thinkers Today

"SOMETHING ABOUT KIERKEGAARD," by David F. Swenson. [Augsburg, $2.50.]

The Soren Kierkegaard died 90 years ago, he has been influencing English speaking philosophers and theologians to a marked degree for hardly more than a decade. The late Prof. Swenson, a native of Sweden, spent his entire career at the University of Minnesota in a continuous effort to make the eminent Dane's introspective ideas well known in this country. He rated Kierkegaard second only to Socrates.

Some of the professor's papers were edited and published in 1941 as "Something About Kierkegaard." Increasing interest in the subject prompted the addition of more Swenson papers this spring in a reissue of the work. Hence the book is not a coördinated treatise but it serves most of the purposes of such a study.

Oddly enough, for a philosopher, Kierkegaard had a lot to say about newspapers and newspaper men. This reviewer, who has written for the press since 1920, was impressed by the Dane's opinions, all of which were of a kind with the following: "If I were a father and had a daughter who was seduced I should not despair over her . . . but if I had a son who became a journalist . . . for five years I would give him up."

Two New Plays Perk Up N. Y. Stage Season

By John Chapman.

NEW YORK [Special]. — In a month the theatrical season will be near enough the end for the Critics' Circle to pick the "best plays" but the season is showing no signs of dying yet. Two recent entrants, "Foolish Notion" and "Dark of the Moon," have added interest to an uncommonly interesting year.

Donald Cook.
[Talbot Photo.]

Tallulah Bankhead.

In some quarters disappointment was felt over "Foolish Notion," for the lineup of names involved was first team. Philip Barry wrote it, Tallulah Bankhead is its star, Henry Hull and Donald Cook are in her support, the Theater Guild made the production, John C. Wilson directed, and Jo Mielziner did the sets.

The result could have been a superlative comedy—but wasn't. "Foolish Notion" is, instead, an entertaining piece of theatricalism. I did not share in the disappointment others felt but instead accepted the play at face value and was content to have a very good time.

The fancy acting begins with Barry himself, who has written a shenanigan rather than a play. In moods ranging from purplish to punnish, from Shaw to Milne, he has written about a couple of ham actors and a ham author. Cook and Miss Bankhead are a sort of unmarried Lunt and Fontanne, with a touch of Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence added. They want to get married, and are, in fact, about to do so. Miss Bankhead has been the wife of a writer, Henry Hull, and they have an adopted daughter, 14, but Henry has been away at war for five years, has been reported missing in action, and has been declared legally dead by a court friendly to Miss Bankhead.

And then Henry turns up. Not right off the bat, tho. He gives everybody a warning of his arrival, and his wife, his daughter, the ham actor, his father-in-law, and sundry other characters, have a couple of hours in which to imagine how they're going to take it. It is these imaginings which make the play. Cook fancies that his rival will reappear as the same old gentle drunk he always was, and that he will oust Cook by arousing the motherly instinct in Miss Bankhead.

The little girl [nicely played by Joan Shepard] imagines that her beloved father will return and get himself murdered by the wicked lovers. The father-in-law thinks Hull will come back as a heroic and very Scottish Scot. And Miss Bankhead herself believes that Henry will return in a very pretty silver urn which she can use as a decoration for the living room an urn filled with the ashes of a hero who, by dying, has bound her to him.

Then, of course, he finally does appear. Barry's solution of the comedy, getting everybody happily paired off, is not particularly inspired or very clearly presented, but in the meantime enough entertainment has taken place to make "Foolish Notion" a pleasant attraction.

Miss Bankhead is, as always, one of the most vivid personalities of the stage and one of its ablest comediennes. Mr. Cook is quite believable as an actor playing an actor, and Mr. Hull has a fine time acting four or five different roles. Aubrey Mather has some humorous scenes as a stage-struck old professor, and among minor players who register nicely is Maria Manton, daughter of Marlene Dietrich.

• • •

It may be that the Shuberts, commercial showmen, want to make an obeisance to "art." They have produced "Dark of the Moon," a folk play about a legend of the great Smoky mountains which won a Maxwell Anderson prize for poetic drama a couple of years ago and which was produced experimentally at Cambridge, Mass., last summer. The Shuberts have given the drama the very best they can afford, including some imaginative, impressive scenery by George Jenkins.

"Dark of the Moon" is a stage visualization of a hill billy ballad, "Barbara Allen," which concerns a witchboy who falls in love with a human girl and wishes to become human, too. The boy persuades a conjur woman to do this little trick for him, to make him human, and she lays down only one condition. If Barbara remains faithful to him for one year, the boy can become a human being for good and all; if she betrays him he must become a witch again, riding the skies with an eagle as companion, and Barbara must die.

Barbara does betray him and does die, but her unfaithfulness is forced on her by a community which wants to rid itself of a witch.

• • •

Howard Richardson and William Berney, the authors, have embellished this outline with scenes including country dances, country stores, a church revival meeting, and life in hill billy shacks. They have written truly and effectively, and with not a little poetic imagery.

As the witchboy and his girl, Richard Hart and Carol Stone are splendid. He is eerie and brooding, she is a lusty hill wench. A high spot is a Baptist revival meeting, conducted by Winfield Hoeny, which is a white man's version of the great prayer scene of "Porgy" or the stirring church meeting in "Run Little Chillun." The Shuberts have made an obeisance to art and I respect them for it.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

SURELY the most remarkable author-publisher relationship in the history of books, excepting perhaps the cases of those publishers who married authors, was that which existed between Lewis Carroll, author of the immortal "Alice" books, and the London house of Macmillan. Carroll may have been and was in fact a genius, but he was also an infernal nuisance.

"Books, ingenuities, and trouble poured from him," says Charles Morgan, in "The House of Macmillan"; he was never far absent from the minds of publisher, printer, or binder. "When he wished to go to a theatre, Macmillan's were asked to buy the tickets—on the extreme right, if possible, because he was deaf in the right ear, and at all costs not in the centre of the first rows because, from there, his line of sight was interrupted by waving conductors. When he sent his watches to be mended, his publishers were asked to retrieve them, by what he called 'a trusty and resolute messenger.' And he knew better than any one else how to tie up parcels. He supplied a diagram, which long hung in the post-room at Bedford-Street, showing how the string on all parcels should be, and how the string on all his parcels must be knotted."

Carroll was—as everybody knows—the Rev. Charles L. Dodgson, a mathematical don at Christ church, Oxford; and it was, of course, his out of town residence that made a London agent imperative. He saw no reason why his publishers should not be happy to act in that capacity, and it should be recorded that they were singularly patient with him. Perhaps they were so glad he didn't actually live in London that his requests seemed modest by comparison with what they might have been if he had been closer at hand. Morgan's chapter about this strange, irascible, interfering, and yet lovable man—what the Freudians will do to him, some day, I blush to think—is one of the most interesting in the book; and the book is a magnificent record of a great publishing house.

"The House of Macmillan" is published by the Macmillan company of New York. Altho it is principally concerned with the London firm, there are glimpses of the American house, and a special foreword to the American edition reveals that a separate history of the New York company is planned. This will be written by an American author and published, it is hoped, in 1946, when the American house will celebrate its own 50th anniversary.

How a Book Became a Rare Item.

One of the good stories of collecting is how the first "Alice" book became a collector's item of extraordinary rarity. Carroll made arrangements for its publication at his own expense, and apparently 2,000 copies were to be printed. He wanted "Alice" to be a table book and thought that red would be most pleasing to childish eyes. The edges were all to be cut smooth, but not gilded. Thruout the process of production he harried the printer, the publisher, and the binder with complaints and advice; and he wanted 50 copies as soon as possible. These were to be given to various young friends, among them, of course, Alice Liddell, for whom the story had been written. For her a special copy was to be bound in white vellum.

The edition was peacefully printed by the end of June, 1865, says Mr. Morgan, but when 48 copies had been given away a storm broke. Carroll, dissatisfied with the printing of the text and of the Tenniel illustrations, recalled the gift copies, canceled the whole edition; and ultimately some 1,952 unbound sheets were shipped off to the American publisher, Appleton, for whom the Rev. Mr. Dodgson thought they were quite good enough—he had no very high opinion of American taste. Later, another edition was prepared, dated 1866.

Thus was brought about a unique situation peculiarly disturbing to collectors. The first edition, dated 1865, was in effect suppressed; the second edition, dated 1866, became the first trade edition, and is itself sufficiently rare today to command a very decent premium. But some of the original presentation copies were not returned, and have since fetched fantastic figures in the auction rooms. And it has slowly become apparent to collectors that a copy of the first New York edition, with an inserted Appleton title page dated 1866, is more nearly a real first edition than the London edition of the same year; it is at least part of the original first printing. But all the variants are scarce enough, heaven knows.

Why Germans Destroy Themselves.

Reading a volume of popular science, the other evening, with the radio turned low in the next room, I heard an announcer say that something like a million and a half Germans had been killed since Invasion day—or something of the sort; I have forgotten the figure he mentioned, and it isn't important to the story. Just a few minutes before I had been reading about the lemmings, those strange little rodents whose migratory instincts lead them inexorably to death. Every so often, you remember, they appear in great numbers—in northern Europe, as I recall—and eat their way across the countryside. When they reach the sea they plunge in and perish by the hundreds of thousands. It is instinct that drives them; perhaps they are swimming for an island home that disappeared beneath the waves thousands of years ago—who knows?

Now there is an example of coincidence, if you like. I made the application at once, of course, and so will you—that the Germans, like the lemmings, are perhaps compelled by some mysterious inner weather, some obscure suicidal instinct, periodically to destroy themselves. Or what have you?

Well, it's an interesting thought; and now perhaps you see why columnists and poets are rated as nonessential.

Among the "50 Best Books."

World Publishing company writes to say that Vincent Starrett's anthology, "World's Great Spy Stories," published by them, has been chosen as one of the "Fifty Best Books of the Year"—and a distinction having to do with typography and format. This department congratulates World on its printers and designers no less than on its editors and authors.

Tomorrow, March 26, Robert Frost, dean of American poets, will be 70 years old, and Henry Holt & Co. will mark the important anniversary by publishing his new poem, "A Masque of Reason." The cast of characters includes God, the devil, Job, and Job's wife, which would suggest that the masque is a modern poem with contemporary meanings.

For the man who does not "have a book," may I suggest the new "Complete Works of William Shakespeare," published by the Blakiston company? It is certainly a lot of book for a negligible sum of money, being a huge tome of 1,527 pages, about the size of a telephone directory but more attractively bound and illustrated.

'Young Bess' Shows Queen in Girlhood

"YOUNG BESS," by Margaret Irwin. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

The "Young Bess" who is the heroine of this novel is that unique Elizabeth who became England's great queen. When this book closes she is only 20 years old, and there will be five years of terror and intrigue before she is queen. It opens with memories of Young Bess' characteristic fiery deeds at the age of 6. But it is chiefly concerned with her 14th and 15th years, when the possibilities of love were awakened in her, and with the tragic consequences of that awakening.

Margaret Irwin has a bouquet of historical novels to her credit. They are all done in the same efficient manner. All have been respected, I believe, by historians for their background. They have been read [not remarkably widely] for those backgrounds rather, I also believe, than for their fictional genius. Now the Literary Guild has selected "Young Bess" for its April book. The novel will start its career with a fabulously large number of readers. The book will leave many with the impression that her first tragic love marked Elizabeth for a nonmarrying woman. And altho Tom Seymour is murdered because he is suspected of having been her lover [among an assortment of trumped-up charges] the reader is left with a conviction of his innocence, in that respect at least.

• • •

There are historical romances and there are historical novels and they are not to be confused. In the historical romance, if the background is recreated with both psychological and photographic accuracy the book has achieved its goal. The characters in the foreground are merely human projections of a period. They live thru the pages—changing no more than a jewel which is passed from mother to daughter, even reset in a newer mode, but remaining essentially the same.

In the true historical novel, the forward movement of the characters [that is, their development of character, their growing up or older, their adjustment to life] is just as apparent as is the forward movement of the plot. A true novel is not merely a story about a person. It is the record of that person's development.

Judged by these standards, "Young Bess" is a true historical romance. The fiery Young Bess, the irresistible Tom Seymour, Catherine Parr, wise even in love; Princess Mary, both pious and frivolous; the moldering, gargantuan Henry VIII.; his weakling son, Edward VI.; the powerful Duke of Somerset, whose head rolls like others before the book's end, even the warring factions of religion are all skilfully contrived puppets in the historical scene which is much more important to the reader than the humans who populate it.

• • •

"Young Bess" records the thoughts of the characters as well as their conversations and their deeds. What historians will think of the thoughts and words recorded as emanating from Young Bess' brain and lips I shall have to leave for them to decide. Thomas Seymour has been a less love-lured and more ambition-goaded character in some tales of the period, and Catherine Parr a more well worn villain, for instance. But the average reader won't ask historical questions; he will just enjoy the show.

Young English Writer Pens Imaginative, Unusual Story

"THE POWER HOUSE," by Alex Comfort. [Viking, $3.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

This is the most unusual novel I have read in a long time. If you want to read something utterly different from the run of fiction, full of the shock of clean, imaginative writing, of individual characters warmly different and weak and violent, get this book. By a young English writer, it has the finest account I know of men working with machines. More than that, it succeeds in working the war into the lives of men in a hard and believable way, not as some enormous force overwhelming them, but as the tone and temper of their daily life.

The story is of a group of Frenchmen before and during the war. There is a dramatic and intimate account of life among laborers in a textile town, of a man with a powerful inhibition that only the tension of war can release, of women quick and scornful, of children tough and shrewd. There is the story of the war as it comes to a country tripped in its own indecision, of the great retreat.

• • •

The book accumulates intensity as it moves, so that by the time the period of the German occupation is reached you have to read on and on. How the individual Frenchmen slowly and confusedly become aware of the power they have, as working civilians, to interfere with the enormous German military machine is told in bitter and expressive prose. Men coming out of a room full of noise: "Some of them would shake their heads as if they were dogs and the sound were water."

• • •

Every page crawls with the pain of human consciousness. These are real people in a real world and Alex Comfort is a new young writer with a talent that will shake the staid old English novel.

Job Possibilities in Steel Industry

"CAREERS IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY," by Capt. Burr W. Leyson. [Dutton, $2.50.]

Most of Capt. Leyson's 185 pages are devoted to the processes of producing the several principal kinds of commercial steel. At the end of a chapter there commonly is a paragraph or two on the kinds of jobs afforded by the operations under discussion, with comments on how a man gets the training for them. The appendix lists pay rates.

Veteran Returns Home and Earns Respect of Town

"TURN HOME," by Eleanor R. Mayo. [Morrow, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly.

"Turn Home" is the story of a returned veteran named Bub Dolliver, a boy who came home, fresh from the Pacific action, filled with hate and a kind of ambitious revenge against a town that had shunned him as a child. The Dollivers had always been the scapegoat family of Minot Harbor, poor, shiftless and dependent.

Young Bub, with the stigma still on him, refused to use his heroics as a wedge. He finally wangled himself a job as wharf attendant and found a home in an abandoned shack at the end of the pier. The author has made Minot Harbor an average small town on the Maine coast and the town people expertly ordinary, but Bub Dolliver's rehabilitation thru a work he loved and a girl he loved more is refreshingly unique.

The book might have benefited by a trimming of extra incidents, added for color or tempo, with added detail on the main characters, but, as a first novel, "Turn Home" is well plotted, well written and well worth reading.

Baker's Autobiography May Lead Books of That Class

By Harry Hansen.

NEW YORK.

RAY STANNARD BAKER'S personal story, "American Chronicle," appeared March 5 and seems likely to become the most popular autobiography of the spring. Some booksellers say that if the author had made more of his career as David Grayson, the amiable philosopher of the outdoors, and had incorporated a big slice of Grayson essays in this book they could sell it even more widely. The American public always has given a warmer welcome to writings signed David Grayson than to those signed by Mr. Baker himself. This suggests that an optimistic book might prove an excellent bet these days. Even Prof. John P. Dean of Queens college, New York, who wrote "Home Ownership," says the optimistic habit of the American people will help the next big boom in house building, for, no matter how poorly a house is constructed, the new owner always sees it thru rosy glasses.

The house of Scribner, which published the Baker book, has no complaints this season. Even its heavy two volume book, Waverly Root's "The Secret History of the War," is in its second edition, which isn't bad for a $10 work. It found the New York theater public eagerly interested in Ruth Hunter's "Come Back on Tuesday," and the chances are that this book will sell better in a theater producing center like New York than in the small towns of the interior, where live the stagestruck girls who ought to read it. New York likes to read about the theater and the hard road Ruth Hunter traveled to get a part won't deter any of its young hopefuls.

What's in a Name?

"You'll want to read 'Good-Bye, Proud World,' by Margaret Emerson Bailey," remarked William Weber, of Scribners, with a smile. "It's the story of her life, and there is a section in it about Robert Herrick, your old teacher."

Bill Weber knew I would review the book without his hint, but his remark made me doubly interested. The book is due tomorrow. By the way, I opened it and discovered that the author had called our alma mater Chicago university. When I attended those sacred halls we used to duck freshmen in the lily pond if they didn't call it by its proper title of University of Chicago, to distinguish it from its predecessor.

Since Margaret Bailey's book deals with a lively girl in Providence, R. I., there was a suggestion at one time that it be called "Rhode Island Rebel," but an astute editor remarked that this was too much like calling it "Rhode Island Red," and it was dropped. The spring Scribner list contains several mystery stories, one by Leslie Ford, another by August Derleth, but the house expects a big response for a first hand story of the Luzon campaign, "Quick for the Next," by Anthony March, which comes April 16. The manuscript arrived unheralded on a Monday, was accepted on Tuesday, was at the printer's on Wednesday. This suggests that publishers are not too conservative with war books when the books contain the right material.

Why a Writer Went to Siam.

Margaret Landon came up from Washington the other day to speak on another radio program about "Anna and the King of Siam." It beats all how that book continues to move along; it was published in June. Mrs. Landon said that it had passed the 500,000 mark—a fine tribute to the writer, who packed her knowledge of Siam into the book. Some one asked her why she had gone to Siam for 10 years. "I married a missionary," she replied, "and when he went there I went with him."

Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, San Francisco's proud lady, who wrote "Golden Gate Country" at 87 with all the verve of a writer discovering a new land, sends me a note saying: "You may not be surprised to hear that I began a new book the first of the year." Writers in their twenties who feel depressed should be brightened by Mrs. Atherton's fine spirit.

A bibliography of writings about Sherlock Holmes by A. Conan Doyle and others has been completed by Edgar W. Smith under the title, "Baker Street Inventory." It is in pamphlet form and published by the Pamphlet House, Summit, N. J., in a first edition of 300 copies.

Robert Frost Has a Birthday.

Robert Frost will be 70 years old tomorrow, March 26. In his honor Henry Holt & Co. publish "A Masque of Reason" on that day and give a luncheon that will be attended by a group of intimate friends.

Even the smaller book clubs are doing well. The Book Find club reports that in two and a half years its membership has grown from 10 to 40,000.

Inquiry Into Intolerance.

The writers' war board, which seems less vocal than in the early days of the war, has just completed an investigation of how minority elements in American life are treated in the arts, made with the help of the bureau of applied social science of Columbia university, and published in pamphlet form. The object is to combat race hatred and intolerance.

The board sums up its inquiry thus: The stage is the most liberal in portraying minority characters sympathetically and honestly; the novel, like the theater, is in the forefront of liberalism; the movies continue to make "disparaging presentations of minorities," but there has been some improvement; the radio "ranges from the innocuous to the sympathetic"; the comic cartoon has given the greatest credit to the Negro fighter; the press in the north is generally fair, in the south 60 per cent anti-Negro; advertising copy is "addicted to the Anglo-Saxon myth because of reliance on snob appeal," and the short story is the worst offender.

Fashion Show Stirs Interest in Teen-Agers

By Norma Lee Browning.

Exceptional interest has been aroused in the Teen-Age Fashions Competition sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a special event in the sixth annual American Fashions contest which opened on Jan. 1.

Hundreds of entry blanks have been requested by designers determined to give teen-agers something both original and appropriate in the way of fashions.

In addition, Mrs. Grace Pickering, director of THE TRIBUNE's fashion contests, last week proclaimed the teen-age competition to be "vitally important" because of the nation's present war time heightened interest in teen-agers and their problems.

• • •

"As valuable as the general contest is," she said, "this year I am particularly enthusiastic about the teen-age competition, for if there was ever a time when our teen-agers need encouragement and guidance, that time is now."

Teen-age fashions, she added, can be both beautiful and correct. She pointed out that sloppy-joe sweaters and slacks are neither.

"Every young girl wants to be attractive," Mrs. Pickering said, "but if she thinks that sloppy sweaters and baggy slacks will make her attractive, I'm afraid she is mistaken."

• • •

Approximately $6,000 in prizes will be given in THE TRIBUNE's fashions competition. Grand prizes in the general contest are $2,000, $1,000, and $500. In the teen-age group a special prize of $500 will be awarded to the designer of the best teen-age costume. In addition, there will be 30 or more awards of $50 each in the general contest, and 10 in the teen-age group.

Entrants must submit only their own original designs as sketched by themselves or in collaboration with artists.

From these sketches, a Selections Committee will choose the ones to be made up into finished garments under the direction of Mrs. Pickering and at the expense of THE TRIBUNE.

No actual garments will be accepted from contestants, but an entrant may submit any number of designs and may be entitled to win any number of the prizes to be awarded.

• • •

Designs should be sketched or drawn on white illustration board, 14" x 20", or drawn on white paper and mounted on cardboard of the same size. They may be in black and white or in color and must show both front and back views.

Any resident of the United States, including men and women in the armed services either here or overseas, is eligible to compete and there is no age limit—either for the general or the teen-age group.

The purpose of the teen-age contest is to encourage the creation of designers for teen-agers, not necessarily by them. Any one, any age, may submit sketches for the teen-age prizes as well as for the prizes of the general contest.

The contest does not close until midnight May 1, so there is still time to send for your set of rules and an entry blank.

Flower Show Smaller; Just as Alluring

By Thalia.

If the coffers of the Red Cross do not weigh more this year than ever before in its history, it will be a surprise, for the number of Americans this year who have intimately known its life saving, its life restoring and its hope nurturing services has mounted almost astronomically. The great national and international calamities which the Red Cross mitigates in time of peace touch few of us. In time of war no one of us is outside its pale of help. The women's special gifts division of the year's war fund drive under the leadership of Mrs. William McCormick Blair has already collected $265,000.

In one household that I know, tense for long weeks since the war department's hope giving, but not hope fulfilling message "missing in action," came almost simultaneously a letter from the boy himself, a prisoner in Germany, and the Red Cross' report of the ironically happy news, for, as a friend said, "It's pretty odd that knowing your boy has a prison number opens the door of life to you."

• • •

Life after bleakness, the tips of the cold bushes on the Outer dr. turning a tentative green, the hope of spring burgeons, like the hope of peace, in every heart. And that is the exact timely moment for a spring flower show.

If this year's "Fashions in Flowers" flower show presented by the Garden Club of Illinois, which opened on Monday at Marshall Field's, lacks the length and expansiveness of the old days at Navy pier or Dexter pavilion, it has lost nothing of its customary spell over its devotees. Tables, window boxes, simulated gardens, enormous bouquets, and tiny ash tray arrangements alike drew rapt eyes. Critics of the flower arrangements sounded like a congress of authorities on modern art. And Dali never created anything less congruous to its function than the prize winning dinner table, over which a cupid swung on the end of a pole guarding a festive board adorned by surrealist eyeballs painted on darning eggs and a dressmaker's dummy hung with gewgaws. Near-by were other prize winning tables that could have offered a feast—in fact, as well as in flowers.

And one really knew one was at a flower show as one walked past the gardenia bushes banking one wall and lavishly sharing their fragrance. One garden which is sure to be in just as luxuriant bloom when the show closes on March 31 is the Lake Forest Garden club's moonlit terrace garden—for its pale pink magnolia blossoms softly glowing in the moonlight are as synthetic as the electric moonbeams. They grew in an artificial flower factory.

How popular the show was on its first day was evidenced not only by the crowds of ladies in their pre-Easter suits and sables but by the thickly covered bottom of the "wishing well"—a pool into which coins were tossed as the tossers made wishes. The well's proceeds will provide bouquets for service men's hospitals in the Chicago area.

• • •

Many of the chicest visitors to the flower show on Monday afternoon had just come from the Council on Foreign Relations luncheon where Leland Stowe spoke to an unusually large and tense audience. Since Pearl Harbor he has been in 44 countries and colonies and before Pearl Harbor he was exposed to an Asia demanding freedom, he said. He brought his audience up with a start by telling them that the United States, which has always thought of

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

"Doesn't she look like Margaret Sullavan?" some one commented as Mrs. Douglas Huntress crossed the crowded ballroom of the Casino at a meeting of the woman's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra recently. Hatless, and wearing her golden hair in a simple bob with bangs, Mrs. Huntress did resemble the famed actress and had several of the guests wondering if Miss Sullavan possibly could have been in Chicago. Suits were popular at the meeting. Mrs. Leonard J. Paidar, who will serve on the Kenilworth team which will enroll sustaining members, came to the luncheon in a powder blue frock with matching cardigan, and Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley attended in a well cut gray gabardine suit. One lapel was ornamented by an intricately carved leaf of gold and silver, and her hat was of gray felt, with the crown crushed in and studded in silver nailheads. Two skirt length tassels, one of turquoise, the other red, fell from a red medallion which trimmed one side of the bodice of Mrs. George A. Kelly's short sleeved black frock. Her hat was a luscious feather flower of crimson, with a center of turquoise. Almost as much a part of Lake Forest life as are station wagons and tweeds is the 8 o'clock commuter's train, which whisks the country residents into the city in a brief 45 minutes. Seen riding in a short time ago was Mrs. Nicholas Galitzine in an all-black ensemble. Her short three-quarter Persian lamb coat with a nipped-in waist and flared skirt went smartly over a simple frock. The only bits of relieving color in her outfit were the red alligator bag and red, green, and gold plaid pillbox hat.

Mrs. Leonard J. Paidar.

Altho many Lake Forest and Lake Bluff men daily ride in the Deerpath car, restricted to men only, John M. Simpson often forsakes this masculine atmosphere to travel with his wife on her occasional trips from the suburb. For a day in town Mrs. Simpson sometimes wears a gray wool suit under a matching tuxedo coat. A shining black straw calot decorated with a gold pin adds a touch of spring.

• • •

Brown and green generally are touted as "good" colors for a redhead and to the opening of the operetta "Rosalinda" in the Erlanger theater Mrs. William E. Vogelback, one of the city's best dressed redheads, was wearing those colors in off shades. Her gown of reddish-brown crepe with its horizontal bands of gold tubular beading was the perfect compliment to her lovely bronze-red-brown hair, which she wears rather short and which curls crisply upward. On her head was a delicate little hat made of curled feathers of pale green and beige. Sitting near Mrs. Vogelback was Mrs. William F. Peter, and both were laughing at the leading lady's interminable strip-tease, in which one petticoat after another falls to the floor until finally a busk is uncovered and dramatically removed. Mrs. Peter's hat was concocted of white feathers and leather made into a wide ribbon and tied in a bow. Her youngest daughter, Miss Marian Peter, is studying at Stephens college and learning to fly. On her 18th birthday recently Miss Peter received her pilot's license and immediately wired her mother, inviting her to come down for a ride. The invitation reminded Mrs. Peter, she said, of the time when a friend telephoned to say his young son had just called him and said, "Come home, father, and I'll hit you with my new hatchet." Enjoying the tale with Mrs. Peter was Mrs. Harold Pynchon, with a short fur jacket tossed over her shoulders and a pink rose trimming her black hat.

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . Ozark Talk

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LET'S suppose you are visiting down here in the Ozarks. After your supper of fried chicken, hot biscuits, gravy, plum preserves, poke salad, and dewberry pie, you offer to do the dishes. Now it is quite possible that the glorious view of hills and sunset sky which you see thru the open window will make you overlook a bit of gravy that dribbled down the outside of the skillet. In a case like that, your hostess will probably look at the skillet, then at you, and say:

"Better lick your calf over!"

This is one of many Ozark expressions in the HOW'S THAT AGAIN? department. Translated roughly, it means you should do the job over and do it better! But only a farmer could grasp the connection between the actual words and the thought. Any one who has ever lived on a farm knows that a mother cow is very proud of her newborn calf. He may be the image of his scrubby pa, and good for nothing but a mess of veal chops, but his Mom thinks he is wonderful. Her first act in getting him ready for his public is to lick him over thoroly with her soft warm tongue. Then she looks him over critically and touches up a few spots she missed on the first licking, just to make the job perfect. In this way she gives the world an apt expression for a job that must be done over because it was not done well the first time.

• • •

Now let's pretend you live in the Ozarks. You have a cabin on one of those little woods roads, but you have no car and your mule is sick. You have no way of getting to town for oatmeal, flour, and tobacco, except to ride with a neighbor who drives his truck to town twice a week. The truck comes by with Grandma Scott and old Aunt Cele Jennings [the two oldest members of the community] riding in the seat with the driver, and the board seats along the back end of the open truck are packed with the younger Scotts, Jennings, and others farther down the road. The truck owner is in a hurry. He must go on to Harrison after he leaves his human load at Jasper, and return in time to get every one home by chore time, including himself. You come to the door without your shoes and shout: "I'll be ready in a minute!"

Without smiling, the driver shouts back:

• • •

This happens every day in various parts of the Ozarks. Many a family relies upon a neighbor's truck to get them to town for their supplies or to see a doctor. And the truck driver's time is their time, believe me! I have sat for three hot weary hours in a garage with two young mothers and their children, one a sick baby, and their grandma, as they waited for the truck which would take them to their backwoods homes. The garage man's wife, who lived in a big room off the garage with her husband, three small boys, and a baby girl, got barrels and boxes for us to sit on and at the end of three hours I felt I had spent a lifetime with these shy, nontalkative strangers. Just before our car repairs were finished, up came the truck for which my companions had waited so long.

Grandma and the sick baby were put into the seat, with another grandma and small child, and the driver. The younger women and the other youngsters, with much good natured laughing and joking, crowded into the back end of the truck, already packed with men, women, and children. The truck gave a mighty roar and they were off, headed up the mountain, in a cloud of exhaust fumes.

But all this is beside the point; there you are, not quite ready, when the truck comes along and the impatient driver tells you to "light a shuck." You get the idea! He means for you to hurry. But what is the connection?

• • •

A shuck refers to the outer wrappings of an ear of corn. In cities and agricultural papers these are called a husk, but down here we always say shuck. Now corn shucks, or husks, if you're going to be fussy, become very dry and will burn like mad. Back in the old days before flashlights or kerosene lanterns even, a pile of these shucks was kept handy, or perhaps there was a pile of corn in the kitchen waiting to be shelled for the chickens. If it became necessary to go outside the house at night because the dogs had treed some varmint in the front clearing or to see if a fox was after the young turkeys, the farmer would light a shuck! To do this, he grabbed an ear of corn and thrust back the shuck. Then holding to the ear of corn as the statue of liberty holds the handle of her torch, he would give the shuck a quick twist to keep the wrappings together, and light the tip in the fireplace. With the shuck burning as fast as a crumpled newspaper, he would run like the wind to get his errand accomplished before the crude torch burned out. Perhaps the fact that the speed required was so foreign to Ozarkian custom a shuck was lighted only in the direst emergency. Ozarkians walk about the country side, thru the woods, and even do chores on the darkest nights without a thought of a lantern. But "light a shuck" is still synonymous with extreme speed.

If you hear some one say he feels dauncey, don't think it hooks up with the word 'dance' and say: "Well, pal, you're certainly looking tiptop!" When a person "feels dauncey" in the Ozarks he isn't really sick, but he just feels heavy and logy, his head aches, he has a bad taste in his mouth, in other words, he just doesn't wanna go any place or do anything. I have often wondered why those radio announcers who struggle so hard to express temporary medicinal needs in polite yet understandable terms haven't stumbled on the good old seven letter word "dauncey" which does the job so neatly and patly. But don't ask me where the word originated. I do not know.

In the Ozarks, a widow who has dropped her mourning and emerged in a bright new red dress is said to be on the carpet. It means she is thinking of getting married again. The city meaning of being on the carpet, that is, getting a going over from superiors, is unknown here! Probably because Ozarkians acknowledge no superiors and wouldn't tolerate a going over if they did.

If you would drop into a southern home in the early forenoon the hostess would probably say:

"I haven't had time to red up the house!"

• • •

Now that doesn't mean paint it red! In fact, there are two schools of thought on the real meaning. I contend that she means she hasn't had a chance to rid it of the litter brought in by the dogs and boys. She "reds up" the house just as she always says she wrenches the clothes instead of saying she rinses them. Others say she means she hasn't had a chance to ready the house for company. You may take your choice.

When I sprained an ankle in the Arkansas Ozarks last fall, even the superintendent of the school said, as did everybody else:

"You'd better put that in hot water and get it swaged down."

Swaged [long a] down somehow signifies a decrease in swelling.

And woe to a girl at a party if two straight lipped matrons look at her and carry on a conversation like this:

"Well, I never! If she ain't a-cuttin' a dido!"

"She shore is! The fysty thing!"

The girl's reputation is being ripped to shreds. She is cutting a "dido" if she is dancing too briskly or acting in an indecorous manner. And if she has an eye out for two smooth Joes at the same time, maybe one of them belonging to another girl, she is definitely "fysty!" And that isn't good news about any girl down here in the hills.

Few Ozark expressions smack of the sea. From stem to stern, which is frequently used, may be nautical, but I am not sure. Another one is I don't like the cut of his jib. This is frequently used to refer to a stranger who is just off the beam in manner and approach.

• • •

Most of the comparisons concern things of the land or farm. Tall as a bean pole! Homely as a rail fence! He lies like a dog a-trottin'! [Rapidly and without apparent effort.] Flat as a pancake! Settin' there like you'd soured on the cob! And the darkly muttered threat which hints of mayhem and murder: "I'll clean his plow, so I will!"

By-words smack of long gone days. "'Sarn you," says the farmer when his mule is scared by an automobile. "I'll be drot," says his annoyed wife when the cat jumps on the dinner table. Aunt Lizzie, my neighbor, always expresses complete surprise by saying: "Well, I'll be jumped up!" When two pieces of a quilt pattern fail to make a neat union, she says they don't jibe. And when she refers to the Jedge and me as you-uns, it is not bad grammar, says my friend, Mary Elizabeth Mahnkey. You-uns is a corruption of the words "ye ones" as used in Chaucer's time.

One Ozark expression that is heard so often it rings in the ears of the speech picker-upper is the use of the word taken as the past tense of "take."

I "taken" the scraps to the chickens. I "taken" my cream to town. I "taken" the pie out of the oven. He "taken" the horse to the barn. It "taken me" all morning to wash. They "taken" her to the doctor.

You listen in vain for the neat little has, had or have which would make the word legitimate! It just isn't there! And when you hear this speech used by men and women whose grammar is otherwise flawless, the wonder grows. I have been told this is an effort to use extremely good grammar, in other words, the speaker is "putting on," and probably it is. I know of one group of people who snobbishly tried to dictate the affairs of a small Ozarkian town because they had acquired a lot of money instead of education. This group was known as the I Taken Boys by other citizens.

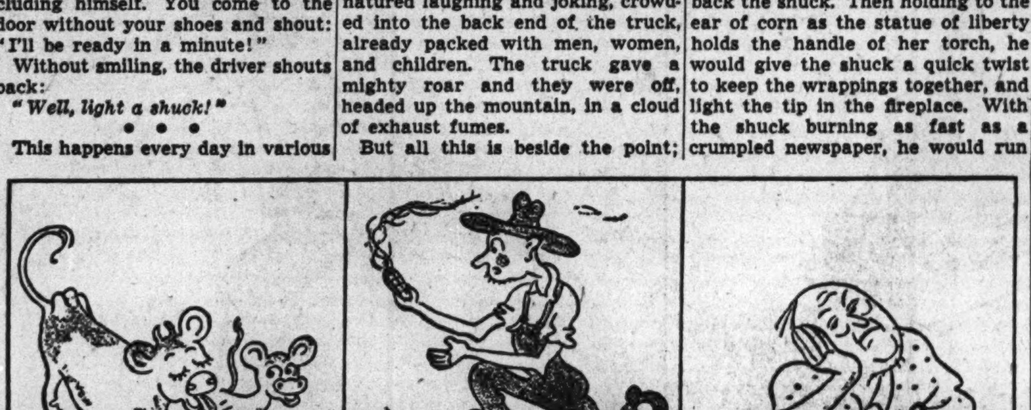
• • •

My own home, up to adult years, was not far from the Ozarks and I was 20 years old before I learned to say "duck your head" instead of "juke your head." And a person who sat without speaking was commonly and derisively referred to as a stoten bottle, altho no one bothered so say why! Years later I learned that a stoten urn was a vessel in which ancient Egyptians kept the ashes of their dead. And how that expression traveled practically unchanged all the way to a little backwoods settlement on the Missouri line is one of the problems I still have to solve.

As an expression of extreme gratitude, Ozarkians say: "I could hug your neck!" Only once have I seen the act really performed, for Ozark people are not demonstrative. Yesterday our hired man went to West Plains and brought the Jedge a pack of his favorite cigarets. The Jedge said: "I could hug your neck!" And did!



Better lick your calf over.
Well, light a shuck.
Feeling dauncey.

itself as the new world, may in the world of tomorrow assume the place of the old world which wants nothing changed.

Whether that new world will be communistic or democratic will depend upon the powers of attraction of democracy as opposed to communism, he said. He painted a vivid picture of the U. S. A., not as Uncle Sam but as Sister Samuela, the most fascinating, popular girl in town for years, who suddenly finds herself in her forties, still beautiful, still the best dressed, most sophisticated girl in the neighborhood, still the most desirable. But she has a rival, a new girl who has come to town. Her name is Sonia. She is young, alluring, sings gypsy songs, and a lot of Sister Samuela's old suitors are taken with her. Sister Samuela won't lose them, however, if she is as clever as she is beautiful, the lecturer said.

For its St. Patrick's day cocktail party, which, I hear, netted the Margaret Etter creche $8,000, the lovely Empire room of the Casino club was disguised as a forest in County Cork. Its delicate columns were girded in synthetic tree trunks. Leaves sprouted from their handsome capitals, and built into the end of the room which leads toward the chic glass spiced fountain room was a thatched booth to simulate a cottage.

All sorts of what the French call "frivolités"—you remember, they used to have shops which specialized in them the way haberdashery shops here sell men's "frivolities"—were carried away. There was such a crush as the casino walls have never before sheltered.

As a result of the party's merriment—which went on until the time designated by the question mark on the invitation—many working mothers, who could not otherwise keep their children with them, are going to be able to make a home life for their little families, and many women, who could otherwise not do so, will be able to help in vital war work. For the Margaret Etter creche, now 60 years old and the oldest day nursery in Chicago, cares for 97 children of working women from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. five days a week. The war has, of course, increased immeasurably the demands of young working mothers for help in caring for their children, and the creche has enlarged its daytime facilities in caring for young children by opening its doors two evenings a week to teen-agers who dance, play games, have refreshments and fun there.

The hypnotic rhythms of jazz turned the stylish audience at the second of Poetry's magazine series of lectures on the Modern Arts into a mental jam session a week ago yesterday. In the stately lounge of the Arts club, which in all of its history has never echoed to a "recital" by a real jazz trio, the feet of the city's most dignified patrons of the arts tapped the floor in irresistible accompaniment to the tom-tom hypnosis of a piano, a drum and a clarinet from whose reedy depths skilful moans and shrieks emphasized the unpredictable possibilities of boogie-woogie. Some of the city's pillars of musical society were as rapt as the frank fans of the art of boogie-woogie as S. I. Hayakawa explained the origin of jazz and its influence on the "classics" of modern composition both here and abroad. Jazz, played by the Richard M. Jones' trio and by Jim Yancey, sometimes called "The Bach of Boogie," illustrated Mr. Hayakawa's erudite talk with true Negro verve.

Jazz, a folk music, Mr. Hayakawa said, started in New Orleans, moved here in 1917 and by 1925 Chicago was the jazz center of the world. Then boogie-woogie came up from Texas, a fast western jazz as opposed to the earlier lazy blues, he said. The influence of this originally local folk music has spread all over the world, and is felt in much of modern composition.

In the audience were some of the most conservative of the subscribers to the symphony [including two of its trustees].

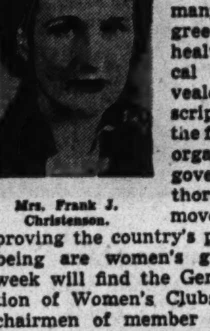
Club Delegate Attends Public Health Course

War brings into sharp focus both the strengths and the weaknesses of a nation, Americans have learned. Considered alarming by many is the degree of decline in health and physical fitness revealed by conscription. Among the foremost civic organizations and government authorities on the move toward improving the country's physical well-being are women's groups. This week will find the General Federation of Women's Clubs assembling chairmen of member state federations' public health departments for a week's training course at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md. The school was arranged and will be conducted by the United States public health service.



Mrs. Frank J. Christenson.

The representative of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at the meeting will be Mrs. Frank Christenson, 1637 S. 51st av., Cicero, who left for the east yesterday. She is a registered nurse. Before her departure, Mrs. Christenson already had enlisted the coöperation of Dr. Roland Cross, public health director in this state, to assist in the planning of a similar meeting for Illinois club women.

• • •

In calling the national meeting, Mrs. LaFell Dickinson, general federation president, and Mrs. Marjorie B. Illig, public health chairman, asked each representative attending to come fully informed about her own state's health department, state reports on health conditions, and the special needs of communities.

The course will be supervised by Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health service, and directed by the chairman of federal activities in health education, Dr. Mayhew Derryberry. At the closing session, Dr. Parran will summarize the course for the women and set objectives.

All programs of the government service are to be explained to the women by a corps of specialists. Some of the subjects scheduled for lecture and discussion are tuberculosis, cancer, and veneral diseases control, public health nursing, child and school health, mental health, industrial hygiene, maternity care, and nutrition.

Organizations Plan Benefit Music Events

Three organizations are completing plans for large benefit concerts to be given early in April. Two, Chicago council of the American Ort federation and the women's division of the Chicago Urban league, have engaged noted artists who will sing in the Civic Opera house. The third concert, a home town program, will be given by the United Scandinavian Women Singers, a united chorus of 110 voices from three Chicago singing groups.

Selma Kay and Mario Berini, both of whom have been heard in Chicago in opera, will appear for Ort. Their concert is set for next Sunday afternoon. Following them in the opera house on Sunday, April 8, to sing under auspices of the Union League, will be Dorothy Maynor, the Negro soprano. Late that afternoon—at 4 o'clock—the Scandinavian chorus will be presented in the auditorium of Lane High school at Western av. and Addison st.

• • •

International in membership, Ort, which signifies "organization for rehabilitation thru training," directs its philanthropy to educational channels, providing tools and teachers for the training of Jewish refugees in crafts and trades that will enable them to become self-supporting. In European countries not under Nazi domination, in Africa, in Canada, Mexico, and South American countries, and in the United States also, Ort schools or vocational bureaus are in operation, and many of the Ort machine shops now are engaged in war production. All groups affiliated with the Chicago council have an active part in promoting the Kay-Berini concert. Morris L. Polin is the Chicago council chairman.

The women's division participates in all of the civic, educational, and interrace amity activities of the Urban league, but its special interest is welfare work for youth, and proceeds from the Maynor recital will be used in large part to finance its programs for young people.

The Celia Parker Wooley committee of the Chicago Woman's club has taken a box for the benefit. The committee is named for the woman who first worked for interracial collaboration among Chicago students.

Among the individual box holders are Mrs. Archibald MacLeish and the Fowler McCormicks. Mrs. L. M. Sperry and Mrs. T. W. Robinson are among the patrons.

Mrs. Earl B. Dickerson, wife of the league president, is serving as chairman of the benefit, and Mrs. Walter Lowe has charge of the concert headquarters. Mrs. Emile Levy, who serves on the league's board of directors, is taking an active part in preparations for the benefit. The women's division is headed by Mrs. James Weber.

• • •

The Scandinavian Women Singers' concert is a war benefit to finance service and projects for the wounded.

The three groups comprising the united chorus, the Norwegian Ladies Singing league, the American Daughters of Sweden chorus, and the Danish Illinois Singing society, all are widely known in Scandinavian circles for their individual concerts. The Danish is the veteran chorus of the three, dating from 1901, and several of its charter members are still active. Its representative on the concert management committee is Mrs. Oscar Rasmussen.

The Norwegian Singers, organized in 1927, draws its members from four local Daughters of Norway lodges, and is an affiliate of the National Norwegian Singers League of America. Mrs. Carrie Lee, its representative, is chairman of the management committee, and it was with Mrs. Lee that the idea for the united chorus benefit originated. The Swedish group organized its chorus in 1940. Miss Nellie Fredeen, president of the American Daughters of Sweden, is her organization's representative on the management committee.

Directors of the respective choruses are Mathilda Huseby, Maurice Sommerfelt, and Harry T. Carlson. Raymond Allyn Smith, president of the Midwestern College of Music, will appear as guest conductor of the Swedish chorus at the concert. Miss Laura Howardson will be the soloist.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, April 1, 1897.

Dear Julia: In this Lenten season I was glad to have a chance to attend one of the great meetings that D. L. Moody is holding in the Auditorium. It seems strange that this awkward, unassuming, elderly man can attract such crowds. The Auditorium holds 5,000 people and every seat was filled, with thousands on the outside clamoring to get in and being restrained by police.

I had come early with Mrs. John V. Farwell and Mrs. William Blair. Mrs. Farwell's husband has been one of Mr. Moody's staunchest supporters and Mrs. Farwell is equally interested in his work. The Blairs, too, are among the evangelist's friends and always support his meetings. What a long way this ex-shoe salesman has come since he began his work in Chicago, gathering in neglected children to his Sunday school and teaching them! In those early days he considered himself only an organizer of services, not a speaker, but one day the young theological student who was to have made the address failed to come and Mr. Moody took his place. After that they never wanted any other speaker. His grammar isn't always perfect, but his earnestness outweighs all his faults as an orator.

He uses object lessons to point his remarks and this morning he brought cups, saucers, and glasses, and placed them on the pulpit. He spread these out and then had a pitcher of water brought and set near them. The water represented the Holy Spirit; the cups, the souls of men. The great crowd watched his every movement and he manipulated the throng as if he had been an organist at the keyboard of an organ. He had placed a quartet of singers in the top gallery and they led the people in the balconies in the singing, while those of us who sat in main-floor seats were led by a chorus of 700 on the stage. Prof. Towner directed this chorus.

When he was well along in his sermon Mr. Moody seized a tumbler, showing that it was empty. He filled it with water, denoting a soul filled with God's spirit. He picked up a tiny after-dinner cup, filled it with water, and asked if that could satisfy the thirst of a strong man. At last he showed and filled a great cup, so large that it seemed made for a giant, and talked about the need for grace such as this exemplified. It seems childish, simple, as I write it, yet I wouldn't have missed seeing this master of crowds have his way with that great throng today. He looked like a great, good natured bear as he spoke.

At one point in his sermon he said: "I don't expect to die. If you take up your newspaper some day and read that D. L. Moody is dead, don't believe it." And he went on to speak of the life beyond. In the silence that followed his words you could hear the sobs of women when he asked: "Mother, where is your boy today?" and many mothers rose to ask prayers for wayward sons. At all his meetings he takes offerings for the work done by Moody institute among prisoners, where this group has been remarkably successful.

In seeking a reason for his popularity among nonreligious men one concludes that it is his utter sincerity that wins their esteem. He is as honest as the day is long and I know of one family to whom he returned money left him by will. He said the father of this family should not have left him so much and he returned to the widow and daughter a good portion of the inheritance.

As he closed the meeting he thanked the newspapers for their help and the policemen who had guarded the doors. "There'll be many of them in heaven," shouted some one and Mr. Moody said "Yes."

A party set off for Jekyll Island last evening to spend the rest of Lent. Marshall Field and his son and daughter-in-law; Mrs. Henry Dibblee, a sister of Mr. Field; Mr. Fred Keep, a bachelor always included in such parties; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Caton. The Jekyll Island club is very popular just now and several wealthy Chicagoans have memberships. Now I must say good night. Your loving

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Dwight L. Moodý [1837-1899], greatest of modern evangelists, was president of the Y. M. C. A. in 1865. Joined by Ira D. Sankey in 1870, he toured England, Scotland, and the United States; founded academies at Northfield, Mass., and Chicago for lay preachers.

Men of Steel.

W. H. Stark, 6327 S. Maplewood av., Chicago, sends an interesting review of the steel industry in Chicago with which he was connected for years. Begun at Archer and Ashland avs. during the Civil war by the Chisholm family of Cleveland, O., the early mills passed thru eras of prosperity and decline. In 1871 the Bessemer process, then new in this country, was installed, and by 1886 machine handling replaced much manual labor. Bridgeport became a school of instruction for the steel industry. This was the nucleus of the Illinois Steel company which in its turn was absorbed into the United States Steel company, dominating the steel business of the country. "But the little old mills that gave it birth are torn down, the business transferred to South Chicago, and poor old Bridgeport is forgotten." Mr. Stark, now 84 years old, knew most of the "men of steel" in the old Bridgeport days and found them all gentlemen.

Did Shakespeare Know That Saying?

Miss Vera L. Sieb, Valparaiso, Ind., reading a country saying in this department ["The cat would eat fish, but would not wet her feet"] refers us to "Macbeth," Act I, Scene 7, in which Lady Macbeth spurs her wavering spouse by alluding to "the poor cat i' the adage." Look this up and see if you think Shakespeare knew this old saying. It does seem so.

Music Club Group to End Season Today

First district of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will close its 1944-'45 season with its annual meeting and election of officers at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Cordon club. The session winds up a four year term as executive chairman for Mrs. James Allen Young, under whose guidance the district has doubled its membership. During Mrs. Young's administration the organization has rung up an outstanding record in war service, as well as in assistance to young musicians. Officers for the posts of executive chairman, recording secretary, and historian are to be chosen at the assembly.

Mrs. J. A. Young. [Chase-Town House Photo.]

Philip Maxwell, director of the annual Chicago Music Festival, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the guest speaker, and a musical program, arranged by Lulu Raben, will bring as participants the following artist members of the Highland Park Music club: Ruth Grieg McDaniels, soprano; Joy Dressler, contralto, and Margery Cuthbertson, pianist.

• • •

The Musicians' Club of Women has planned a musical tea for 2:30 o'clock Monday, April 2, in Curtiss hall. Member artists sharing the program will include Dorothy Burmeister, mezzo-soprano; Maxine Lagerstrom Gloede, mezzo-contralto; Grace Seiberling, pianist; Irene Stolfsky, violinist, and Cara Verson, pianist, with Mary Pearce Niemann and Cynthia Hotton as accompanists. Mrs. Hazel Guild and Eva Gordon Horadesky will be in charge of the tea tables.

Mrs. Frederic Tellander, president of the Lake View Musical society, is the proud recipient of a letter from the American Red Cross thanking the club for its recent gift of band instruments to the Vaughan General hospital for use of hospitalized service men there.

"From the most enthusiastic reports we have received from our staff at Vaughan General hospital, we know how thrilled they are with your generous gifts," reads the letter in part. Proceeds from a large benefit concert made possible the contribution, which included instruments for an entire band. The society also has presented the National Federation of Music Clubs with a $1,000 war bond for the federation's foundation fund for post-war rehabilitation of service men thru music.

Literary Club to Give Award on Wednesday

By Irene Steyskal.

Exceedingly fine the mills of the gods may grind, but no one could convince Mrs. George Harriman of the Friends of American Writers that they do a more meticulous job than does her award committee. Down to the last line and final period, the stack of 150 books entered by publishers this season in the society's annual prize competition have been read, screened for technical merit, weighed for content, purpose, originality—have been tested for literary gold. Now reading glasses are folded away in their cases, and the brows of 16 judges, erased of every disturbing crinkle, are serene again. The prize book of 1945 has been chosen.

The Friends of American Writers are ready to post a 26th name for their honor roll of midwestern authors—a list whereon have been written in other years the names of Harriet Monroe, Carl Sandburg, John Gunther, Lew Sarett, Lloyd Lewis, Paul Engle, Vincent Sheean, and others of equal rank.

War has canceled the brilliant awards banquet, with its elaborate menus and scores of guests. But the literary mind still holds to the brave line remembered from the old copybooks that the might of the pen surpasses that of the sword, and the Friends are determined that the author of their prize book, even in these war times, shall receive his award with appropriate fanfare. Again this year the presentation will be made at a noon luncheon, for which each member will turn out in festive mood and her new Easter bonnet, and the town's literary editors and critics will make their customary guest appearance, accoutered with bright bon mot and witty epigram.

• • •

The awards luncheon, set for noon Wednesday in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman, will be presided over by Mrs. Colin M. Higgins, and Mrs. Harriman will be the toastmistress.

Among the guests, the Tribune wing will include Frederic Babcock, editor of the Sunday book section; Fanny Butcher, literary critic, and Vincent Starrett, author and columnist. Among literary editors and reviewers from other papers will be A. C. Spectorksy, David Appel, and Phyllis Whitney. Ruth Cleary Clough, the poet; Stanley Pargollis of the Newberry library, Leon Willien of the Midwest Writers' conference, and Walter V. McKee, publishers' representative, also will be guests at the luncheon. The society usually contributes a donation of $50 each year to Poetry magazine, and Marion Strobel will be presented with the gift at Wednesday's party.

The society raises the money for its annual award thru a series of benefits, and the amount varies somewhat from year to year. The 1945 winner will receive $750.

This is Mrs. Harriman's second year as chairman of the awards committee. In her corps of aids were Mrs. William J. Bargen, Mrs. Philip S. Blanchard, Mrs. George K. Bowden, Mrs. F. Percy Boynton, Mrs. Clovis M. Converse, Mrs. James D. Cooney, Mrs. Higgins, Mrs. A. Everett Joslyn, Miss Winifred Ollom, Mrs. Charles L. Ossowski, Mrs. Harry W. Raymond, Mrs. Heyworth Naylor Sanford, and Mrs. W. H. Tomhave. Mrs. Theodore E. Mead is in charge of the luncheon.

Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women will move its meeting Thursday night to the Cordon club to accommodate the large audience anticipated for a lecture by President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago on "Liberal Education." Dr. Hutchins will speak at 8 o'clock, and his lecture will be followed by forum discussion. Dr. Gertrude Smith will preside at the meeting. The evening will close with a tea, arranged by Mrs. Milton Skyrud.

The Renaissance will entertain husbands of members, fathers, brothers, and beaux at an annual "men's night" program and party tomorrow evening in the Jack and Jill theater, 180 E. Delaware pl. Heading the receiving line will be the president, Mrs. William J. Holm, with Mrs. Norman Johnson, chairman in charge of the program, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Wallis L. Raw.

Mrs. Johnson has arranged for Lawrene Rutledge Hoppe to entertain the group and its guests. Miss Hoppe's program will be based on Irving Stone's book, "Immortal Wife."

• • •

Members of the Colonial Coverlet guild will gather at 2 o'clock Wednesday in the Woman's club at Hammond, Ind., for an afternoon of music arranged by the study department. Cast in the principal role is Mrs. Louden L. Bomberger, the guild president, who is a talented singer. The Hammond Woman's club chorus will assist her in presenting a program of "Cradle Songs of Many Lands."

Mrs. Walter McNary directs the chorus, and Mrs. Franklin Hosken is the accompanist. With Mrs. Bomberger, soloists taking part in the program will be Mrs. Harry Van Valkenburg, Mrs. Christine Belcher, and Mrs. H. C. Hayden.

Three collectors of dolls in the town are contributing costumed dolls for an exhibit representative of the music to be sung on the program. On exhibit also will be coverlets owned by guild members of Hammond. Mrs. L. L. Caldwell is chairman of the study department.

Starred on the calendar of Jewish events is the 27th annual religious and Jewish education day observance of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations — a noon luncheon gathering to be held tomorrow in the Covenant club. The program, culminating a series of four lectures, will be a symposium on "Jewish Education in America," with three speakers participating. Rabbi Maurice Pekarsky, director of the Hillel Foundations at Northwestern university, will discuss the subject from the standpoint of community responsibility. Chaplain Samuel S. Ruderman of the United States navy, stationed at Great Lakes, will discuss Jewish education and the responsibility of the synagog. The moderator will be Dr. Samuel M. Blumenfield, dean of the College of Jewish studies. Mrs. Bernard Shulman has arranged the program. Mrs. Max Biesenthal will preside.

Several Fine Art Exhibits Now on View

By Eleanor Jewett.

There are a number of unusually fine exhibitions current in the various galleries about town this month. At the Chicago Galleries association, 215 N. Dearborn st., is a room filled with decorative paintings composed about the similar themes of birds and flowers; the larger gallery is devoted to paintings of the west and southwest, a stunning array of pictures.

Karl Plath, in the first room, practically tops the show with his fine study of three exotic birds, "Quetzals." Jessie Arms Botke offers two huge and handsome canvases flaming with color, "Flamingoes" and "White and Gold," which presents peacocks and cockatoos. Julius Moessel captivates the eye with "Butterflies," a collector's item. Leslie Buck in "Blue and Gold" deals, with a near-Pushman flair, with the quality and texture of bowl and plate.

Both Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Botke are now living in California. Another Chicago artist from California is Gerald Frank; his "Summer Flowers" is stunning. Leo A. Marzolo has a sensitive arrangement of grapes and tiny blossoms, brushed with pathos, and Rudolph F. Ingerle jumps into the front line of interest with his brisk and decorative portrait of "Kiki," his Siamese cat. Another decorative Karl Plath is the "Brazilian Motmots," birds even more unfamiliar in name than the quetzal of Guatemala. Karl Wolfe has a delightful little sober study, "Peaches," and Bessie Helstrom shows "Zinnias."

The gallery of western landscapes and marines is tremendously exciting. Charles Killgore, Edgar Payne, Frank H. Myers, Oscar E. Berninghaus, E. Martin Hennings, Elmer Forsberg, Carl Hoerman, and Douglas Parshall give us one superb canvas after the other. This is a show to be enjoyed and remembered. It is one of the outstanding exhibitions of the month.

The Woman's Club of Evanston is sponsoring the 23d art exhibit of work by north shore artists at the club. It is a gay and pleasant exhibition, delightful in color and mood. The most charming portrait in the exhibit, indeed one of the most charming of the year, is the lovely painting of a young girl and her collie, by Eleanor F. Ketcham. It is alive and glowing; both girl and dog are on top of the world, and the color scheme and treatment is persuasive and utterly lovely.

Frederick Mizen has a fine portrait of a man done in the conventional manner and Paul L. Olson has a fascinating portrait of a little Negro boy, "Sambo," whose face, feet, and posture tickle the imagination. It is one of the best handled character studies we have seen in some time. "Primrose," by Lavinia Perin Gray, is an outstanding flower picture, delightful in atmosphere, warm and rich in color, friendly, intimate, Frenchy, and gay—one of THE pictures in the gallery. Nancy Coonsman Hahn shows two beautiful boys' heads. They have charm and beauty and life, a rare combination.

• • •

Two one-man shows of great interest and beauty are the exhibit of recent pencil portraits by Elizabeth Telling at the College club, 30 N. Michigan av., and the exhibit of water colors of Gloucester and Cape Cod, by Frederick Dalrymple, at the Findlay galleries, 338 S. Michigan av. Miss Telling is a noted artist, famous for her drawings. They are sensitive and delicate, yet filled with dignity and strength. They are accurate and meticulously fine and, in the case of her portraits, the likeness she achieves is invariably striking. Her portraits of children are fascinating.

Frederick Dalrymple paints in a rich, warm manner. His water colors have depth and sparkle. His marines are stunning and the alongshore scenes are intriguing. His water colors have great personal appeal and his exhibit is very popular.

The Findlay galleries opened last week a stunning show of works by members of the National academy. These painters are among the most important of American artists and the usual course with their exhibits, outside of New York, has been one man shows. This is the first time a group of National academicians may be enjoyed together. Among the noted artists represented are Thomas Moran, Elliot Daingerfield, D. W. Tryon [with the luminous "Spring Time"], Emil Carlson, Henry Ranger, H. V. Pushman, Frederick Waugh, A. T. Hibbard, Harry Vincent, and William Wendt.

An exhibit of water colors by Clarence Carter, chiefly of western scenes, is another attraction at the Findlay galleries, which are celebrating their 75th anniversary year as a gallery.

An exhibition of paintings by Robert Philipp opens tomorrow at the Associated American Artists, 846 N. Michigan av. The exhibit will continue thru April 7. Philipp is well known to Chicago. Two years ago he was Carnegie visiting professor at the University of Illinois and he has received the Logan medal at the Chicago Art institute. It is he who painted the charming "Harriet"—the portrait of Helen Hayes in the play of that name, in the collection of contemporary American paintings owned by Encyclopedia Britannica, which will be on view at the Art institute this spring. In his current exhibit the artist is showing largely portraits and figure pieces.

• • •

Malvin Marr Albright, who prefers to sign his work "Zsissley," was awarded the Clark silver medal and $1,500 in the current 19th biennial exhibition of contemporary American oil paintings at the Corcoran gallery, Washington, D. C. This is one of the most important art prizes of the year. "Deer Isle" is the title of the winning picture, a huge canvas some five feet long. The painting also has been bought by the Corcoran for its permanent collection, another signal honor.

The fourth Chicago International Salon of Photography is current at the Chicago Historical society, Clark st. at North av. It is a magnificent show, the finest the salon has yet held. The prints are diversified in subject but alike in superb technique. The exhibit was carefully juried and the result is a magnificent entry of amazingly fine pictures. It is well worth seeing.

Phoenix Resort Visitors Enjoy Lazy Existence

PHOENIX, ARIZ. Visitors in the great southwest take their vacations, as the great Bismarck took his beer, sitting down.. They soak up the sun, sitting; they go out horseback, sitting; they talk it all over, sitting. Facilities there are for the athletic and ambitious. But reclining chairs exceed ping-pong tables in the ratio of 40 to one, and nobody is worried.

Time was when vacations were ordeals from which one had to take a rest upon returning home. Out here the operators have come to realize the pointlessness of such proceedings and have wisely oriented resort life around more sedentary pursuits.

A photograph of resort life at its best can be taken with a still, not with a movie, camera. Until night falls, that is. Then many of the area's resorts go into action like the night blooming cereus. Which does not mean that sleep is precluded for those who wish it, as resorts hereabouts are on the extended side. The bunkhouse never knows what the tap room is doing.

Guests at the Jokake inn, for example, would never get to know what Xochimilco looks like by going to bed nights. Unless, of course, they had visited Mexico City. For the floating gardens of that famous Mexican spot came to Jokake in miniature last Saturday night at the inn's annual fiesta. The pool was transformed into a floating island of flowers, with the sleeping figure of a Mexican fisherman under a palm tree centering the island.

A fountain with its water sparkling in the floodlights centered the patio where the festivities took place and where prizes were awarded for gay and original costumes in Spanish American motif.

• • •

Mrs. E. Hall Taylor of Winnetka won the prize for her most original costume, a Mexican peasant outfit which she fashioned herself. A hand embroidered knitting bag was her trophy. Among the judges were Bernard Rogers of Lake Forest and Claude C. Smith of Evanston who, with Mrs. Smith, is enjoying a late winter vacation at the inn. The Smiths have visited the inn before; Mrs. Taylor is enjoying her first sojourn in the sun country.

High point in the evening was the auctioning off of a whole bona fide carton of cigarets for $85 which went, along with other proceeds of this and similar events being held hereabouts these days, to the Red Cross.

Among those from Chicago and the suburbs at the inn who enjoyed the fiesta were Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Dennehy and children, Nancy and John; Dr. and Mrs. George Griffin, Mrs. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell and her daughter, Mary Tullis, and his daughter, Ginevra; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Mills and sons, Herbert and Tony, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Noettling, Miss Mary Jane Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. VanMeter, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bengstone, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Huffander and Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Whipple.

• • •

Recently returned from the Inter-American conference at Mexico City, William Benton of the University of Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Benton, drove over to the Jokake from his Arcadia winter home to take part in the fiesta.

Further funds for the Red Cross were raised at the Camelback inn in connection with the sixth annual Corley putting tournament this week. The tournament was originally started by Frederick D. Corley of Chicago, who presented the large silver permanent trophy for the event. Winner this year, the third in which he has competed, was George Rodormer of Park Ridge, triumphing over a field of 64.

Three-quarter finalists in the event were from Chicago and vicinity; Lawrence J. Burke, Harold Eckhart of Evanston and Grover Helm. Other prizes were won by John Lord of Hinsdale and Mrs. Burke. More than five hundred dollars was raised for the Red Cross at the event.

Other Chicagoans participating in the tournament were: William J. Foell and his daughter, Miss Eileen Foell; Mrs. Foell being present at all events as an interested spectator; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Williams, Patrick J. Lannan, Miss Gertrude Schneider and Don Bowey, assisted from the gallery by Mrs. Bowey, all of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville D. Miller of Hinsdale are back at the Camelback with their daughter, Martha, Chicagoland girls' tennis champion, who has entered this week's women's invitational tournament at the Phoenix Country club. Martha has her school books with her and is studying between tennis matches and horseback rides. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hathaway of Chicago are back at the Camelback for their second visit, expecting to stay until Manager Jack Stewart tells them the season's over.

Manager John Quarty is getting the San Marcos, over in Chandler, ready for the annual convention of the Arizona Hotel association, which will be held there a week hence under the direction of the Westward Ho's Frank Kuskey, association prexy. A gala turnout is expected for the opening day of the conclave, to be featured by an informal debate between Arizona's Democratic governor, Sidney P. Osborn, and the state's Republican national committeeman, Clarence Budington Kelland. Favorites both, the political figures are annual guests at the hotel convention.

When Manager Quarty arranged to be host to the Boniface clambake, he expected the season to be shorter than it promises to be. The palatial and popular resort, 30 miles southeast of Phoenix is currently full to the eaves. Among Chicago guests there at present are Dr. Vincent O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Dunne, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Munsell, Mr. and Mrs. William Stahl, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Gale.

Mrs. Joseph N. Woollett of Winnetka has recently acquired the Arcadia winter home of Mrs. Chester W. Chapin of Highland Park. Mrs. Woollett and her granddaughter, Jean, are currently enjoying the mild winter weather at their new abode, while Mrs. Chapin with her sister-in-law, Miss Annette Chapin, are staying at the Ingleside inn.

Florida Edict Bans Taking of Alligators

MIAMI BEACH, FLA. Time was when visitors sent them back home by the hundreds and thousands every winter. The game and fish commission records the last few years show an alarming decrease in the number of alligators in Florida, and they said "There ought to be a law." So now there is, and in the 18 southernmost counties "the taking or possession of alligators, their hides, eggs, teeth, and parts thereof is forbidden" without a special permit, and special permits are harder to get than extra gasoline coupons.

Strangers may wonder that alligators have any real importance to Florida. There is an inverse ratio between the number of alligators and the number of mosquitoes, and tho resorters will be surprised to hear it, they could not live in this tropical tip of Florida if it were not for alligators. These reptiles are responsible in an indirect way for the comparative absence of mosquitoes.

The wallows they make in their dens in the Everglades are what count, for in these watery dens, when the dry season is on and other water has receded, live tiny tropical fish named gambusia and mollenesia, which are mortal enemies of mosquitoes. Comes the wet season, when mosquito larvae hatch and water floods the alligator dens, and these little fish swim out to attack larvae.

So these native reptiles and the fish they harbor take their place among the unsung heroes of Florida history, and resorters owe as much to them, altho most visitors never saw an alligator and never heard of gambusia and mollenesia, as they do to Flagler, Plant, Collins, Fisher, Merrick, and other great pioneer developers of this region.

One of the leading events of the week was the Pan American league musicale yesterday in the North Bay road home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert I. Appleton of Evanston, with Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Olson of Chicago as co-hosts. A song recital was presented by Dr. Arthur Difilippi, director of the Miami Opera guild. The Olsons are among prominent patrons of the opera in both Chicago and Miami, and at a recent reception of the local guild were awarded life memberships for their support. At this latter reception the recital included a solo by Mrs. William B. Burruss of Chicago and Coral Gables. She and Mr. Burruss also are active in the opera here.

The Jordans came to this area 14 years ago on their honeymoon and have made it their home ever since, altho they return to Chicago for part of the summer. Their home, "Whispering Pines," is on a four-acre tract on Biscayne river, and they have peacocks and pheasants, as well as the more utilitarian birds, chickens, turkeys, and ducks. Last month the Jordans honored Mr. Olson on his birthday with a musicale and midnight supper for 50 friends, and now that Mr. Olson's April birthday is approaching, the Jordans and Mr. Olson are contending for the title of host.

Resort Guests Linger Longer in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Elastic may be scarce but the Palm Beach season seems to have developed a two-way stretch. PALM BEACH, FLA. There has always been a sprinkling of winter colonists who remain after almost everyone else goes, but this year April 15 has been designated as the official close of the season.

Difficulties of obtaining reservations, the discovery that life can be beautiful down here after March, and the further fact that there is no place else to go has made Palm Beach accede to the alliterative slogan of the West Palm Beach chamber of commerce, "linger longer in the land of languor."

The two great hotels, the Whitehall and the Breakers, will remain open until April 15, and smaller hostelries are following suit. The Everglades club closes Saturday and many of its residents will move into hotels; the Bath and Tennis club will stay open until May 15.

Entertaining here has been on a lavish scale, in spite of alleged war time shortages. Sometimes the parties see the light of print in a modest item, but just as often nothing appears. One large event, laughed off by the hostess as just a little get-together of friends, turned out to be a really super affair with a special orchestra up from Miami. Moreover, sad to relate, court records "after the brawl was over" bear witness to the fact that Palm Beach and Hollywood might turn out to be sisters under the skin after all.

• • •

Volunteers for Victory provide cots in an emtpy store building for service men who spend week-ends here, but there is always an overflow accommodated at the city jail. The Palm Beach hoosegow is really a de luxe establishment, with all the conveniences of a home, and some of which few homes can boast, including a superb view of Palm lined vistas and birght, exotic flowers. These boys say they have only the happiest memories of the Palm Beach jail and the whole hearted hospitality of the police force, a rest enjoyed, they say, without benefit of arrest.

The collectors' show at the Four Arts is a fitting climax to its really brilliant season. Few museums could boast of a more beautiful and luxurious showing of old china, glass, and silver. The arrangement, too, is achieved with an eye to beauty and artistry for which the Palm Beach Garden club is famous.

• • •

A feature of the opening days of the show was the display presented by two young officers from the naval air station in Miami of the ways naval flyers are trained to survive should they be forced down on tropical islands or jungles. This display included photographs, colorful table exhibitions of tropical fruits, bamboo spears, and articles fashioned from parachute materials. It was explained that each flyer had as part of his equipment a manual which tells which food plants are edible and which are poisonous. It also was explained that much of the plant material in Florida is identical with that in the South Pacific. The display was made in response to an invitation by Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, president of the Garden club.

The Chicago colony was much in evidence at the St. Mary's hospital benefit ball Thursday night at the Everglades club. To assure early arrivals, a special prize was announced for the best dressed woman on hand during the cocktail hour which began at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Varick Foster and Mrs. Thomas F. Ruckelshaus gave an old time "tacky" party at Sandy Loam farm. A hillbilly band played for the dancing. Mrs. H. Stillson Hart and Miss Joanna Fortune entertained with a cocktail party the other afternoon.

Hats Will Add Excitement to Easter Parade

By Rea Seeger.

Usually the most photogenic of the Easter parade are the spring hats, colorful, new, excitingly fresh after weeks of winter weather. Costume accessories, coats, suits, and the inevitable Easter corsage are close seconds. This year follows the same tradition, only the newest headgear is far more exciting and significant for future fashions.

For this is the year that hats make the fashion. Hats are inches, some even a good foot, higher than ever before. They're far more dramatic creations than ever before, and because of the new attitude, the new sleek veiled outline and the exquisite composition of tulle, net, veiling, flowers, and ribbon, they are exceptionally important.

• • •

This Easter you'll see the emphasis on all-white hats. New hats made of chalk white jersey, white veiling, felt, ribbed fabrics, and white flowers. White, smooth straw in solid or lacy weaves also is featured, with contrasting white ribbon, flowers, or veiling. Other flowered hats are composed of vivid or pastel tinted buds and blossoms with deep green leaves and foliage.

Unmatched for color and composition are the hats completely covered with a dozen different flowers: Roses, daisies, violets, valley lilies, and other garden varieties, massed effectively high to make the new silhouette. Ruched, puffed, and gathered ribbons make entire high hats, too, and the models made of yards and yards of veiling look airy and light combined with extreme height.

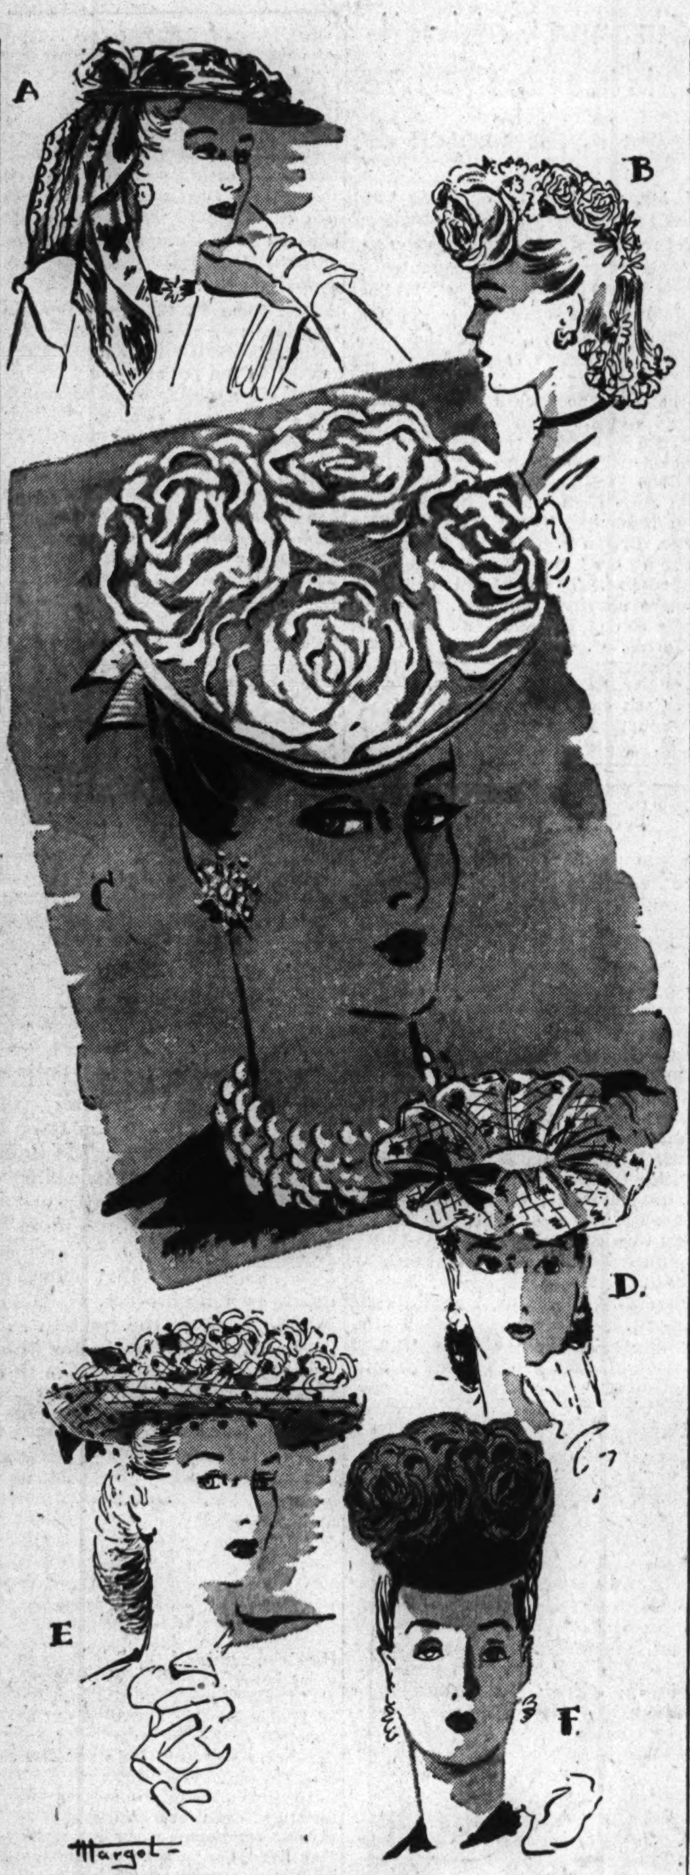
• • •

Brand new ideas are the hats of either felt or straw that are flat and made with four to six slit straps thru which is pulled a vivid colored silk scarf. The scarfs can be changed for different color effects. They come in small, medium, and extremely wide models. Even without the softening effect of the silk scarf they are smart, simple hats for town or street clothes.

Garland or chaplet models, all made of flowers, are young and springlike. The all-whites and the pastels make a most appealing collection. So do the same sort of models made of ruched or massed bows of satin or silk. All-veiling hats are legion, from the high turban arrangements to the wide platter affairs with brims completely rolled with plain or fancy veiling.

Artful creations feature flowers tucked under drifts of pastel veiling on top or underneath the brims or crowns. Hat collections this Easter are the most poetic conceptions ever to emerge from the fingers of American hat makers.

Six sensationally new creations from one superb collection designed by Mme. du Plessix have been illustrated. They are available in a smart Chicago shop. For further information call Superior 0200.



A . . . New scarf hat of pastel felt with printed fabric pulled thru bands. • B . . . Classic garland or chaplet hat is made of single huge rose with smaller buds and blossoms falling at side. • C . . . Dramatic high hat made of four huge white roses attached to soft white straw. • D . . . Chenille dotted veiling is drawn over shallow brimmed hat. • E . . . Flowered scoop brimmed hat is covered with roses and veiled in dotted mesh. • F . . . Another high hat boasts black roses on shiny black straw.

Big Sister Juniors Plan an Easter Gift Visit to Orphanage

Easter cheer will have an early start at St. Vincent's orphanage. Junior Aides of the Big Sisters plan to visit the institution Thursday, bringing a new frock for each baby girl, a suit for each boy, and baskets filled with eggs, chicks, and bunnies.

Passion Flower.

Something has reminded me of my first sight of a passion flower. I had been taken for a Sunday afternoon walk [to the cemetery, I think] during which we visited the "greenhouse" of the florist nearby. Fascinated by the lovely luxuriant vine with its exotic blossoms, I kept coming back to gaze at the purple and pink fringed corona, the delicate petals set upon a calyx that almost matched them in tint, the bright green tendrils and glossy leaves.

The Italians early called this the fior della passione from a fancied resemblance of its parts to the implements of the crucifixion of Christ. I was told how the triple fringed circlet represents the crown of thorns; the stamens and pistil the nails of the cross; the five sepals and five petals standing for the 10 faithful apostles.

Thought you might like to recall the legend on this Sunday; and follow Florence Denison in her thoughts of—

The Sabbath Day.

As quiet inns beside a busy road
Where travelers refreshment find, and rest,
So Sabbath days are days without the goad
That drives us ever onward to some test
Of ingenuity, with ceaseless zest.
A quiet spot to stretch our souls, and bask
In the warm glow of our faith confessed,
And offer thanks for this [so small a task]
This day, for which we do not need to ask.

Since our faith and hope and love have been renewed and strengthened thru another Lenten season, we question, with Carl Winfred Snyder, is there a real—

Atheist?

"I don't believe in God," he said to me,
"I only believe in the things I see.
I believe in the stars, the moon, the sun,
The darkness that comes when each day is done.
The trees, the birds, the seasons of the year,
The rain, the snow—all to me are dear.
They are the things I believe in and love—
Not in the One you say lives above.
As for me, I believe when life is thru
There's just oblivion for me and you."

"I wish, friend," I replied, "that I could say
Something to make you see things my way;
Yet it seems to me, in one way you, too,
Know God, for in loving the things you do
You cannot help but love Him because He
In all those things dwells abundantly."

Down on Riverside farm, where the family has done it for 90 years, Helen Virden says they're—

Makin' Sugar.

There's something special in the air when sugar makin's prime,
A smell of summer waitin' that tells you it's the time
For the sap to be arunnin' from every maple tree
The day cannot be counted on, no use to prophecy.
It's the time when winter's leavin', when spring is on the way
A certain freshness in the breeze to tell you "here's the day."
It's time to put the buckets out, to start in cutting wood;
You have to know the feel of it to make it understood.
Some like the breath of winter time, a summer afternoon,
Or autumn when the stars surround a yellow harvest moon;
I'll settle for the mornin' when I can take a sup
Of sugar water from a tree where sap is comin' up.

And Harriet Chandler suggests that, along with spring house cleaning, we let a little sunshine into dark—

Corners.

A little sunbeam crept its way
Into a corner, yesterday.
The little corner had been dark—
A gloomy spot without a spark
Of light, and dust had gathered there
Because it lacked my thought and care.
The little sunbeam seemed to say,
"Come clear your corner out today!"

And thus it is within the mind,
In darkened corners there, we find
Dislikes and dreads and doubts and fears,
Accumulated thru the years,
Till light of faith and love creep in,
Exposing corners that have been
Needing our cleansing thought and care.
Let's clear the corners everywhere!

Now that spring is here [?] and we are nearly done with the mad month, Aunt Ella wants to know why we worry so about the ides of March, and never fret at all about the ides of all the other months. Here's April coming up with her ides on Friday the 13th and who's fussing about that? More, the ides of seven other months fall on the 13th. So what?

Hand Loomed Textile Show at Institute

By Edith Weigle.

The war is increasing interest in hand crafts in this country. In the south a number of small potteries have produced items in ceramics that have created such a demand for more, that at least one of them has made a small fortune in luncheon and dinner ware.

The potteries in California, too, are booming, and individual craftsmen, artists who create ceramic figures and bowls and vases, are finding there is constant demand for their work.

The weaving of textiles also is enjoying a very active period. The trend now is for the skilled artist and craftsman to make on his hand loom articles that can be copied by machinery for extensive output. Dorothy Liebes was one of the first whose original, very beautiful textiles were copied by machine, an eastern manufacturing company investing money in the new venture and turning out excellent reproductions of her hand loomed drapery and upholstery materials.

• • •

A visit to the current exhibition of hand woven textiles and rugs, the work of members of the staff of Cranbrook academy and museum, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., being held at the Art institute here proved that very beautiful objects may also be highly practical. Any one of the unusual and subtly colored rugs in the collection could be taken off the walls and placed in your living room or bedroom. And as most of the drapery textiles are in neutral tones of beige, or dull golden yellow or tweedy mixtures they, too, adapt themselves readily to a great variety of interiors.

The artist-craftsmen whose work comprises this show are Loja Saarinen, Marianne Strengell, Robert Sailors [a former Art institute student], Signe Midelfort, and Geraldine Funk. The most important exhibit is the large wall hanging which was both designed and woven by Miss Saarinen.

It is a stylized ground plan or map of the campus at Cranbrook, worked out in exquisite soft greens, beige, gray, and rose. The various studios where students work with their artist-teachers are indicated, as are the pieces of sculpture by Carl Milles which are placed about the grounds. The beauty of this hanging is ageless for it is a real work of art.

• • •

Among the items loomed by Mr. Sailors is a very handsome yellow woolen fabric, the texture interest deriving from the knubby knots of the yarn and from a gray thread that forms a sort of shadow plaid. Another textile he designed for glass curtains is sheer and fine and combines a gold metal thread with white.

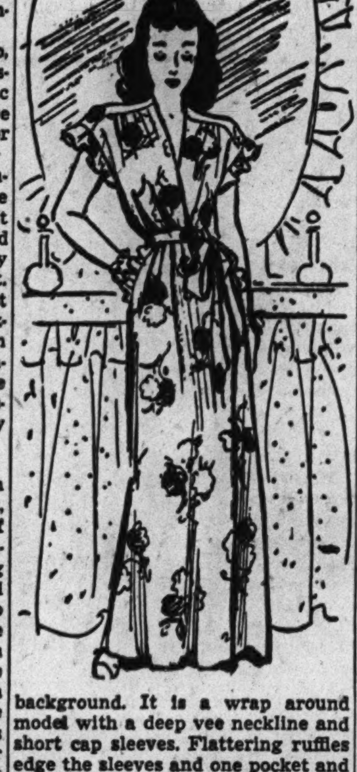
Among the rugs is a stunning one of modern design, gray and white, different textures in the weave creating an assymetric pattern. It is finished at the ends with a white fringe which is tied in sections.

Fashions

By Angela

Spring and summer negligees are making their bow right now, and just in time to serve as delightful Easter gifts. These crisp, new robes are in a variety of styles, ranging from the short brunch coat to the popular standby, the regulation housecoat, with butcher linen, seersucker, and faille competing with rustling taffeta and clinging chiffons.

One of the brightest in the taffeta collections of robes is of a fresh carnation print against a white background. It is a wrap around model with a deep vee neckline and short cap sleeves. Flattering ruffles edge the sleeves and one pocket and outline the spot where another pocket should be. A belt starting at each side of the waist ties in a bow in front. The slim princess line in back is accentuated by a billowing skirt. This same style is available in solid colors in delicate pastel tones.



Another dainty taffeta housecoat is reminiscent of the lovely wool challis prints. Against a pastel blue background are delicate pink roses and buds. Double ruffles edge a curved shoulder yoke and short cap sleeves.

Plentiful Onion Crop Is Boon to the Menus

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Onions are so plentiful now that we're smart to use them as often as we can, in soups, salads, vegetable and meat combinations, and as a dish by themselves.

Onions are one of the oldest known vegetables. Good cooks of every nationality always have depended heavily upon the onion for flavoring. We had a taste of how it might be to be deprived of the onion when there was a temporary shortage, a year or so ago. Then grocers were rationing onions one by one to favorite customers, and we began to realize that onions are a culinary blessing we had always taken too much for granted. Now we can be extravagant with them.

Baked Sliced Onions.

Slice large onions half an inch thick and arrange in shallow baking dish which has a cover. Season with salt and pepper and drip bacon fat or melted margarine over them. Add one or two tablespoons of water to the baking dish, cover, and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until onions are tender, about half an hour. Some cooks sprinkle the onions lightly with sugar before baking.

Baked Stuffed Onions.

Skin a large onion for each person, and simmer in salted water until almost tender. Drain, take out centers, and chop the removed onion. Combine with fine bread crumbs, minced parsley, salt and pepper to taste, and melted margarine or bacon drippings. Fill onion shells with stuffing and place in greased baking dish with a small amount of water. Or pour slightly diluted tomato soup over the onions. Bake at 350 degrees until tender.

The scarcity of fats puts a crimp into our enthusiasm for batter fried onions. Since the deep frying fat may be strained and used again and again, french fried onions aren't too great an extravagance for that rare occasion when you've snagged a few hamburgers or perhaps even a steak. If you don't have a small deep fat kettle, it may be wise to use a heavy saucepan for the onion cookery, since much less fat is required to fill a small container to the proper depth.

Batter Fried Onions.

1 cup flour
1 cup milk
1 egg, beaten
¾ teaspoon salt
6 to 8 medium onions.

Skin onions and slice thin. Separate into rings. Dip into batter made by beating flour, milk, egg, and salt together, and drain well. Place onions in wire basket and immerse in fat heated to 365-385 degrees, or the temperature at which a cube of bread will brown nicely in 60 seconds. Fry onions golden brown, drain, sprinkle with salt, and keep hot until all are fried. These onions should be crisp, sweet flavored, and delicious. Half the recipe [using an egg yolk] may be enough for the small family, or for a larger family if the menu is a large one and onions are only accessories to the meat.

Paper thin slices of onion are delicious in fruit salads. Chopped or sliced onions are standard seasoning for almost any vegetable salad combination. Onion rings on the relish tray are appealing. Sometimes it's worthwhile to dye them red in beet juice for the sake of color as an edible garnish for some entree lacking in color.

If your family and friends can stand you afterward, there's no more satisfying luncheon sandwich for the onion lover than thinly sliced sweet onion between buttered or margarined slices of light or dark bread. Onion, watercress, and cream cheese is a fine sandwich combination.

Thru the Looking Glass

What could delight the feminine heart more on Easter morning than to find the bunny had left a gift basket? Not, of course, the little basket filled with candy and colored eggs that gave her such a thrill when she was in pigtails, but one filled with fragrant luxuries to add to her glamor.

When you're out shopping for Easter gifts for grownup girls, you might bear this thought in mind and take a look at some of these baskets now on display on cosmetic counters. They are enchanting things made of woven straw. Some are fashioned like little bonnets, others like miniature hampers, and our favorite is the one that's really a glorified sewing basket.

This well made, round basket of closely woven, creamy straw is trimmed in blue with a big, rosy satin bow tucked thru a loop on the cover. Nestled inside are three bottles that contain scenting agents in as many forms. There is a handsome bottle of perfume, a larger one of cologne, and the third is packed with fluffy talcum.

• • •

All three items bear a fragrance which is a bit sophisticated, somewhat saucy, and entirely beautiful. The scent is a tribute to feminine taste, and is a great favorite with many discriminating women. The talcum and cologne are ideal for day time wear, being light and fresh in essence, and for dressup occasions the perfume adds just the right note of festive charm.

There's as much utility as glamor packed in this gift, for after the bottles are proudly arrayed on a dressing table, the basket becomes an ideal container for sewing equipment. It's roomy enough to accommodate spools of thread, needles, thimbles, and all the paraphernelia necessary for sewing a fine seam.

You won't be overawed at the price tag on this basket, but if you're a bunny on a budget there's a smaller set—talcum and cologne, minus the bottle of perfume—less expensive and still a gift of no mean appeal. LOUISE DOOLEY.

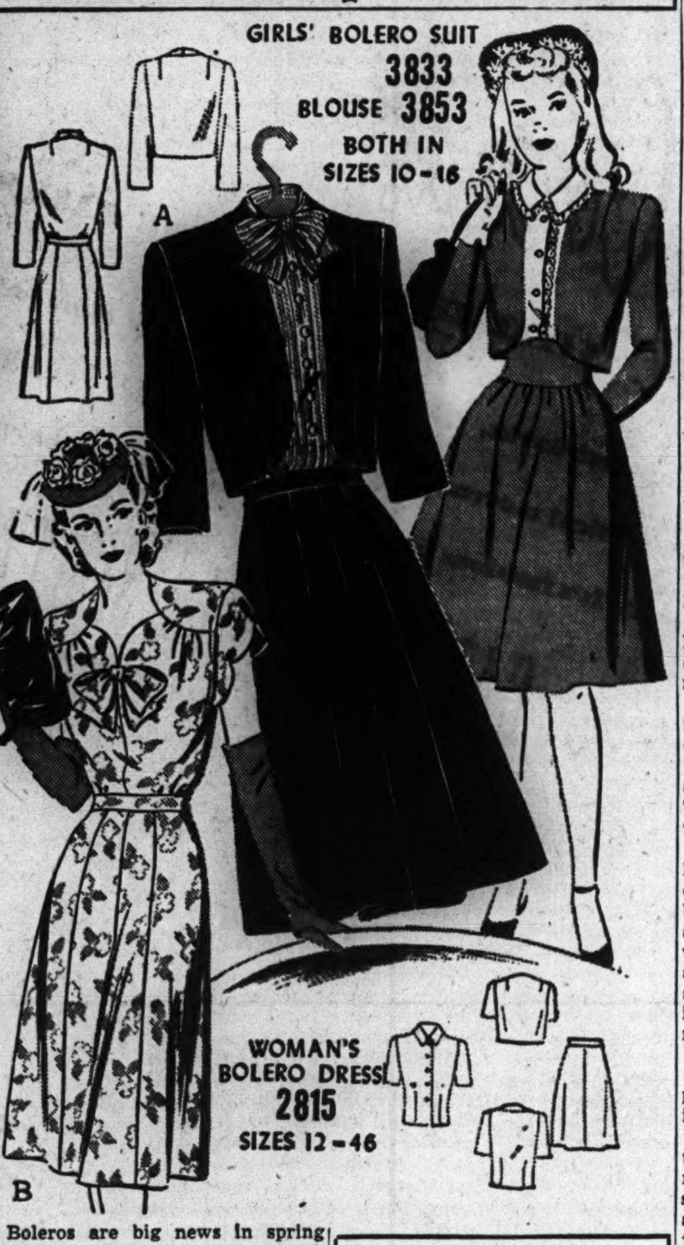
Patterns by Clotilde



Boleros are big news in spring fashions, and these patterns headline the style effectively. One model is for adult figures, the other for junior sizes.

Both the one-piece dress at the left and the outfit in the center figure of the sketch are the same pattern, one with versatility. The design may be made up as a one-piece dress with a high or heart-shaped neckline, or as a dress with a two-piece look, a high, bow tied neckline, and a companion bolero to match the skirt portion.

The other two patterns collaborate to make a bolero suit for juniors. One design creates the full skirt and long-sleeved bolero, while the other makes the frill-trimmed blouse to contrast.

Style No. 2815 is designed for sizes 12 to 46. Size 36 [view A], bolero and skirt, require 3⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric; blouse, 1⅛ yards; and [view B], 2⅞ yards of 35 or 39 inch material.

Style No. 3833 is designed for sizes 10 to 16. Size 12 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3853 is designed for sizes 10 to 16. Size 12 requires 1⅛ yards of 35 inch fabric.

A Friend in Need

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

By Sally Joy Brown.

Sewing machines, which were difficult enough to locate before the war, have become doubly so since freezing and rationing went into effect. None of us can permit conscientiously so useful an article to be discarded or stored away for possible use at some indefinite future time. By placing it in a needy home, it could be the means of easing the burdens of harassed, busy mothers and saving hours of laborious, endless hand sewing, which, at best, seldom stands the strain of vigorous childhood wear.

Mrs. N.'s husband is in the army. Altho she carefully apportions the family allowance to cover budgeted needs for herself and small daughter, she has been unable to stretch it to provide essential household equipment, the most important of which is a used treadle sewing machine. Transportation for a south side offer can be most conveniently and economically arranged.

• • •

Mrs. H. and her three children have been living in a small basement flat since her husband deserted them three years ago. Frail health prevents her employment, and she has had to accept relief. A sewing machine would be a great aid to her in mending and remodeling used clothing, which friends have given her. She lives on the north side of the city.

• • •

The B. family comprises parents and four children, ranging in age from 1 to 16 years. They live in four rear rooms back of a store, the rental of which is disproportionate to the father's wages. Current household expenses have included monthly medical bills for many years. Mr. B.'s limited employment and earning capacity have been due largely to a severe stomach ailment, and the 6 year old girl has required hospital care since birth. Worry and want have impaired Mrs. B.'s health. Since it has been necessary for her to do the sewing for her family by hand, a machine would be an immeasurable time and labor saver for her.

Two Year Old Child Usually Easy to Guide

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Two year olds are so easy to manage and such fun to be with that I am always surprised [and so sorry for the child] when one of them is turned into a problem by misguided adults.

Instead of writing on any one subject today I think it might be helpful to this mother and others if I used [with some changes], as the hub of our attention, a letter which is like a number of others I receive, some from working mothers and some from women who are at home all the time.

"My dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have a little boy 2 years old who is exceptionally bright. He thinks he knows much more than his nurse and mother.

"I go to business and have very little patience to take care of the child, and so I employ a trained nurse.

"He is a problem child in his eating. I have had him to several specialists as he is quite thin, but doctors tell me that children as bright as my little boy never eat well. They keep thinking of other things to distract their attention.

"My nurse finds that by scolding him, she gets more out of him. I do not want the child to grow up being scolded and afraid. He needs a person with a world of patience, which my nurse has at times, but at other times the child gets impossible, and he needs either a scolding or some other kind of punishment which is worse."

• • •

Let me see if we can consider each point in a way to be helpful even if it must be brief:

1. A little child of 2 doesn't really think he knows more than his mother or nurse. On the contrary, small children adore their grownups and love to look up to them. It's just that he has certain normal desires and isn't managed so that he can gratify them, within reason. His real needs are misunderstood or frustrated.

2. A tired mother who has worked all day often hasn't patience with her child, especially if the child has been badly managed thruout the day. What is needed here is a different method on the nurse's part or a different nurse. The mother should try to manage so that she herself can hop into a warm bath when she gets home from work, slip into a house dress, and then, refreshed, have a little time with her small son. Week-ends should be happy times for a "working" mother and child.

• • •

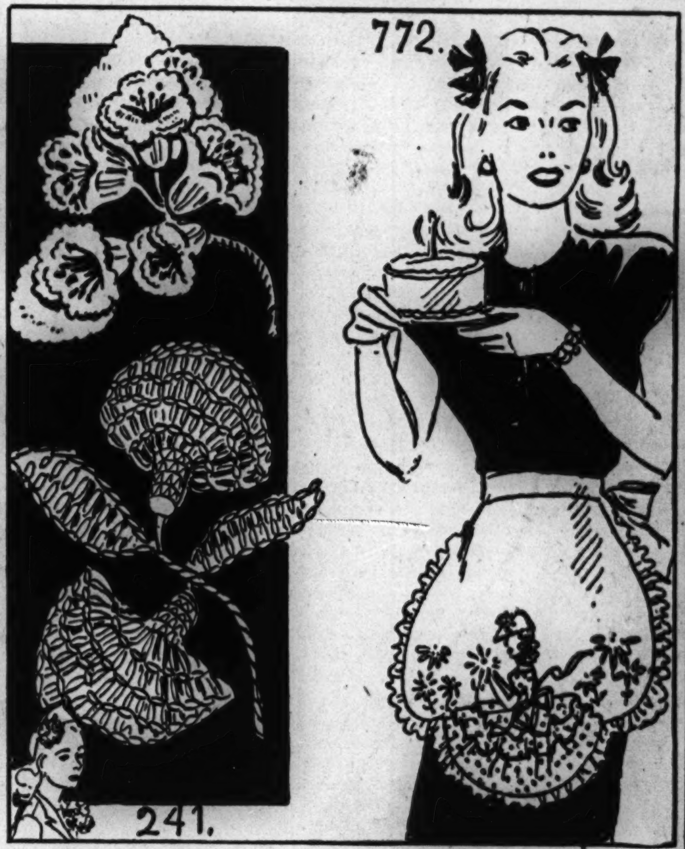
3. There is not the slightest reason why a bright child should be thin or eat badly because he is bright. Exceptionally bright children usually are well formed, well nourished, and above average in size. This child probably needs more calmness in his grownups, a rest or quiet period before meals, and, of course, a nap in his room during the day.

4. A little 2 year old is the easiest thing in the world to manage. Scolding and punishment have no place here. All that is needed is an insight into his needs and his desires, and an understanding of how to satisfy them. He must have some restrictions, but these he will accept if he is intelligently and lovingly treated. Because a nurse is technically trained, she does not necessarily understand children; it takes more than that. A small boy or girl only gets "impossible" because he or she is badly handled.

5. The last statement, that the child is stubborn, fits the rest of the picture perfectly. A small child whose natural desires are frustrated, who has not an outlet for his energy, shows his emotions in the form of stubbornness.

Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



To belong to the luxury class which permits a fresh boutonniere daily is one thing, but to be able to crochet floral pieces, No. 241, which in every way approach the beauty of the natural bloom, is a talent which should not be overlooked. Crocheting a bunch of bright red poppies, or a crisp white carnation, is a simple matter, and the flowers maintain lasting freshness.

An attractive tea apron, No. 772, is embroidered with the silhouette of an old fashioned girl surrounded by flowers. The hot iron transfer of the embroidery design is simple to execute, and the pattern contains detailed directions. The apron is finished with a plain or lace ruffle.

For instructions in making either of these items, send 15 cents in coin [30 cents for both—wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 1, N. Y.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	2 hearts	Pass	3 diamonds
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	Pass
Pass

The bidding above is given as it actually took place between two disputants, who ask us today to place the blame for failing to make the most of their cards.

As will be seen five diamonds could have been made without difficulty, indeed 12 tricks can be taken against the normal opening lead of the queen of spades. North contended that South should not have left his partner in the three heart bid. That he should have shown his other suit by a bid of four clubs after which North would have gone to game in diamonds. North further contended that he was under obligation to show a six-card major suit by rebidding it. South's argument was that he feared to do any more bidding lest the partnership head for trouble. It began to sound as tho North has his mind set on hearts, and if South bid again he might hear one more heart bid from partner, which was farthest from his own wishes.

We must convict North on two charges. In the first place his first bid was not well chosen. Proper strategy calls for a double rather than an overcall with his hand. The hand counts to four honor tricks and possesses certain qualities of flexibility. It partner should respond in a minor suit, North would be in a position to bid two hearts. In other words he could get two messages in for the price of one and at the same time leave partner in no doubt about the strength of his hand. Many players labor under the misapprehension that the holding of a long suit precludes the use of the double. Nothing could be more unsound. The double announces a strong hand which may, or may not, contain a good suit.

North was lucky to have gotten a chance to correct his first error when South elected to bid three diamonds. It is doubtful that such a bid by South will be profitable in the long run. In a majority of cases partner rebids the suit he has first mentioned and the rescue bid tends to place the team deeper in the mud. However, when South was clairvoyant enough to bid, North should have taken advantage of the situation by raising partner promptly. North was inclined to bid that which interested himself most [showing the long heart suit] rather than bidding that which would be of greater interest to his partner [supporting the diamonds.]
